INTERNATIONAL CHIEF ASKS MINERS RESUME WORK IN NOVA SCOTIA

John L. Lewis Says Strike Is Violation of Agreement and Principles of United Mine Workers; Two Arrested Leaders Taken to Halifax.

Sydney, N.S., July 7.—Announcement that John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America had requested the executive of District 26 to "take immediate steps" to have the miners of Cape Breton return to work was made here to-day.

President Lewis telegraphed District President Dan Livingstone from Atlantic City and termed the existing strike "unquestionably a violation of the existing agreement between District 26 and the coal companies, parties thereto."

President Lewis also termed the strike "a violation of the principles and policies of the United Mine Workers."

Sydney, N.S., July 7 (By Canadian Press staff correspondent)—F. W. Gray, assistant to the vice-president of the British Empire Steel Corporation, announced this morning that one of the mills closed down a week ago last Wednesday when the steel workers walked out demanding increased wages and the institution of the check-off system of collecting union dues would resume operations to-day.

Gray stated that at present 1,200 men in all were employed about the plant. This number includes the officials, clerical staff and both day and night shifts. He stated there would not be enough work for these men unless one of the mills were operated and it had been decided to start up the Blooming mill. Unlike last year, these men were not under the necessity of living within the plant, and were not being interfered with in the movements to and from their homes in the city.

Two in Custody.

Dan Livingstone, president, and James B. Maclachlan, secretary of the United Mine Workers, District 26, the two strike officers arrested last night on a charge of knowingly and wilfully spreading false tales to the detriment of the public interest, told the Canadian Press this morning that they had spent a very comfortable night.

The two prisoners were astir early this morning and were permitted to breakfast in one of the city restaurants and later to visit a barber. Maclachlan smiled and shook his head when asked if he wished to make any statement on the subject of his arrest, and then added:

"I am not talking now."

The Halifax train bearing Chief Detective Horace Kennedy of the Halifax police force, who will accompany the prisoners to the capital, was reported two hours late this morning. It is expected that a start will be made for Halifax shortly after the arrival of this train, the first part of the journey to be made by motor, which will connect somewhere down the line with the evening train from Sydney.

A Quiet Night.

The night passed quietly throughout the strike area. Alex. S. McIntyre, district vice-president of the United Mine Workers, who is carrying on in the absence of Livingstone and Maclachlan, to-day appealed to the various locals to arrange for mass meetings for the purpose of protesting against the arrest of the two leaders.

Text of Letter.

The letter which caused the arrests was signed by MacLachlan, was headed "Official letter, District 26, United Mine Workers of America, Glace Bay, N.S., July 4, 1923," and was addressed "To Officers and Members of Local Unions." It set forth that all the Waterford, Sydney Mines and Glace Bay sub-districts were out on strike as a protest against the importation of provincial police and Federal troops into Sydney to intimidate the steel workers into continuing work at thirty-two cents an hour, and proceeded:

"On Sunday night last these provincial police in the most brutal manner rode down the people at Whitney Pier, who were on the street, most of them coming from church. Neither age, sex, nor physical disability was proof against these brutes.

"One old woman over seventy years of age was beaten into insensibility and may die. A boy nine years old was trampled under the horses' feet and had his breast bone crushed in. One woman, beaten over the head with a police club, gave premature birth to a child. The child is dead

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 7.—John D. Rockefeller will celebrate his eighty-fourth birthday to-morrow at his home, Pohtico Hills. The celebration is scheduled to be a quiet one.

In the morning Mr. Rockefeller will attend service at the new community church. He has invited only a few close friends to sit with him in the evening. Since the death of his brother William, Mr. Rockefeller has dispensed with the customary annual entertainment of many members of the family.

PRINCE OF WALES HOST AT DINNER NEXT TUESDAY

London, July 7.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The Prince of Wales will give a dinner at St. James's Palace next Tuesday to nearly sixty guests, consisting mostly of those who were his hosts during his recent tours among some of the industrial cities of England. Included among the guests will be the captain of the battlecruiser Renown, on which the Prince sailed on his visit to the Dominions and India.

FRENCH OCCUPY DUISBURG BANK AND SEIZE MONEY

Berlin, July 7.—The Vossische Zeitung reports that the French have occupied the Duisburg branch of the Reichsbank and seized about 7,000,000 marks.

BELGIANS AWAIT GERMANY'S REPLY

Insist Berlin Disavow Acts of Violence in Ruhr

Ready to Withdraw Minister If No Action Taken

Paris, July 7.—Belgium has made what is characterized as a veiled threat to withdraw her Minister from Berlin unless Germany publicly disavows the Duisburg bombing and other acts of violence in the Ruhr district. The delivery in Berlin by the Belgian Minister of such a threat was confirmed in French official quarters to-day, but as far as is known the French Ambassador has not yet joined in these representations. The French Government, however, in view of the close accord with Belgium, is deemed certain to support the Belgian attitude.

The Belgian demand was not in the form of an ultimatum, but it nevertheless conveyed the idea that unless Germany complied, the situation would likely result in the withdrawal of the Belgian Minister.

The French, while standing with the Belgians, still hope no necessity will arise for the carrying out of the Belgian threat, which would be followed by France.

Poincare Supported.

Paris, July 7.—The French Parliament stands behind Premier Poincare in declaring that the Papal reparations letter can have no effect on France's decision to stay in the Ruhr until Germany pays.

The Senate's recent endorsement of the Premier's indirect move against the Vatican's commentary was followed last evening by a similar expression of approval from the Chamber of Deputies, which by a vote of 388 to 190 agreed with M. Poincare that the Government would never admit Papan interference in either her domestic or foreign policies.

Policy of Force.

The Premier's address to the deputies also was marked by a brief but pointed reference to those who oppose the coercive policy.

"To-day," he said, "France appears to certain peoples who did not have part of their territory devastated in the war and who did not advance a hundred billion in behalf of Germany, as a hindrance to financiers who are in a hurry to form trusts."

As to the Pope's letter, M. Poincare asserted that it should have no political effect and that French Catholics need not be influenced by it, for the Vatican could not deprive France of what was due her under the peace treaty.

Not to Be Withdrawn.

To those who demanded that the French Embassy at the Vatican be discontinued because it had not acted in the best interests of the Government in connection with the publication of letter, Premier Poincare said:

"We do not suppress our embassies to the Governments of our allies or those of neutrals when they ask that Germany's capacity to pay be examined by a so-called impartial commission."

Death Sentences.

Dusseldorf, July 7.—The appeal of the seven Germans against the death penalty imposed on them last week by a French court-martial at Mayence has been rejected by the Court of Appeal. The men, Sasse, Maure, Gruber, Hanne, Schneider, Dreyer and Frey, were convicted of sabotage.

CHINESE BANDITS TOOK NO FOREIGNERS

Canton, July 7.—No foreigners were among the passengers kidnapped by Chinese bandits when a train on the Canton-Kowloon railway was held up here. Two persons were killed and 100 Chinese are held for ransom.

Two Were Killed and Ninety Chinese Seized by Bandits

Hongkong, July 7.—Bandits to-day held up a train on the Canton-Kowloon Railway, 15 miles from Canton, killing a Chinese military officer and one soldier and carrying off about ninety upper class Chinese, who are being held for ransom. Booty valued at $50,000 was also taken.

McADOO PROBABLE CANDIDATE FOR U.S. PRESIDENCY

New York, July 7.—Detailed plans for launching a William G. McAdoo for President boom were worked out at a dinner of a dozen of his most intimate friends here, says The New York Evening Post.

Although McAdoo has not formally announced his candidacy, his supporters are declared to be confident his hat will be in the ring.

London, July 7.—Many persons were killed and fifty were seriously injured in a train collision in the centre of Berlin to-day, says a Central News dispatch from the German capital.

SEVERAL THOUSAND RUSSIANS MAY SEEK TO ENTER CANADA

Large Contingent of Anti-Bolshevist and Educated Class of Russian Refugees in Orient Are Planning to Come to This Country to Settle, Russians Bound to States on President Jackson

Three thousand selected Russians, recruited from among the thousands of refugees from Siberia, and now congregated in the more populous centres of the Far East, will cross the Pacific Ocean to enter Canada as settlers, it was learned by The Times from an authoritative source when the liner President Jackson docked here yesterday from the Orient.

As far as is known by the local department of the Dominion Immigration Service no provision has been made to permit the entry of such a large contingent of Russias into this country.

Barriers In Way.

It was stated to-day by S. N. Reid, chief of the immigration service here, that this large party of Russians, providing they are bound for Canada, would be barred by Order in Council B.C. No. 23, which calls for "continuous journey from country of birth or citizenship," and would be faced by the additional handicap of Order in Council B.C. No. 183, in which entry of aliens is prohibited "except certain classes, etc." Apparently the only way the Russians could get around the immigration barriers would be by special dispensation of the Federal Government.

The Dominion Government has not announced any plan for the admission of Russian refugees.

The statement was authoritatively and definitely made on board the liner President Jackson, however, that a contingent of 3,000 Russians picked from the refugee camps in the Orient were coming to Canada. It was also intimated that the Russians intending to come to this country would be picked, and a particularly fine class of people.

Intelligent Class.

Although the majority of the Russians now stranded in Shanghai and Yokohama are in desperate straits financially, a percentage of them have money and are a most intelligent class of people, the majority of them being well educated and in some cases accomplished.

The Russians now in the Oriental countries were driven out of Siberia by the advance of the Soviet forces towards Vladivostok following the evacuation of Siberia by the Japanese.

It is estimated that there are eight thousand at Shanghai and many thousands are at Harbin, Manchuria.

The Russian refugees are now being admitted into the United States and will continue to come until the immigration quota for Russia is exhausted. It was stated by Russians on the President Jackson that eleven hundred would arrive on boats shortly to cross the Pacific, bound for the United States.

TAYLOR LEADS SPEIRS AS NORTHWEST GOLF CONTEST IS CLOSING

Special to The Times

Seattle, Wash., July 7.—Playing over a course flooded by last night's heavy rain, Phil Taylor, professional of the Victoria Golf Club was leading Clarke Speirs, of Seattle, British Columbia champion, by five strokes at the end of the first eighteen holes of the Pacific Northwest golf championship final thirty-six to-day. The two cracks, professional and amateur, covered the first nine in thirty-six strokes with Taylor showing splendid form and looking like a winner. Al. Espinosa, of Inglewood Club, gained three on Chandler Egan with a thirty-nine.

Walter Gravlin, professional of the Uplands Golf Club of Victoria, turned in the best score for the first nine holes to-day with a splendid thirty-four. Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, who did so well recently in the Old Country, completed this morning's round in 76. Large galleries followed the play.

QUALITY OF WHEAT FIRST CONSIDERATION

London Post Urges Canadians to Develop Trade

Mixing of Wheat in Transit to Britain Condemned

London, July 7.—The Morning Post's market correspondent, after an examination of the Canadian crop report which was issued last month, expresses the opinion that it would be wiser for the Canadian farmers to come to terms with the British farmers and replace the present very doubtful trade in cattle, to the extent of a few million pounds sterling, by a safe and assured market for wheat to the value of from £60,000,000 to £80,000,000 a year.

"The prosperity of 20,000,000 Canadian acres would thus become static and the self-supporting character of the Empire respecting bread an accomplished fact," The Post's correspondent says.

Mixing of Grain.

A hopeful sign is detected by the correspondent of The Post in the visit of Leslie Boyd, chairman of the Canadian Board of Trade, and George Series, Chief Inspector of Grain for Canada, who are here investigating complaints of British millers about alleged mixing of Canadian wheat shipped via United States ports, and he says the Canadian representatives located the wheat which was tampered with. The adulterated wheat did not come through an all-British route, via Vancouver, the St. Lawrence, Halifax or St. John, N. B., but the adulteration took place during a railway journey across the United States.

Reference to Courts.

The Post's correspondent recognize the fact that the Canadians do not use all-British routes owing to the quickness and cheapness of United States routes as a result of the fight of the vast railway interests against all-seaward outlets on the Pacific. Nevertheless, what the British buyers are concerned about, he says, is the quality of the wheat of Canada as it reaches the British mills. British millers associations can refuse to recognize contracts which forbid reference to the law courts here and admit wheat in transit over territory outside British jurisdiction, the correspondent says. "If Canadian grain is consigned through the United States," he declares, "the right of the buyers here to plead in the British courts that the goods delivered are not up to samples must be allowed. No veto thereon can be tolerated."

TORONTO MAN FACES TRIAL ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

Toronto, July 7.—W. H. Ward, who on Thursday was sentenced to a fine of $1,000 and costs or twelve months, plus eighteen months, for receiving drugs through the mails, was again before Magistrate Jones yesterday, the charge being that of having morphine in his possession.

Searched at the jail on Thursday, he was said to have possessed large quantities of "dope," needles, razor blades and a file, all cleverly secreted under a plaster of paris cast supposed to be protecting a fractured arm. An additional quantity of drugs was found, it was said, under a covering of adhesive plaster. He was committed for trial.

URGES PRIVILEGES OF PARTNERSHIP

New Zealand Premier Speaks of Empire Development

Direct Representations to King By Dominion Ministers Urged

Wellington, N. Z., July 7.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's)—"There is one aspect of the imperial problem which has not really been discussed," Premier Massey told Parliament yesterday.

"We are partners of the Empire, but we have never fully assumed the privileges of the partnership. I am not blaming the British Government, who are as anxious to meet us as we are to meet them. We have not yet got to the stage where Dominion representatives are able to join representatives of the British Government in making communications to the sovereign. We should have exactly the same right as the Ministers who represent the British Government, and be in a position to approach the sovereign."

Britain's Achievement.

Reviewing the political situation throughout the Empire, Premier Massey referred to the huge war loan debt owing Great Britain by her allies.

"Britain," he said, "has stood up to her financial responsibilities like no other country, and for many reasons we should be proud of her."

Premier Massey held that every Dominion had a perfect right to make a commercial treaty, but that it must not make a treaty concerning boundaries or any question affecting the Empire without the sovereign being consulted and his consent obtained.

LACKING RAILWAYS, SETTLERS MIGRATE

Effects of Senate's Rejection of C. N. R. Bill Reported in Manitoba

Winnipeg, July 7.—The failure of the Senate to pass the Canadian National branch lines bill, which carried provision for the construction of several lines in Manitoba, has caused many settlers to give up their homesteads and migrate to the cities and towns, according to J. Hamelin, M.P.P. for Ste. Rose.

A line was to have been constructed from Ste. Rose du Lac to Yorkton, a distance of twenty-two miles, but with no hope of getting it this year, Mr. Hamelin said, seven families have thrown up their stakes and left for other parts.

A petition asking the Government to reverse the decision of the Senate is now being circulated.

TOKIO WILL USE VICTORIA PLAN IN REMODELING CITY

To Incorporate Local Beauty Features in New Town-Planning Programme

New town-planning reforms which are to be put into effect by the municipal authorities of Tokio, the Japanese Capital, will be based in part on the lay-out of Victoria streets and parks, according to word received by Mayor Reginald Hayward to-day from the Tokio Municipal Research Bureau.

Big improvements in the Japanese Capital are about to be started, the Mayor was informed. The reputation of Victoria is well known in the Orient, the Research Bureau explains, and for that reason detailed plans of this city are wanted. The Japanese authorities, it is stated, want to secure complete deta on "your glorious city."

The Mayor will see that the Tokio Research Bureau secures all the plans and data that it desires. "This request for details of our city shows how Victoria's reputation for beauty is spreading all over the world," the Mayor said to-day on receiving the letter from the Tokio authorities.

TWO BALLOONISTS MISSING IN U. S.

Navy Contestants Have Not Reported Since Tuesday

Men of Other Twelve Balloons Reported Landings

Indianapolis, Ind., July 7.—Lieut. L. J. Roth, piloting the United States navy balloon A-6699, which left Indianapolis late Tuesday afternoon in the national elimination race for distance, was the only balloonist still to be heard from early to-day. The other twelve balloons had reported to the local commander-in-chief that they had landed.

According to a report, a balloon thought to be the one in which Lieut. Roth and his aide, Lieut. T. B. Null were flying, was sighted over Winehendon, Mass., approximately 800 miles from Indianapolis, at 2.30 yesterday afternoon.

Fear for the safety of the two naval officers was expressed by those in charge of the race because no word has been received from them since they left this city.

IMPORT DUTY ON LOGS MAY BE CUT BY UNITED STATES

Washington, July 7. — (Canadian Press)—As a result of an investigation ordered by the United States Tariff Commission into the duty on logs of fir, spruce, cedar or western hemlock, the duty may be cut fifty per cent. The present duty is $1 a thousand feet, board measurement.

A reduction would be an advantage to the export trade of New Brunswick and British Columbia.

NAVAL PLANS OF U. S. FOR YEAR ARE ANNOUNCED

Washington, July 7.—The United States will maintain at full efficiency during the next fiscal year "a minimum naval force at sea" of eighteen first-line battleships, fourteen cruisers and eighty-four submarines under a decision by the General Board, formally approved by Secretary Denby.

HON. J. H. KING CALLS FOR TENDERS FOR BIG DRYDOCK EQUIPMENT

Great Structure Here Will Be Opened For Business Next Year, Minister of Public Works Announces On Inspection of Site; Everything Fixed Up Now For Visit of President Harding to Vancouver; Trans-Provincial Highway Is Discussed.

Victoria's great $6,000,000 drydock at Esquimalt, one of the three largest drydocks in the world, with a length of 1,150 feet, able to accommodate the largest ships, which can then be handled for repairs by Victoria shipbuilders, will be opened for business in 1924, Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works for Canada, announced here to-day.

Dr. King, who has been known as a zealous guardian of Victoria's interests since he has been at Ottawa, spent most of this morning personally going over the big dock.

"We have voted $1,500,000 this year for the continuation of construction work on this drydock, and this should clean-up the general construction work, including the excavation and cement by the end of next April," Dr. King said.

Equipment Tenders.

Dr. King also made the announcement to-day that his department is now calling for tenders for equipment and the electrical operating plant which will be the most modern in the world. The electrical pumping plant of three main pumps will have a capacity of 180,000 gallons a minute. This battery of pumps will empty the whole dock in four hours.

The equipment for which tenders are now being called will cost around $350,000, Dr. King said.

Dr. King was met here by C. T. Cross, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and other members of the Chamber, and leading Liberals including William Ivel, Frank Carlow, president of the Victoria Liberal Association, J. G. Turgeon, Provincial Liberal organizer.

The Minister said that the slight labor difficulties which had arisen at the dock to delay the work had now been settled, and that from now on everything would seem to be clear sailing.

Greeted President.

As representative of the Dominion Government in connection with the visit of President Harding to British Columbia, Dr. King, accompanied by Mrs. King, met the Presidential party in Tacoma and completed arrangements for the arrival and reception to the President in Vancouver on July 26 on his return from Alaska.

Under the plans arranged by Dr. King, the president and his party will land from the U. S. S. Henderson at noon that day and be escorted to the Hotel Vancouver for the civic luncheon. There will be a great parade to Stanley Park, where the President will speak. His voice will be carried to the crowds by a series of amplifiers placed around the park. Later in the afternoon he will go off to try out one of Vancouver's golf links. In the evening there will be a state dinner at the Hotel Vancouver, followed by a public reception.

"The president and his party were very much pleased with what the British did at Portland in sending a detachment of sailors from the H. M. S. Curlew in the parade, and they would like to reciprocate by putting a detachment of U. S. Marines in the Vancouver parade," Dr. King said.

To arrange the final details of the visit, Col. Ernest Chambers, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod at Ottawa, will go to Vancouver.

With regard to local subjects other than the drydock, the Minister said it was too early to make any statement, as he is remaining in the Province long enough to go thoroughly into the matter of all public works which are under way and contemplated. He said he had come in search of information.

Highway Matters

As Dr. King last week officiated at the opening of the Banff-Windermere motor highway, he was asked as to the prospects for a connecting route which would link the Coast with the Interior, thus giving a highway entirely across Canada.

"That must be built eventually," said the Minister, but when the suggestion was made that the Dominion Government would aid in such construction, he intimated that it was a "leading question."

Following the successful opening of the Banff-Windermere highway, Dr. King hopes to see completed another side of the great Rocky Mountain triangle from Lake Louise through Field to Golden. The other sides which form the triangle are the road up the Columbia River valley and the new road from Invermere to Banff.

Whether the Canada Highways Act, 1920, would be renewed when it lapses at the end of this year, Dr. King could not say. At present, the Cabinet was not in favor of voting any more money for this purpose.

Dr. King will go to Vancouver to-morrow and from there start on a ten days' trip in the interior of the Province, returning in time to greet the President when he steps ashore at Vancouver.

Last night he and Mrs. King were entertained by Lieutenant-Governor Nichol at a dinner in their honor at Government House.

G. W. V. A. TO MEET IN NOVA SCOTIA

1924 Convention Made By Delegates in Vancouver

Annual Meeting in Terminal City Comes to End

Vancouver, July 7.—(Canadian Press)—The 1924 Dominion convention of Great War Veterans' Association will be held in Nova Scotia, it was decided at the concluding session of the Dominion convention here to-day. Fort William extended an invitation, but a number of delegates felt the association was in honor bound to go to Nova Scotia, which province had relinquished its right to this year's gathering so it could coincide with the veterans' reunion in Vancouver.

A recommendation that the convention meet every two years, instead of annually was tabled, after some discussion.

Canon Scott was elected honorary chaplain.

Several amendments to the constitution were accepted. One provides for election of an honorary president and two honorary vice-presidents. Another creates the office of "Assistant to the Dominion President," with duties particularly defined as legislative and organization activities and such other duties as the president, with the advice of the executive, may direct from time to time.

A recommendation that steps be taken in consultation with the ladies' auxiliaries already in existence to form a parallel organization to the G. W. V. A. was also approved.

Rally and Campfire.

Vancouver, July 7.—The delegates to the Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans' Association here hope to conclude their business early this afternoon. There are some small social functions to be indulged in this afternoon, and the grand rally and campfire with which the re-union week will close will take place in Hastings Park to-night.

Budget

One of the last items of business will be the presentation of the annual budget, which has been considered in camera for the last couple of days. There will also be discussion of some changes in the system of administration of the business of the association. It is planned that the duties and nomenclature of the various officers shall be re-arranged to bring about a greater measure of efficiency in their administration.

This reorganization, aimed especially to effect a system of national community service, will probably be the chief business of the day.

Cards

The executive also will announce some changes in the system of issuing credential cards to members. The new system is aimed to augment the finances of the Dominion Command. It will be pointed out that the per capita demand due to the Dominion Command is not always in proportion and the woman's life is despaired of. Men and women were beaten up inside their own homes.

Government Blamed.

"Against these brutes the miners are on strike. The Government of Nova Scotia is the guilty and responsible party for this crime. No miner or mine worker can remain at work while the Government turns Sydney into a jungle. To do so is to sink your manhood and allow Armstrong and his miserable bunch of grafting politicians to trample your last shred of freedom on the sand. Call a meeting of your local at once and decide to spread the fight against Armstrong to every mine in Nova Scotia. Act at once. To-morrow will be too late."

Calgary Discussion

Calgary, July 7.—The whole situation in connection with the Nova Scotia coal miners' and steel workers' strike will be discussed by officials of District 18, United Mine Workers of America, to-day.

Last night President Sherman denied the report from the east that the workers of District 18 planned a strike to show their sympathy with the Nova Scotia workers and their condemnation of the policy of importing troops to the strike zone. No plans for a sympathetic strike have been formulated yet, and the message to the eastern district was one of sympathy and offering help.

However, in view of the latest developments in the eastern strike, particularly the arrest of the miners' leaders, union officials who are in the city at present, five in number, will discuss the whole matter from a new angle.

At Spring Hill

Spring Hill, N.S., July 7.—Steady production and quick shipments have marked the coal mining industry here since the inauguration of the strike of coal miners and steel workers of Cape Breton, it was announced by officials of the Spring Hill local union of the United Mine Workers. It was stated that the strike vote incident was closed, the ballots having been returned unused, and there would be no strike in this sections unless authorised by the international union.

The annual church service of the Daughters of England will be held in the Metropolitan Methodist Church to-morrow evening, to which Sons of England and Juvenile members are invited. Members will meet at corner of Quadra and Johnson Streets at 7.15.

MAYOR ASKS BIG DISCOUNT ON NEW BUSINESS TAXES

To Urge Council to Reduce Total Business Levy to Budget Level

Heavy blanket discounts on all license fees fixed by the City Council in its new license by-law will be proposed by Mayor Reginald Hayward when he calls the Council together to pass the by-law late next week.

The Mayor announced to-day that he will ask that these discounts or reductions apply to the last half of this year. The License By-law, he explained, would stand as it is and could go into full effect at the beginning of 1924 if the Council so decided.

"My idea is to allow such discounts as will bring down the license fees here to the level fixed in our estimates," the Mayor explained. "That is, we would not tax any business a cent more than necessary to raise the money we have placed in our estimate of revenue from this source.

"Just how much money the new license fees, as prescribed in the by-law, will raise is not known yet. In fact, it will take city officials several days to calculate the total amount. It is believed, however, that the amount will be considerably more than we have in our estimates as revenue from licenses. I propose that we put into effect such discounts as will bring the total down to the level of the estimates."

The new License By-law was virtually passed by the Council yesterday. After slight changes have been made it will be put through its final reading late next week.

to the membership of a district command. In some cases, it is said, districts with 3,000 members are paying into the Dominion treasury a per capita demand adequate for only 600 members.

Yesterday's Session.

Yesterday afternoon's session of the convention was marked by the tabling of a cash bonus resolution, a meeting of the ways and means committee and the presentation of a silver cup to the Ville Marie branch, Montreal, for the largest proportionate increase in membership.

The cash bonus resolution introduced by W. Walker, of Calgary, urged upon Parliament the granting of a substantial cash bonus.

J. W. Russell, of Calgary, said returned men had not been treated justly by the Dominion Government. He urged that the association should work to bring about more equitable distribution.

L. Gibson, of Regina, opposed the resolution, expressing the opinion that no member of the House of Commons would father it, and he offered an amendment that the position taken by the Port Arthur convention two years ago be adhered to. This was that all ex-service men should be placed in the economic position they would have enjoyed if they had not gone to war.

The amendment was carried by 54 to 24.

Other Resolutions.

Resolutions were passed urging that the housing administration plan be carried on by the Federal Government through a returned soldiers' department, doing away with municipal control; that the regulation providing that members of the bands of permanent military units may not accept outside engagements for pay be enforced; that all ex-postal service men out of employment who were dismissed as the result of the strike of 1919 be re-employed on the same basis of pay as when discharged, and that the Government be urged to dismiss any civil servants found guilty of lobbying.

Oriental Question.

Exclusion of Orientals and enactment of legislation to prevent sale or lease of land to them was urged in another resolution passed, which was presented by Colonel C. E. Edgett, of Vernon.

A recommendation that a committee of which the president would be the head, make the best possible arrangement to finance the "Veteran" and stipulating that the association will assume no financial liability after October 1, was endorsed. President Sharpe said it was hoped the paper could be put on its feet and cleared of debt.

TWO NEW POISONS

Cresol and Cresylic Acid Now on Danger List; Drug Students Must Now Put in Longer Time

Cresol and Cresylic acid and their derivatives are now classed as poisons in British Columbia, Premier Oliver announced to-day. He had a regulation put through under the Phramacy Act placing these drugs in the category of poisons under the meaning of the Act.

At the same time changes were put through making it so that candidates for major examinations in pharmacy must now produce evidence of four years' registration as certified apprentices or clerks under a regular licentiate of pharmacy.

The Premier announced the appointment of W. H. Pierce, of Port Essington, as an issuer of marriage licenses.

Te newly formed Naval Veterans' Association will hold the first general meeting in the assembly room of the Army and Navy Veterans' Club, Hamley Building, on Tuesday at 8 o'clock. Captain F. James, R. N., presiding. The main business of the meeting will be the election of the permanent executive officers, and the discussion and adoption of the constitution. The committee appointed to bring in a consitution suitable for the association held several meetings during the past two weeks, and has completed its work, which will be presented on Tuesday night. The association is open to all ranks and ratings who have at any time worn the naval uniform in any branch of the service in the Empire.

VICTORIA MEN PLAY FINE GOLF IN THE BIG NORTHWEST TOURNEY

Special to The Times.

Seattle, July 7.—The Pacific Northwest Open Golf Championship opened yesterday at the Seattle Golf Club. Phil Taylor, of Victoria, and Clark Speirs, of Seattle, gave wonderful exhibitions of golf. The weather was ideal and the turf was in splendid shape. Large galleries followed several of the different players.

Taylor played a very steady game. In the morning he led the field with a score of 73. Taylor's long game was perfect in both rounds but his putting was faulty at times. He missed three small putts, the worst of these being a four-inch putt on the eighteenth green in the morning round. Taylor's nearest rival was two strokes behind after the morning round was over.

Afternoon Round.

In the afternoon Taylor drew a large gallery. He played practically the same game as the morning round but his putting was better. He put two balls out of bounds in this round, one at the first hole and the other at the thirteenth, but by brilliant recoveries on both holes managed to get in par golf.

Clarke Speirs, the present British Columbia amateur champion, who is tied with Taylor for first place, made a great recovery after his morning round, getting the best round of the day with a wonderful 71, two under par. Speirs's morning round was 75 He played great golf but did not get the breaks in the morning.

Perfect Golf

In the afternoon he played before a big gallery and his golf was perfect. He had four "birdies" in this round, twelve par holes and two bogies. Seldom has golf been seen in Seattle to equal this.

Dr. Walling arrived at the last minute, but did not seem to hit the stride which he showed in the Old Country. Chandler Egan, the former amateur champion of the United States, and Al. Espinosa played good golf and are tied for second place with a score of 149.

Black Behind

Dave Black, the present champion, was six strokes behind the leaders. Judging by the way Taylor and Speirs are playing he has got to use every shot he carries in order to catch them.

B. Wilson played his usual steady game, but could not get the feel of his putter, ending up with an 84 and a 79.

Walter Gravlin started very well. His first nine was 37, and he played good golf all the way, but his putting was bad. He took as many as three or four on several greens. Otherwise he would have been well up.

Brown Off His Game

H. Brown, champion of Hawaii, and the longest-hitting amateur or professional ever seen in this country, drew a big gallery, but he was off his game, ending up with an 82 and a 74.

LORD ATHOLSTAN, CANADIAN PUBLISHER AND HUMANITARIAN, WHO OFFERS $100,000 FOR A CANCER CURE.

Montreal, July 6.—Diabetes has just been conquered by insulin.

Yellow fever has been practically eradicated.

Vaccine has stamped out smallpox.

But cancer—one of the most deadly and prevalent afflictions of mankind—is still unchecked.

There is hope for its ultimate control, though. The $100,000 prize offered by Lord Atholstan for an effective cancer cure has attracted world-wide attention.

Three thousand claims of cures, from 40 different nations, have been submitted by medical men, fanatics, etc., in the 18 months since Lord Atholstan, owner of The Montreal Star and associated publications, posted his reward. More are coming in daily.

The offer was given to the world in the form of a brief letter sent by Canada's foremost newspaper publisher to Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University, January 2, 1922.

The news was flashed instantly to every corner of the globe and for the next three months a steady stream of answers poured in from Egypt, Japan, Peru, Bulgaria, China, Denmark, Algeria, New Zealand and a score of other lands.

In less than six months the 2,000 mark had been passed and since then nearly a thousand names have been added to the list.

400 Ruled Out.

Of the remedies already filed, 400 can be ruled out as not complying with the original offer, coming from faith healers, advocates or autosuggestion and religious fanatics.

Of the others, some are too weirdly fantastic to warrant investigation, others are obviously improbable.

been called into service as a specific with blood-root an easy first and with red clover chopped fine having its following.

Lord Atholstan now has cabled an offer to the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, offering an additional gift of $100,000 to be devoted to the study of the dread disease.

The donor of these bequests is the first Canadian-born peer to be raised to the House of Lords for services rendered to the British Empire. This "All-Canadian peer" has been a newspaper owner all his life.

At the age of 18 he joined the staff of The Montreal Gazette and before he was 21, with a gross capital of $100, he had joined George T. Lanigan, author of many ungent essays and some light verse, in starting The Montreal Star.

Early tradition of the paper tells of pennies collected from newsboys over the counter being passed to the paper merchant for the next day's supplies.

URGE BEER AND BEEF

That's the Stuff for Happy Old Age, According to British Woman Centenarian

London, July 7.—Mrs. Elizabeth Watson, of Dalston, who has attained the age of 102, ascribes her longevity largely to a plain fare of roast beef. Mrs. Watson has no time for faddists who hold out hopes of long life through rigorous adherence to dietetic rules.

"There's nothing like the roast beef of England," she said, asked for the key to her vitality.

Only a few days ago another centenarian of Kent said roast beef and beer were capable of producing a happy old age. Such testimonials have led one London daily to remark: "Let those who condemn beef and beer in moderation sit and learn at the feet of these dear old ladies instead of trying to teach them to

CITY BUSY ON NEW CLUB BY-LAW NOW

New regulations to govern clubs here are being discussed at informal conferences of City Council members now in preparation for the drafting of a new club by-law along the lines of the Vancouver club ordinance. City Solicitor H. S. Pringle has the matter under advisement, and is securing complete information on the Vancouver measure.

If the Vancouver system is followed here clubs will be defined as places where refreshments are served to members. This would include beer clubs which flourish here and in Vancouver. Some aldermen object to this plan on the ground that it seems to indicate that the city authorities are officially recognizing the sale of beer camouflaged as distribution of refreshments to members in some establishments.

NEW BUILDINGS TO KEEP QUARRIES BUSY

New building operations in Victoria and Vancouver will speed up work in quarries on islands in the Gulf of Georgia.

Stone for the new Bank of Nova Scotia, construction of which will be started here immediately, will be obtained from Haddington Island. The stone is of a beautiful grey color and is similar to the stone used in the construction of the Parliament Buildings here.

Residents of Nanaimo met this week to urge the Provincial Government to use stone from Newcastle Island in building the new library at the British Columbia University.

TO BE PROSECUTED FOR DESERTION

Many Sailors On British Ships Joined Liner Leviathan

London, July 7. — The threatened prosecution of many members of the Leviathan's crew for alleged desertion from British vessels is attracting much attention here.

The Daily Mail says proceedings will be taken by the Board of Trade to protect British shipping. Other reports assert action will be taken by steamship companies.

The number of men who are threatened with arrest under the British Mercantile Shipping Act is variously estimated at between 100 and 300. The Daily Mail reports that one company has the names and addresses of 100 men belonging in Southampton who are known to have shipped aboard the Leviathan.

Identification

The newspaper adds that when the big liner arrives at Southampton she will probably be quarantined until the police have identified each man. There have been many complaints of British ships being forced to return short-handed because of the desertion of their men, who have been attracted by the higher American wages, although they signed for the round trip and were warned beforehand of the penalties of desertion. It is stated that 200 men left British ships in New York, Philadelphia and Boston during the first week of May alone.

He had been a resident of this city for the past thirty-eight years. He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, W. A. and C. A. Stevens, of this city, and five grandchildren. For many years the late Mr. Stevens was a butcher in the employ of Lawrence Goodacre. The remains are reposing at the Thomson Funeral Home, 1625 Quadra Street, from whence the funeral will take place at a time and date to be announced later.

The funeral of the late James Murray was held this morning, leaving the B. C. Funeral Chapel at 9.15, and proceeding to St. Andrew's Cathedral, where Rev. Father Scheelen conducted Mass, and the funeral services at 9.30, assisted by the Rev. Father Wood. A delegation of the A. O. F. attended the funeral, and many beautiful wreaths covered the casket. The pallbearers included Messrs. W. J. Allen, Robert McLeod and W. M. Watt, representing the Brentwood Power Station staff, Henry Callow, J. W. Wallis, of the A. O. F., and Alex. McKinnon.

OLIVER TO FIND OUT PURPOSE OF GRAIN ENQUIRY

Premier Oliver announced to-day that he had written to Ottawa to find out the functions and scope of the royal commission investigating grain routes. Until he ascertains more about the work of the commission the Premier will take no action on the request of Vancouver grain men that he appoint G. C. McGeer, K.C., to act as representative of British Columbia at the commission's remaining sessions.

THE PERFECT SHORT STORY.

I have discovered the perfect short story. It has no title, but the author is the four-year-old son of E. F. ("Dodo") Benson. The complete story follows:

CONSERVATIVES GOT BEST MAN, SAYS SENATOR BARNARD

Hon. S. F. Tolmie, M. P., is the best man the Conservative party could have chosen for Dominion organizer, Senator G. H. Barnard, home from the session at Ottawa, said today.

"Dr. Tolmie is very strong and highly thought of from one end of Cana adto teh other, and particularly in the rural districts," the Senator said.

The Senator said that he lost no time in getting back to Victoria after business in Ottawa, closed, and is now getting into golf trim, at which game he is known as an adept.

Fine crops on the Prairies presage better times in Canada, he said.

The Senator said he did not have time to talk about Atorney-General Manson and the campaign fund letter to the Senate, which other British Columbia Senators charge with being responsible for enraging the Senators so much that it caused the defeat of the British Columbia amendments to the Canada Temperance Act aimed to give the Province monopoly over liquor imports.

Senator R. F. Green has not yet returned to Victoria.

Times Book Review

By Prof. W. T. Allison

J. Lewis Milligan, the Toronto poet, has been on a trip through Western Canada. While in British Columbia he addressed the Poetry Club of Vancouver. That city impressed him so much that he wrote a poem about it. Victoria, the city of the golden broom, also moved him to sing of its beauty in the following graceful stanzas:

VICTORIA.

City serene! Fair nursling of the ocean!
Girded by white Olympian heights afar.
How shall I utter the divine emotion
That thrills me like the finding of a star?
Along thy craggy shores the broom is golden,
The migrant weed that from old Albion came;
Thy homes are haunts of memories dear and olden,
The songs of England vibrate in thy name!
Hail! and farewell! for thou art but a vision
Of some transcendent and ethereal clime,
Seen by a minstrel 'mid a lone transition
Through these amazing hills and seas of time.

Dr. George Locke, Chief Librarian of Toronto, has been fortunate in the London auction market in getting for his Reference Library the best collection of Haliburton's works yet known in Canada. Judge Haliburton, the friend and associate of Hon. Joseph Howe, was the first great Canadian to win laurels in the literary world, and some of his books have gone into forty editions. The Toronto library now has all the works of Haliburton, but what is much more important they all are first editions, except one. There are twenty-six volumes bound in half-morocco with the original cloth bindings inset.

A recent bulletin of the Chicago Board of Education contains the following classic essay on frogs, written by a young Norwegian struggling with the English language: "What a wonderful bird the frog are! When he stand he sit, almost. When he hop he fly, almost. He ain't got no sense, hardly. He ain't got no tail hardly, either, when he sit he sit on what he ain't got almost."

Herbert Jenkins, one of the most enterprising of London publishers is dead at the early age of 47. Mr. Jenkins was also an author. His Bindle books had an immense sale in the old country. Bindle is a Cockney furniture van man, and his struggles with pianos, his foreman, and his wife are comical in the extreme.

Another loss the English literary world has sustained of late is in the death of Maurice Hewlett. In such works as "Earthwork Out of Tuscany," "The Forest Lover" and "Richard Yea and Nay," Mr. Hewlett showed not only great ability as a stylist, but a rare knowledge of mediaeval life in Italy and England.

The Union of Moscow journalists have chosen Upton Sinclair as Soviet Russia's favorite American author," and have invited him to visit their country. Mr. Sinclair's latest work is "The Goose Step," an attack on the university presidents of the United States.

UNTAXED WHISKY FLOODS VANCOUVER; CLUBS CUT PRICES

"Blind Pigs" and "Speak Easies" On Mainland Sell at Reduced Rates

Vancouver, July 7.—That Vancouver at the present time is being flooded with whisky from one of the large export warehouses, on which no duty is collected by the Federal Government, and which it is possible to retail at prices far below those of the Provincial Government Liquor Control Board stores, is the statement of investigators who have been at work in the city checking up the situation since the recent club licenses were granted.

Over seventy clubs hase been granted licenses under the new Vancouver city by-law, and although the license carries no permit to sell liquor of any description, the statement has been made in authoritative circles that Vancouver is to-day more wide open than ever before. In the majority of the clubs hard liquor is said to be obtainable.

"We haven't sold any so far since we have been in operation," said one club owner who has been operating since the clubs were inaugurated, "but it has come to the stage where we must do something for self-preservation. All our members are quitting this place because we refuse to handle hard liquor. They claim that they can get it elsewhere, and this has proved to be correct."

In addition to the regularly licensed clubs, "speak easys" and "blind pigs" have sprung up in almost every downtown alley and block in the city.

On Saturday last orders went out from the Liquor Control Board to supply no more clubs with liquor of any description on the power of attorney plan. This meant that it would be no longer possible for club owners to apply at a government store armed with permits and powers of attorney from fifty or more members and buy to the limit on each permit.

It was thought that this would check the liquor selling which in the short space of time since the clubs opened had grown to enormous proportions. Officials of the Liquor Control Board were threatened with instant dismissal if the order was disobeyed. Placards to this effect were placed in all the government stores, but the flood of liquor was not stopped.

"The leak still continues," said an offical this morning. "There is not a club owner in the city who is getting his liquor in the retail manner prescribed by the Liquor Control Board. The keepers of the 'blind pigs' have never made any pretence of getting their supplies from the Government. Even drug stores, some of them in a big way of business, are retailing liquor at prices which indicate that they are buying far below the government prices, which means that they are getting their supplies from sources which have found some way of evading the Federal duty of approximately $20 per case. It is stated that in one particular place not only is liquor being sold which has paid neither Federal duty nor Provincial tax, but that it is possible to get the Government label attached to the bottle at the time of the purchase."

YOUTH LOST HIS LIFE IN RIVER

Leo Castle Drowned at Edmonton; Gained Notoriety at Niagara Falls

Edmonton, July 7.—Leo Castle, the eighteen-year-old boy who won notoriety some months ago by creeping across the girders of one of the Niagara Falls bridges to beat the immigration authorities and get into the United States, met an untimely end here last night. He was detected stealing soft drinks from a delivery truck, and when chased by the driver ran along the river bank. Suddenly his footing gave way and he plunged into the swirling stream. No further trace was seen of him, and dragging of the river has failed to recover the body.

TWO FARMER-LABOR GROUPS IN U. S.

Old Party Breaks With Radical Section

Two Lists of Candidates in 1924 Election

Chicago, July 7.—The Farmer-Labor Party and the Federated Farmer-Labor Party of the United States, with individual platforms and candidates, are announced as entries in the 1924 political field.

The majority of the Farmer-Labor Party yesterday afternoon refused to affiliate with the Federated organization, a group born in the Farmer-Labor convention, and decided upon a platform and ticket of its own. A minority went over to the Federated party, splitting the Farmer-Labor organization.

The National Executive Committee of the Federated Party accepted five of the bolting Farmer-Laborites as members of its executive committee and proceeded to elect an executive council and adopt an intensive programme of activity. Headquarters of the Federated party probably will be here, it was announced by C. E. Ruthenburg, of Cleveland, a leader in the new party, who was convicted in Michigan of Communistic tendencies.

Illinois Group.

Non-participation by the Farmer-Labor Party with the Federated organization, which M. T. Bennett characterized as threatening the suicide of the Farmer-Labor Party, was shared by the solid Illinois unit, which is credited by its speakers with having established a clean break with the extreme radicals, as being unshackled of a possible Red menace and on its feet stronger than ever in the pursuit of independent political satisfaction.

MANITOBA BEER VOTE ON JULY 11

People to Decide Question of Sale in Hotel Diningrooms

Winnipeg, July 7.—Public interest in the referendum to be taken in Manitoba on July 11 on the question of establishing a system for the sale of beer and light wines in hotel dining rooms appears to be far less keen than on the June referendum on Government sale of all liquors.

The case for beer and wine is being advocated by the Beer and Wine League, which has the backing of the Hotelmen's Association, and they make the claim that their measure would promote the sale of the lighter drinks as against spirits, and would assist the farmers by developing a large market for barley.

Opposition to the bill is based on the contention that it would legalize public drinking and establish what is called the "dining room bar."

W. R. Wood, secretary of the Temperance Board of Manitoba, issued a statement yesterday strongly urging defeat of the bill.

No public meetings are being held, and advertising is being done modestly. Predictions are that the vote will fall far below the high figure set by the Moderation Bill vote. The polls will be open until 8 p.m. and a straight majority will decide the issue.

The Legislature will meet July 25 to enact formally the will of the people as expressed in the two votes.

BATTLE OF YPRES MEMORIAL SET UP AT ST. JULIEN

London, July 7.—A Canadian guard of honor, consisting of about fifty men from England who served in the Canadian army in France and Belgium, will be one of the features at the unveiling of the memorial at St. Julien to-morrow, commemorative of the First Battle of Ypres, in which the Canadians resisted the first German gas attack.

The Duke of Connaught, Marshal Foch and the King of the Belgians will attend.

LIQUOR RULING IN MONTANA

Helena, Mont., July 7 (Associated Press)—Congress, once having said that alcohol can be used for medical purposes, cannot how dictate to the physician as to the number of whisky prescriptions he shall write or the quantity he shall prescribe, Federal Judge George M. Bourquin holds. In his decision, handed down yesterday, Judge Bourquin invalidated the prosecution of Dr. J. B. Freund, a Butte physician, who it was charged issued more than 100 prescriptions within a ninety-day period and prescribed more than one-half a pint of alcohol for one patient in ten days.

In substance the judge held that Congress cannot substitute its judgment for that of the physician, ruling similarly to Federal Judge Knox of New York, who on May 9 granted an order restraining prohibition authorities from interfering with the practice of Dr. Samuel W. Lambert with respect to the amount of whisky which might be prescribed to one patient.

YUKON COAL.

Canadian and U. S. Conductors and Trainmen to Meet Soon

Toronto, July 7.—A call has been sent out to the general chairmen of the Order of Railroad Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen to assemble in Cleveland on August 9, when a wage movement will be launched.

The call, which was received here to-day, attracted a great deal of attention, for, according to railway officials, it means that before long committee of railway organizations will be negotiating their question of wages with the executives of all the roads of Canada and the United States.

The meeting at Cleveland, August 9, will take in the district controlled by the eatsern association, which is east of Chicago and north of the Chesapeake and Ohio in the United States and east of Fort William in Canada. For the western association, there will be a meeting in Chicago on Monday.

NIKOLAI LENINE TO CONTINUE AS SOVIET LEADER

Moscow, July 7.—Although ill, Nikolai Lenine will continue as titular head of the Council of Commissars under the constitution of the new Union of Socialist Republican or the United States of Russia.

This was decided by the federal executive committee yesterday.

Leo Kameneff, A. Rykov and M. Buringa were elected vice-presidents of the Cabinet or actual executives carrying on the presidency during Lenine's illness.

The new constitution for the United States of Russia was formally approved by the federal executive committee, but it must be ratified by the next All-Russian Congress of Soviets.

London, July 7.—The most important picture sale of the year was held yesterday when the collection of paintings owned by Sir Joseph Robinson, South African mining magnate, was put up for auction. The total amount realized was £205,741.

Sir Joseph disposed of the collection because, advancing in years, he did not want the care of it.

Fargo, N.D., July 7.—Rev. W. H. Driver, his wife and two-year-old son Arthur were instantly killed, and Dr. E. Richter, his wife and their daughter Ruth, two, and Audrey Driver, four, were injured when a Great Northern train struck their automobile near Hillsboro yesterday. All lived at Hunter, N.D.

Dr. Richter, who with the other injured was brought here, is not expected to recover.

FORCED TO DELAY TAXATION PLAN

Australian Federal and State Scheme Met Statistical Difficulties

Melbourne, July 7. — (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's).—Premier Bruce announced in the House of Representatives to-day that owing to statistical difficulties, the Federal Government had decided to abandon for the fiscal year the taxation scheme which was approved at the conference of state Premiers last May. He said this decision had been arrived at with reluctance. However, the Premier said duplication in the collection of taxes would be avoided by the Australian states collecting taxes on behalf of the Federal Government.

At the conference of Premiers in May a scheme was adopted in principle whereby the Federal Government of Australia would tax companies' incomes and the Australian state Governments would tax the incomes of individuals.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY DR. TIKHON IN MOSCOW

Moscow, July 7. — Most Rev. Dr. Tikhon, former Patriarch of All Russia, recently released from prison by the Soviet authorities, has issued a statement in which he declares that Pope Pius, taking advantage of the confusion in the Russian Orthodox Church, is trying "by all means" to instil Catholicism into the church. Dr. Tikhon charges that the Polish authorities are aiding in closing Orthodox churches in Polish territory, many of which have turned Roman Catholic.

The former Patriarch also continues his appeals to the faithful against the new church in Russia, while the latter continues its counter-attack on Dr. Tikhon.

NARCOTIC DRUG CHARGES LAID IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, July 7. — Vincent Bryan, composer of popular songs, scenario writer and motion picture director, was arrested at his home here yesterday on a charge of purveying narcotics.

At the same time a woman said to be Bryan's wife, and Walter Martin, an automobile salesman, both of whom were with Bryan, were detained by deputy sheriffs.

The police announced the woman said she was Leota Bryan, formerly a dancer in New York and now a motion picture actress. The charge against her was possession of narcotics. Martin was similarly accused.

ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE AT SOOKE ENJOYED

Special to The Times.

Sooke Harbor.—The entertainment and dance given in the Sooke Hall was an indication of the progressive work that is being undertaken by the Girl Guide movement. The programme was entirely arranged by Brown Owl Susan Pike and was entirely got up by her and the children except for two short accompaniments. Not only was the programme prepared, but the platform enlarged, the wings put in place and the hall got ready by the girls, some of the Guides helping in the morning. They also managed the gate money and altogether did admirably as they cleared close to $45. The parents came in for their share as the material and patterns for the Brownie costumes were late in arriving, but the response was given and the Brownies appeared in their neat little costumes, which certainly set off the programme.

Mr. Helgesen took the chair for the concert and at the conclusion congratulated Brown Owl and her Brownies for their very enjoyable evening's entertainment and called for three cheers for the Brown Owl and her helpers.

Mrs. Noakes, of James Island, very kindly played two piano solos which were very much enjoyed by everyone present.

The following was the programme:

Song—"I Shan't Go to School Any More" .....
Ruth Rayment and Vera Soward

Mollie Richardson

Dance—
Anna Laukkanen, Ruth Rayment, Mollie Richardson, Naomi Trenchard, Vera Soward and Lily Michelsen

Recitation—"A Good Day's Work"

Recitation—"A Bunch of Golden Keys" .....
Ruth Rayment

Sketch—"Freckles" .....
Winnie Snape, Nellie Richardson, Violet Helgesen and Zara Pike

After the entertainment refreshments were served, the following ladies helping in the kitchen: Mrs. Hooke, Mrs. Cullum, Mrs. Hawkins, Mrs. Roberson and Mrs. Higgs.

The Sooke two-piece orchestra was in attendance for the dance and a very happy time was spent until 12.30 a.m.

Mrs. Barbour had a busy time at the ice cream counter and was completely sold out before the close of the evening.

PREPARATIONS ARE BEING MADE FOR SOOKE FALL FAIR

Special to The Times

Sooke Harbor—The local Women's Institute met Tuesday afternoon. Lady Emily Walker was present and before the meeting commenced gave a brief resume of the plans already arranged for the local Fall fair which will be held at East Sooke in September. A splendid list of special prizes has been obtained, and it is hoped that quite a few Sooke people will send over exhibits to this show, which will be the first of its kind in East Sooke.

The meeting voted in favor of undertaking to serve refreshments and ice cream during the day, and several members promised to go over to help.

The secretary reported that the proceeds of the concert in aid of the Sooke School piano fund amounted to $35.25, and one of the members present kindly made this amount up to $36. This sum has been banked. It was decided that a local piano should be bought and that the Institute should pay the fire insurance for one year. The secretary was also instructed to write the Board of Trustees to this effect.

The September meeting will be held in the school, with the consent of the trustees, and will take the form of a "piano warming." It is also the meeting set aside for a paper on public health and child welfare, so it is particularly appropriate that it should be held in the school.

It was decided that an exhibition of women's work should be held on the Institute's birthday in October. It is not planned to have an elaborate show, but the Institute felt it would be fitting to celebrate its birthday.

A standing vote of sympathy was taken for the late Miss J. Murray, who was always such a kind friend of the Institute, and the secretary read the letter entitled "A Neighborhood Saint," which appeared in The Times.

After the serving of tea by Mrs. C. T. Muir and Mrs. C. Barbour, the Institute adjourned until September.

CELEBRATION AT ALBERNI WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Alberni.—One of the most successful celebrations ever held here was that witnessed on Dominion Day. Children's sports at 9.30 a.m. opened the celebration. This event was followed by a decorated automobile and bicycle parade, followed by the crowning of the carnival queen, Miss Nellie Meagher, by James R. Motion, Mayor of Alberni. Queen Nellie was supported by Miss Beth McMillan and Miss Dora Hay as maids of honor and Past Queen Miss M. Milligan.

In senior sports in the afternoon the following were winners:

100 yard dash—1, G. Blandy; 2, J. Forrest; time, 10 3-5 sec.

220 yard dash—1, J. Forrest; 2, G. Blandy; time, 24 4-5 sec.

Climbing the greasy pole—1, J. Miller.

Tug-of-war—Won by Port Alberni Loggers from Indians after five heats. The Indians won the first pull in fifty seconds and the Loggers the second in five minutes. The third and fourth were dead heats of three minutes each and the final was won by the Loggers, who pulled the Indians four inches in the three-minute limit. This was without doubt one of the best events ever held in the district.

The baseball match was won by Port Alberni with a score of 15 to 4 after a very ragged exhibition.

This very successful day was brought to a close with a big dance in Clarke's Hall, which was packed to the doors. All present had a very enjoyable time.

The arrangements for the day were in the hands of the following energetic committee: E. M. Whyte, chairman; S. H. Toy, secretary; S. Evanson, treasurer, and Messrs. H. A. Horde, F. H. Bishop, J. Redford, G. Blandy and J. Forrest.

Refreshments were served on the grounds by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the West Coast General Hospital, with Mrs. J. J. Burke in charge.

And He Couldn't Tell It

This one came from First Avenue in Kitsilano. A woman who has used Pacific Milk for cooking almost since it came on the market, has made it a point to have fresh cream to serve guests when any are with her. On Sunday some folks came without warning and she had no cream, but served Pacific, diluted, with water. She told them it was canned milk. They smelled it, tasted it and decided the lady was joking. And the folks don't like canned milk, either.

DR. KING.

It will be gratifying to Dr. King on this occasion to be able to remain in British Columbia for a rather longer period than has been possible on the two previous visits that he has made since he undertook his present important position in the Dominion Cabinet. As this Province's sole representative in the Government our own people naturally regard his presence here as often as convenient to be in their special interest. Although in this connection Dr. King's long residence in British Columbia and his fairly lengthy and highly successful term as Minister of Public Works in the Oliver Cabinet have equipped him with a first hand knowledge of general requirement. At the same time the periodical refresher course will enable him to note with much more certainty the details with which he prefers to be thoroughly familiar.

For these and other obvious reasons Victoria finds a warm welcome for Dr. King. As the Cabinet Minister who presides over the largest spending department in the public service he will be told at every point he visits how a few hundred thousand dollars could be spent to advantage. To some of these requests he will be able to give a sympathetic ear and a little hope. Others will have to be noted for future reference—and quite a number of appeals will have to be forgotten in the public interest. These are the conditions, however, which add problems to the task of administering the portfolio of Public Works. But it is to be noted that Dr. King's estimates have been approved by the House of Commons with just about as little obstruction or controversy as those of any Minister occupying that position in recent history. Here is perhaps the most eloquent proof of his standing in Parliament. Nor is it surprising. During his occupancy of a similar portfolio in the more restricted field of provincial administration Dr. King demonstrated a capacity for the business of his office that won his policies warm support and not a little imitation in other parts of the country.

Observance of his businesslike administrative methods led the Prime Minister to invite Dr. King into the larger arena of public service. The Government leader at Ottawa was certainly not looking for a Minister who would consume Hansard by the ream. For Dr. King was seldom on his feet in the local Legislature unless he had something very definite to say. He apparently still believes that the general public prefers action on business lines to talk that builds no bridges and construets no roads. As we said before, what Parliament thinks of his administration is best reflected in the ease with which his estimates are passed.

JUST PURE SPITE.

We are now informed by Senator Crowe and Mr. C. H. Dickie, M. P., that the Upper Chamber upset the amendment to the Canada Temperance Act because of certain expressions which Mr. Manson used in his communication to the former Solicitor-General—and read to the members of the Senate.

Senator Crowe says the Attorney-General's suggestion that sinister influences were at work among the Senators was "the direct cause of the defeat" of the anti-import measure. Mr. Dickie declares that "many members of the Senate were very much hurt by the letter" and says "the impression prevailed that had not this letter come to light the Senate would have passed the bill."

It is interesting to learn the real cause of the Senate's action. It was not a desire to give the people an opportunity to express themselves at all. It was merely a childish retort to expressions that were perhaps not of the wisest selection, but which were merely a small and unimportant part of a communication designed to assist in obtaining Federal help towards eliminating the bootlegger in British Columbia.

The people of this Province will no doubt feel as grateful for the information that Senator Crowe and Mr. Dickie have made public as they will feel annoyed at the manner in which the Conservative members of the Senate refused a request which Mr. Manson made on their behalf.

A WISE COURSE.

In declaring itself against the cash bonus system the annual convention of the Great War Veterans' Association has followed a wise course of procedure. It is not to say that some problems of rehabilitation would not be simplified by a straight gift of money; but it requires no argument to convince the intelligent member of any ex-service men's organization that such a plan is impractical. And it is much better that the G. W. V. A. should re-affirm its opinion that every man who served in the Canadian Expeditionary Force should be assisted to an economic status equal to that which he would have enjoyed if he had not gone to the war.

No veteran wants charity. He considers that Parliament should invoke all the authority it requires to do what is necessary to give him the chance in civil life that he gave up without hesitation in the early days of the war. He very rightly argues that anything short of this is a penalty upon patriotism. And few will contend that he is wrong in his argument. Some Senators may declare that they have saved the country a good deal of money because of their interference with the pensions bill; some of the opponents of Dr. Beland's measure may argue that the Dominion President of the G. W. V. A. is absolutely satisfied with the changes made; but the fact remains that the people of Canada are not behind any objections that will deny the ex-service man the rights he has earned in the service of his country. These rights are obvious to most people.

LET OUR HEALTH BE KNOWN.

Our medical Health Officer is quite right when he says that health facts are good publicity. This city is the proud possessor of as clean a bill of health as could be found anywhere on the face of the globe. Certainly we should get the fullest possible advantage out of that fact. There is every reason why such a favorable report as Dr. Price is able to give should be either printed and circulated separately or else given ample prominence in the annual report of the City's business. For our part we are of the opinion that it would be highly profitable to give the document the importance it deserves by interspersing cold facts about our lowest infant mortality rate, and our comparative freedom from serious disease, with illustrations of beauty spots that make figures still easier to believe. For it must be remembered that public health is being understood by the people of this and other countries much more than it used to be. Residents looking for new places to live are rightly keen about these matters. And Victoria can boast about them.

CRIME DECREASING.

Canadian criminal statistics for the year 1922 should afford the people of this country considerable satisfaction. The details just issued by the official bureau at Ottawa indicate that the total number of cases tried by criminal courts throughout the Dominion in 1922 was 163,929 as compared with 182,720 in the preceding year—a decrease of over ten per cent. Convictions declined from 177,773 in 1921 to 158,339 during the last twelve months under review.

Ontario heads the list of provinces for the number of convictions of drunkenness, breaches of the Liquor Acts, illicit stills and offences against the Narcotic Drug Act. On the other hand it is shown that there has been a general decrease in drunkenness throughout the country with the most marked decline in British Columbia. Comparison of Ontario and this Province in this respect does not suggest such an anomalous condition as might appear at first glance. When one takes into consideration the tremendous difference in population it is not remarkable that a "dry" province should disclose more intemperate conditions than a province in which there is less restriction. At the same time it is gratifying to learn that British Columbia's returns for drunkenness are less in 1922 than they were during the previous year.

While this Province reveals a decrease of fifty-five per cent. in drunkenness; Nova Scotia comes next with over 30 per cent.; Ontario with over 30 per cent. and Quebec with a little over 28. New Brunswick decreased by over 13 per cent., and Alberta by 12 per cent. Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and the Yukon all showed increases and illicit stills increased in almost every province.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Report now has it that there will be an early agreement at Lausanne. That is to say the delegates confidently expect to be home for Christmas.

Germany is going to buy $50,000,000 worth of grain from Russia. We presume the rolling stock is being got ready to cart the marks to Moscow.

It is said that some wealthy families in Switzerland have kept cheeses for more than a century. We shall take more than ordinary precaution if they should escape and come out this way.

It is now expected that France will ratify all the treaties entered into at the Washington Naval Disarmament Conference. One would suppose that the French taxpayer would second the motion with both hands and feet.

Collecting votes by aeroplane is a fairly costly business in Ontario. For each one polled in this fashion the cost was twenty dollars. Of course we have heard of votes selling for quite large sums before now. But there were no propellers used in those cases.

While France is talking about her need for still more aeroplanes Great Britain—the republic's chief creditor—gives to our neighbor Government bonds to the tune of $4,600,000,000 in return for the cancelled I. O. U. which she gave when the huge war borrowings were made. This is just a new study in relativity.

OUR CONTEMPORARIES

LIKE ONE-HORSE SHAY.

Montreal Gazette:—A motorist has secured damages for an accident due to the disrepair of a wooden bridge built near Montreal in 1793. The fathers built sturdily, but it is asking too much to expect that their handiwork will last for ever.

CONSERVING FOREST ASSETS.

Nanaimo Free Press:—Canada has lost close to half a billion dollars since the beginning of the war by allowing the shipment of raw pulpwood to the United States to be manufactured into paper in American mills and by American workmen. This in itself is a strong argument for the imposition of an embargo on the export of Canadian pulpwood and suggests the need for not only a thorough but an early survey of the situation by the Dominion government. The forest problem of Canada is not acute but it might easily become acute if fires, insects and cutting are allowed to denude the forest without proper reforestation programmes.

Other People's Views

The publication or rejection of articles is a matter entirely in the discretion of the Editor. No responsibility is assumed by the paper for MSS. submitted to the Editor.

WANTS INVESTIGATION.

To the Editor:—Would it not be advisable if the authorities were to order an investigation in the public interest, to try to discover the cause of the exodus from Canada of her citizens and sons. Here in B. C. the flight is toward California, but the whole country from Quebec West, seems to be losing its people. Fishermen from Scotland, and immigrants from English towns, do not replace Canada's sons, nor do northern Europeans, strangers to a new country, fill the empty chairs in Canadian homes. If there was a return prospect in view of benefit to the prodicals, optimism might be encouraged, but that is not at present justified. Various reasons are assigned for the cause of present conditions here, and the United States is not free from depression in some lines, and some writers give reason therefor. Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, says: "It is my belief that economic injustice, and autocratic powers, in the control of our financial system, are at the bottom of all our troubles.

To this must be added the beef bloc, the coal bloc, the sugar bloc, the tobacco bloc and millers' bloc. These have reached a position of economic power, beyond the dreams of kings, and is now able to levy a tax of excess profits on the people of our country, which it collects without let or hindrance." If Senator Brookhart is right, then the question is: Does this condition apply to Canada also? When we see our neighbors quitting business and empty houses multiplying we naturally think there is something wrong with the present system. A country as full of natural wealth as this is, vast forests of valuable timber, great water powers and hydro-electric possibilities which if utilized would run the Province's trains and allow the people cheaper coal. But is it not a fact these great resources are filed on and kept unused, and the water, the source of the power runs by unused, and these blessings furnished by the Great Architect go to waste at the pleasure of the system and might as well not be there as far as the common people are concerned. It is merely a question. Is it so? or not so, and if Senator Brookhart is right in the United States, does the same conditions apply in Canada.

DO SPIRITS RETURN?

To the Editor:—I notice that quite a number of Victoria people are worrying over the question as to whether spirits return. As they are not likely to settle the question for some time it might help matters if I quote the opinion of Professor Chas. Richet, who occupies the chair of physiology in the University of Paris, is a member of the Institute of France and considered the first authority in Europe on psychic phenomena. He says:

"While there is not one person, roughly speaking, in twenty thousand with subjective lucidity, there is certainly not one in twenty millions capable of objective manifestations. There have been few indeed of the latter variety to my knowledge: Home, Florence Cook, Mme. d'Esperance, Miss Golligher and Kluski. The United States, though their people are of the positive type, are, curiously enough, infested with charlatans. There is in America an industry, almost a school, of fraud in connection with spiritism. Nevertheless, the best subjective medium of the day, and perhaps of all time, is an American, Mme. Piper.

"The powers of a medium are a gift of nature. They can never be acquired, and rarely developed. A great medium contains what can be described as a person within a person."

"La Rochefoucald said: 'Whatever discoveries we make in the domain of amour propre, we find unknown lands.' It is the same with science. For my part, I am as severe in accepting evidence as a judge who is trying a man for his life. I cannot accept as proved that we have a life hereafter, nor do I attach credit to the conversations of mediums with the spirits of the dead. There is no evidence whatever to support either conclusion. But I consider as certain the existence of (1) cryptesthesia, or lucidity, or telepathy, and (2) certain materializations—very rare—notably of the medium Eusapia Paladino, who produced a hand which I held for twenty seconds. Mme. Curie and two other persons of great scientific importance were present at the time."

"It is an entire fallacy to imagine that the occultists of bygone times excelled those of to-day in any way. We know more of such things than they knew—infinitely more. Moreover, in my view, we know that our discoveries refer to natural phenomena. There is no magic or anything of that sort. There is no mysticism in it. There are no spirits."

According to Sir Oliver Lodge, the answer to the question "What does the word 'lethe' remind you of?" asked Frederic Myers (who was dead) convinced him that the spirit of Myers survived the tomb.

When you have two men of the mental calibre of Richet and Lodge devoting years to the study of a subject and arriving at opposite conclusions it behoves a lot of carping wiseacres who have not studied the subject at all to "Be still and know."

A POOR EXCUSE.

They met after a lapse of many years. The recognition was mutual and their greetings were cordial.

"How lovely to see you again. Why, you've scarcely altered a bit."

"So glad, and you, too, are hardly changed. Let's see; how long it it since we met last?"

"It must be ten years."

"Time flies. And why have you never called to see me?"

Amusing Incident at Empress Hotel Yesterday Discomfited Bridegroom

June is proverbially the month for brides, and as a natural sequence July is the month for honeymoons. When it is announced that "the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Coast points" it may usually be assumed that Victoria is one of the "points" indicated, for this city is the mecca of many of the newly-weds who plight their troth on the Mainland of British Columbia. In fact much of the vaunted tourist traffic through this city consists of brides and bridegrooms on the initial stage of their voyage through the uncharted seas of matrimonial bliss.

The Empress Hotel houses many of the honeymooning couples. So many have made their sojourn at this popular hostelry that the staff have acquired the knack of distinguishing the blushing bride and bashful groom in spite of the disguise of insouciance often adopted by the newly-weds. But even the hardened office staff felt a wave of pity yesterday for a luckless bridegroom who doubtless was secure in the feeling that no-one suspected his very recent arrival at the state of connubial bliss. When pulling out his wallet to make a payment at the hotel desk, the action disturbed a veritable avalanche of snowy rice, which tinkled on the floor and gave rise to a broad and understanding grin on the face of the clerk and visitors in the vicinity, to the discomfiture of the victim!

IMPRESSED WITH DISPLAY

John Hutchison, F.R.H.S., the well known rock and Alpine plant expert, has returned to Victoria after spending several days on business in Vancouver, and attending the Vancouver Horticultural Society's annual flower show. Mr. Hutchison was much impressed with exhibits at the show, where some of the finest roses he has ever seen were exhibited. The show, he says, demonstrated increasing interest among Victoria and Vancouver people in rare plants.

And yet in this bright era of sex equality you will notice few portraits of grooms in the rotogravure section.

IN WOMAN'S DOMAIN

Was Much Impressed By Social Service While in East Recently

With Juvenile Court matters looming largely to the fore in Victoria, considerable interest attaches to the observations made along these lines by Miss Crease, late president of the Local Council of Women, who has just returned to the city after an extended visit in the East. Miss Crease was one of the pioneers in the movement which is now culminating in an active campaign for the fullest operation of the court in this city and in order to be "au fait" with the subject she seized the opportunity while in the East to visit the court at Toronto, which is perhaps the largest and most adequate in the Dominion.

While it is true that there is not a woman judge of the Juvenile Court in Toronto, the present incumbent, Judge Mott is ideal for the position, according to Miss Crease, who was given ample opportunity to form her own opinions on the subject in the course of several attendances at the Court. Two full sessions were attended by Miss Crease, this including the handling of about a dozen cases. It was a very special privilege, for the public and press is rigorously excluded. Only the persons making the charge, the child offender, his or her parents or guardians, indeed, only those intimately associated with the case are allowed in court.

Sympathetic understanding of childhood is possessed in the fullest measure by Judge Mott. One case brought before him included a number of small boys of from eight to ten years who were charged with playing ball in the streets. The informant concerned himself only with the view that the boys were making a nuisance of themselves, but the judge looked at it from the point of view of the boys. He gently but firmly showed them that by playing ball in the streets they were breaking a law destined for their own protection, and reminded them of a small boby who was killed by an automobile while doing as they had been doing. In this way he soothed their boyish indignation, and impressed them with the danger of their proceeding.

Another boy charged with stealing, a second offence, was placed on probation for a month, with orders to report weekly. In this time his case would be investigated so that at the end of the month the magistrate would be guided in his adjudication by a knowledge of the boy's history and environment. Still another case was remanded, pending examination for the mental history of the child.

Men and women probation officers work in conjunction with this court, while a trained psychiatrist and a doctor are on the staff to make mental and physical examinations of the children. Miss Crease was much impressed with the whole atmosphere of the Court, and commented upon the simple furnishing which held no suggestion of the ordinary courtroom and dock. She also visited the detention home, which although far from ideal was adequate for the present purpose.

The situation of the Court also had much to commend it. It is in the basement of the Registry Building, and so placed that children are not marked as delinquents to the casual passer-by.

One of the probation officers, a returned soldier who had been with the work for the past three years, explained the system to Miss Crease and commented upon the predominance of boys in the juvenile court cases. The detention home is invariably full of boys, but the girls are usually limited to four in number.

A probable explanation of this anomaly was given by Miss Mohr, the president of the "Big Sister" organization, who suggested that insufficient was being done to assist girls who make the first downward step. The Big Sisters are a volunteer organization of women who, while having no connection with the juvenile court operation, yet have their headquarters in the same building. There is a counterpart in the "Big Brother" organization in which Rotarians and Kiwanians take an active part. These men and women hold themselves in readiness to play the part of big brother or sister to a juvenile delinquent, doing what is really follow-up work of the cases when asked to do so by the judge. Miss Crease also had an opportunity of seeing the women's court in operation under Judge Dr. Margaret Patterson. In this court also the Big Sisters proved invaluable in looking after women where necessary. Toronto has a number of women on its police force and their work is well spoken of.

Social service matters are well handled in Toronto generally. The Welfare Bureau runs a confidential exchange which has proved a great success since its inception. The coal shortage of last year with its resultant acute distress led the city authorities to co-operate with the Welfare Bureau in the matter of distributing relief. This necessitated the establishment of the confidential exchange in order to prevent one or more organizations "poking their noses" into the affairs of poor families. The Neighborhood Workers also do excellent work along the lines of social service, and it is interesting to note that the president of the organization gave Miss Crease the highest commendation of Miss Snyder, Victoria's social service secretary, as a competent case worker, in which branch of the work she shone in Toronto.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By HELEN KENDALL

A LIVING LAWN MOWER

The holiday guests, who had come from town to spend the day at the small suburban place of their friends, came out upon the lawn and gave shrieks of delight.

"Why, there's a sheep! We didn't know you kept a flock of baabaas!" they exclaimed.

The host and hostess grinned proudly.

"That's our animated lawn-mower," they imparted. "And we don't keep a flock—only two, mother and child. Would you believe that this smooth velvet lawn of ours hasn't had a lawn-mower shoved over it all Summer? Sheep can crop grass as short as the sharpest mower ever made, and they are decorative besides, we think. At least every one who comes along stops to admire the pastoral scene presented by our peaceful grazers.

"But—but aren't they a nuisance, on so small a place?" inquired the guests.

"Not at all. They are the cleanest of animals, you know, with very little odor and leaving no noticeable untidiness in their wake. They never have to be fed, as they live solely on the grass, and we tether them only to keep them out of the flower-beds. In fact, we tether the mother only, as her lamb keeps close by her side.

At night the mother is untied and follows pleasantly to the little house built for her to sleep in. Children all love the lamb, and come to see it and feed it bits of bread, for it is very tame."

"Oh, we must have one!" the guests turned to each other, "just as soon as we come out to live in the country," they added.

"Well, you can't have one only," said the host, "for a sheep will not stay alone happily unless it has been brought up entirely away from other sheep. But you can have two with as little trouble as one, and they are company for each other. Why people have always thought you could have sheep only on a big farm I cannot understand. They are less trouble than many dogs, and are efficient as well as a charming part of the landscape."

GOVERNMENT HOUSE FETE IS POSTPONED

Owing to the inclement weather the garden party which was to have been held at Government House this afternoon in aid of the Victoria branch of the Navy League of Canada, has been postponed until next Saturday. As the cruiser, H. H. S. Curlew, will be in port on that date, the affair should gain added interest by its postponement, for a big contingent of the "men in blue" is expected to lend assistance and support to the fete.

NATIONAL STATUS OF MARRIED WOMEN TO BE CONSIDERED

Council of Agriculture Asks for Personal Naturalization

Winnipeg, July 7.—Requesting Premier King to take up the matter of the personal naturalization of married women at the forthcoming Imperial Conference, the executive committee of the Canadian Council of Agriculture has communicated with the Premier, pointing out some of the injustices alleged to exist in the present Naturalization Act.

A resolution urging personal naturalization, adopted by the Council previously, was submitted by the Government to Thomas Mulvey, Under-secretary of State, it is stated. Mr. Mulvey takes the view that the Naturalization Act is actually a treaty between the United Kingdom and the Dominions.

PENNILESS BARONS FIND MATRIMONIAL CHANCES SLENDER

Berlin, June 18.—International match-makers, the men and women who used to do a thriving business marrying off titles and high social position of wealthy plebians, have been hard hit by the war and the resultant financial distress. Marriage among humbler folks all over Europe has increased under the distress, but not so with the leaders of fashion.

June, the month of weddings, has not produced the large number of society weddings which always characterized the month in pre-war days. This is especially noticeable in central Europe. Fashionable churches, hotels, cafes, dressmaking shops, jewelry shops and flower shops do not show the old-time June activity.

Foreign tourists are not visiting central Europe in large numbers, and the residents of central Europe are not traveling abroad. The romances which used to begin on ocean trips are fewer and fewer. American and English women with comfortable fortunes are not wandering about as they did in old times. Travel is not so inviting as it used to be, and families from the lands of good exchange apparently have little desire to expose their daughters to the sort of tragedies which have grown out of many international marriages recently. Titles which carry with them bankrupt estates are apparently at a great discount. The uncertainty of titles to baronial possessions makes ambitious mothers hesitate. They have seen too many penniless princes and counts and barons rattling about Paris and other European capitals, trying to market their family tree.

But the professional match-makers have not given up hope and are still active. Vienna has a number of such matrimonial agents who are hard at work, and with the revival of Vienna which has come about as the result of foreign assistance, their opportunities are improving. Vienna's old gaiety is coming back. Its fashions attract foreign women, and music lovers flock to its opera. Tourists who visit Italy also go to Austria in large numbers.

In Berlin commercial match-makers are having a harder time. The decline in travel and upset political conditions work against them to a greater degree than in any of the other European capitals, and the failure of war hatreds to pass away makes it diffucult to do anything with principals who were enemies in the great struggle.

One professional marriage agent, a titled woman who was once a great success in her profession, is constantly about the prominent hotels in Berlin, and she has not lost her ability to meet nearly all promising visitors. But she has collected a commission only once in the last twelve months.

The agencies which advertise extensively and arrange marriages on a strictly business basis, without social trimmings, are faring far better than the agents who specialize in aristocrats. Throughout central Europe the daily papers are filled with the advertisements of marriage agencies which describe their clients in great detail, give their financial status and requirements, leaving only the names unmentioned.

Queen Alexandra Review. — The first July meeting of the above review was held on Thursday evening, Commander Mrs. Bloor in the chair. There was a good attendance of members present, and also visitors from both Victoria reviews, and two ladies from Edmonton. The members were pleased to see Past Commander Mrs. Galbraith back, after her trips to Los Angeles and Vancouver. It was decided to make it a rule that meetings on social nights always commence at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Laing, Junior Commander, reported that she had received one name, for the cradle roll, but was hoping to receive members for both the cradle roll and junior review.

The review closed in due form, after which an ice cream social was held, Miss Reid winning the silk stockings in the guessing competition. The evening closed with a dance.

KIWANIANS STAGE IMPROMPTU DANCE

Entertain I. O. D. E. Picnickers at Delightful Hamsterley Resort

An unexpected but happy meeting of members of the Marguerite Chapter, I.O.D.E., who had been picnicking at Telegraph Bay, and Kiwanians returning from their concert at the Sidney cadet camp, made A. H. Pease's delightful new Hamsterley resort at Elk Lake the scene of a jolly dancing party last night.

The Kiwanians, who had been entertaining the cadets with music, had brought along the Kiwanis club orchestra, which decided to stop at Hamsterley for refreshments. When the Marguerite Chapter party, about a dozen members and their friends, reached Hamsterley on their way home they found the Kiwanians already enjoying themselves as guests of Mr. Pease. The orchestra, under Kiwanian Bill Maynard, promptly started a snappy dance programme, and Mr. Pease cleared the floor of his spacious tea rooms. Aided by a big gramaphone, the Kiwanians continued their programme until midnight, to the delight of the other guests.

Many tourists on their way out to Sidney and back to the city, attracted by the music, stopped outside the hospitable Hamsterley establishment and enjoyed the Kiwanians' offerings.

Yesterday's picnic of Marguerite Chapter members was arranged by a committee of the organization under Miss Marguerite Campbell, Miss Helen Macdonald, Miss Christine Ross, Miss Katie Collison and Miss Margaret McVittie. Mrs. David Miller acted as chaperone.

ROYAL VICTORIA

The New York Herald, after reviewing "The Prince and the Pauper," which is the attraction again to-day at the Royal, makes the following remarks about the photoplay:

"It will be welcomed by all who revelled in the great American's descriptions of the life of the period, while there is plenty of action for those who want their romance on the run. This fidelity to a masterpiece, which succeeds because it makes no bumptious attempt to improve on it, has been due largely to the director, Alexander Kardo, hitherto unknown here. He has preserved the theme of the original and reproduced its spirit amazingly. There is an air of imagination about the picture and the atmosphere of the period without making it look like a personally conducted tour.

"And praise be! they have used a boy and not a girl for the dual role. And he looks like a real boy; one who would be an expert in playing mud pies. Rarely does Tibi Lubin seem to be camera conscious.

"The producers have invested the picture with a very democratic doctrine—which would have tickled the old humorist immensely—that any little slum boy who revels in mud can fill a King's job acceptably once he has learned which fork to use.

"The cast on the whole upholds this dogma with lifelike characterization, particularly the player who portrays Miles Hendon, and who might easily be a cousin of Don Quixote."

AMUSEMENTS TO-DAY

Playhouse—"A Marriage of Convenience."
Royal—"The Prince and the Pauper."
Capitol—"The Heart Raider."
Dominion—"The Christian."
Columbia—"Jazzmania."

CAPITOL

The Paramount production of "The Heart Raider," with Agnes Ayers in the stellar role, has proven one of the most popular photoplays exhibited so far this season at the Capitol Theatre. This picture has been playing to capacity audiences since its premier.

The scenes of the story are laid in the vicinity of Palm Beach and Miami, Fla. It is a fine melo-dramatic comedy, adapted by Jack Cunningham from a story by H. R. Durant and Julie Herne. Mahlon Hamilton has the leading man's role, and the supporting cast includes, among other prominent screen artists, Charles Ruggles, Frazer Coulter, Marie Burke and Charles Riegal.

The star, in the role of Muriel Gray, is, according to those who have seen the picture, unusually charming and vivacious and especially suited for the art, one of a typical modern girl. The theme of the story deals with the conquest by this girl of a confirmed bachelor. Her methods of approach, meeting and final carrying out of her threat to her father that he would have this young man for a son-in-law within three weeks are real laugh provokers. Good advice to movie fans is to see the picture and be convinced.

DOMINION

There are songs without number which tell what may be found at the heart of a rose, but it took Richard Dix to think of a real novelty.

Mae Busch had a birthday while the Goldwyn company filming "The Christian" showing at the Dominion this week, was on location in London. You must first know that asparagus is Mae's favorite product of the soil, and that she orders it on every occasion. So when Dix and Chas van Enger, cinematographer, were giving her a dinner at the Hotel Cecil, the "surprise event" was the arrival of a page with a huge bunch of American beauty roses. Mae exclaimed joyfully, and buried her face in the bouquet, where it came in contact with—a generous bundle of raw asparagus!

But Mae was not to be done. She turned over the vegetable to the waiter, with instructions that the chef serve asparagus omelette for the whole company the next morning.

COLUMBIA

"Jazzmania" is the title of the latest photoplay in which Robert Z. Leonard will present Mae Murray, and in it the popular star has more opportunities for histrionic and costume display than has yet fallen to her in the pictures she has made. Her new Metro photoplay is scheduled for presentation again at the Columbia Theatre, where it will begin a run of 3 days.

Miss Murray's new picture is partly costume play. The star is seen as the queen of the Balkan kingdom which is beset by enemies. A revolution is impending; and she flees to America. Her love of novelty wins her an ardent lover of jazz; and when a former subject advises her return to her country to rescue women and children who are being mistreated, she decides to go back. She rescues the kingdom and puts it into a republic, where jazz and Madame President and her subjects good humor.

SLEF LOST SHS" WILL BE SHOWN AT ROYAL

The of Lost Ships," a Maurice Turneroduction which is coming tothe ll Theatre on Monday next fo a day engagement, discloses new pollities of screen grandeur and be. It is a story to thrill th mdase. It is a fine, human, Americade story, breathing wioles ideals and fraught with a spiri adventure.

The ie is daring in its nature nd thak of the producer overwhelmin its exactions on the imagin, but Tourneur has again proved elf the master that he s by ing this tremendous story, n ades, sensational and remarkible vization.

ndcast is worthy of the story. AD. Nilsson plays the role of shpwrecked society girl, Milton Si the hero, a condemned but hat man, and Frank Campeau ilson, the detective. Others of mance in the excellent company alter Long, Bert Woodruff, A Herring and Irene Hunt.

"LS FOR SALE" WILL BE SHOWN AT THE CAPITOL

m girl with big gray eyes under s of brown hair applied for a job as offices of the Goldwyn company New York just about a year ago. had been forced to leave a small town a dramatic show then playing adway because of the loss of her ce. She could earn a slim living as an art's model, but she was burning with ition to really get ahead.

Th girl, whose name was Eleanor Boardman, was only one among a thousand or more seekers "for a chance"—but she made good.

Sh ent from that "bit," which was in Bert Hughes' "Gimme!" to Marshall Nelan's "The Strangers' Banquet" where she developed a rather smart art into one of importance. Hughallin then selected her to play Amy Sedley in his "Vanity Fair;" and en Rupert Hughes took her again this time for the leading role—in "Souls for Sale," which is to be shown at the Capitol next week.

Th Miss Boardman's history to the le of this writing. She was playing the lead in "Souls for Sale" before the first picture in which she ever had ap had even been shown to the ic. She had no "pull;" but she have beauty, charm, and that inexplicable quality called "personality," ied in proper proportions with her ir flagging zeal for getting ahead. iss Boardman's career has only un. She is really a "new face" on screen. But there is a lesson in s Boardman, not only for young men everywhere, but also for human ng of both sexes and all ages. She's of those individuals that, apently barred by a defect, in her case speaking voice, from success in the ct career she had chosen, rose to and undreamed of heights in another medium of expression.

iss Boardman is climbing the ladder; d in the leading role in "Souls for le," it might be mentioned that she t more than a deep breath from its imate rung. Stardom is the only hievement left her; and, as the case nds, she has passed many persons o already have been "starred."

Among many interesting features about this latest production of Hughes, not the least is the appealing figure of its leading woman. She's well worth seeing—and thinking about.

GEORGIA MINSTRELS COMING TO PANTAGES NEXT WEEK

The Famous Georgia Minstrels are due for an appearance at the Pantages on Tuesday bringing a company of forty fun-makers, musicians, singers and dancers and fifteen vaudeville acts in a programme entirely different from anything ever seen in a minstrel performance.

That minstrelsy is again becoming the popular amusement of the American stage is shown by the crowded houses being given all similar organizations.

There must be something to attract people to the theatre from the fact tthe famous Georgia Minstrels have weathered the storms of over thirty-three years continuous travel—there must certainly be merit back of all this, and while they have the regulation band parade, it is a frequent thing that when the company arrives in town, they find the seats are all sold in advance. The reputation of the company must have a whole lot to do with this. The engagement is for three days beginning with a matinee on Tuesday at 3 p.m., and there will be matinee performances on Wednesday and Thursday, and two performances at night at 7 and 9.

THEATRE CHAIN PLAN TO BE ABANDONED

Directors Advise Shareholders of Trans-Canada Theatres to Arrange Liquidation

Montreal, July 7.—Decision has been announced by the directors of the Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., which for some years past has controlled theatres and franchises for a chain of attractions across Canada, to put the affairs of the company into liquidation owing to its heavy and increasing losses.

A letter to this effect has been sent to the shareholders, calling a special general meeting of the shareholders for July 16 next, to authorize the liquidation, proxies for which are made out in the names of H. W. Beauclerk and Henry Joseph.

This marks the conclusion of an ambitious project started in 1919 for better theatrical enterprise in Canada with the introduction of leading British stage attractions.

The Story of Our Rocks

By ROBERT CONNELL.

XI.

A mile and a half this side of Jordan River, by the coast, a creek falls over a sandstone ledge and loses itself in the coarse shingle below as it runs seaward. Climbing up to the surface of the ledge you find yourself in the bed of Sandstone Creek. It owes its name, undoubtedly, to the peculiar nature of this bed. While most creeks and rivers have sandy or gravelly bottoms, this one runs over the naked sandstone, falling over a succession of small ledges a foot or two in height, and in the dry season confined for the most part to a narrow winding channel cut in the rock. There is an entire absence of abrasive material, except such as may be carried in the stream itself when increased by rainfall. Ordinarily its waters are crystal clear, and in many places the vivid green of mosses can be seen lining the channel. Above the bridge which crosses the creek a very short distance from its mouth the waters divide or, more correctly, two streams unite at this point. Following the eastern one, a few hundred yards of terraced course brings the visitor to a circular space enclosed at its upper half by overhanging cliffs some twenty or twenty-five feet high, where the maidenhair flourishes in the cool, damp shade. From the summit of this the creek descends in a graceful waterfall, of no size it is true, but of peculiar delicacy of form, the water dividing and subdividing in a manner so suggestive of a fern that I have named it, in lack of any other name, Maidenhair Fall. Above this point boulders of sandstone are met with, and the terraces continue until, half a mile or so further up, another waterfall stops the way. Beyond this we have not yet gone.

Oysters and Limpets

The Sandstone Creek beds extend along the seashore for some distance eastwards. They are broken through by a promontory of dark basalt curiously carved by the waves. Near this a huge squarish mass of basalt which broke off from the old volcanic heights stands on the shore imbedded in the sandstone as in a cement. The sedimentary rocks are worn into caves and ledges which project boldly into the sea. On one of these ledges a baldheaded eagle had its lair when Messrs. Cornwall, Downes, and I were there last year. The whole place is rich in fossils. Conspicuous among them are large oysters, whose massive valves, strangely enough, are not as easy to release from their stony prison as are other and more delicate shells. Pectens, the scallops of the ancient pilgrims, with their radiated form and curious ears, are not infrequent. There are abundant limpet-like shells, but most interesting of all is a Keyhole limpet, which is very similar to a species found at the present time off the Californian coast. The specimens are very delicate, indeed are little more than limy casts, but the radiating lines are beautifully shown, as well as the large opening at the summit. It is a striking sight to one stands under the shelter of a large cave to see above a roof studded with fossil shells, and its material hardened by the lime of these tenements as to resist in so marked a degree the wear and tear of the ocean, which has eaten into the softer underlying rock.

New Shells Up Creek

Most interesting, perhaps, of all have been the discoveries made up the eastern branch of the Sandstone. Shells not met with elsewhere in the Sooke beds here greet the geologist's eye as he lays open the rock with his hammer. A new Septifer, a shell allied to the common mussel, appears among its more numerous and common relatives. Great numbers of branchiopods are also found at this locality. The brachiopods are a dwindling family. In Mesozoic times they were the predominant partner, so to speak, but since then they have been ousted by the true mollusks. They have two valves, like a clam or other bivalve, but the plan of these, as well as of the animal itself, is quite different. A line drawn from the apex of the shell to the base divides it and the animal into two symmetrical halves. The animal has a long arm-like attachment by which it moors itself to some hard substance. In the brachiopods of stan'stone, as in those of our present-day coastline, the arm passes through a hole at the apex of the larger shell, and as this shell bends over the other, the whole appearance is not unlike that of an ancient lamp. They are therefore sometimes known as lampshells. They must have been very plentiful at this point on the Tertiary shores. They are of small size, so far as they are yet known, by no means as large as our modern local one. The beautiful internal arrangement of the arms, with their hard supporting arches, makes the brachiopods objects of great interest. But, as I have said, they are a vanishing remnant of a once mighty folk. Species allied to the Calliostomas, the beautiful-mouthed, as the name means, are also in some number, and the pearly iridescence so characteristic of this group is frequently seen on the little shells. One specimen of an interesting shell, related to the Scala or Staircase shell of the present day, has also been found by Mr. Cornwall. It has preserved its white porcellanous appearance which, together with the conspicuous transverse ribs, gives it a striking appearance.

The Carmanah Beds

Further west, past Port San Juan, are found sandstones to which has been given the name of the Carmanah beds. These I have never been fortunate enough to visit, and so know of only by reading and report. They contain many interesting fossils, differing considerably from those found to the East. Dr. Weaver, of the Washington Geological Survey, thinks they are somewhat older. For the present no positive decision can be given. The matter awaits the research which perhaps will be given by enthusiastic amateurs rather than by government geologists whose interests are necessarily mainly economic. If the Carmanah beds are older than the Sooke it must be due to a tilting of the rocks towards the southeast, by which the older beds have been brought to something like the present level of the younger ones, the latter having been worn down and removed by consequence of their greater exposure.

Enough has been said, I am sure, to show that in these Tertiary sandstones of Sooke there is a most important field of study and one provocative of much thought. So far there has only been a scraping of the surface. For many years to come those who are sufficiently interested in geology to find in it the most delightful incentive to a holiday and who are learning or have learnt to find the geological hammer one of the best of recreational instruments, will have in this hinterland of Victoria a field of inexhaustible interest. The Pacific breezes, the rich and varied vegetation, the wild and rugged coast scenery, the distant view of purple mountain and hill, will each add its contribution to the total impression. But apart from all these, the contemplation of these memorials of the far-off past and the consideration of their place in that wonderful drama we call life will supply a mental exhilaration which will in itself constitute a genuine holiday from common cares and things.

LINIMENT FOUND TO BE POWERFUL GERMICIDE
Originally, Absorbine Jr. was sold only as a pain reliever and an embrocation. It was quickly discovered that the liniment was positive death to all forms of germ life, and it is now used as a mouth wash, for wound dressing and for all disinfecting purposes.
Another surprise was yet in store. A Wm. Pratt of Springfield, Mass., applied Absorbine Jr. to a varicose vein to relieve the intense pain. Not only did the pain leave, but he noticed every day the swollen vein becoming smaller. The treatment was kept up and, today, Mr. Pratt's legs, though he has never used anything else on them, are as smooth as when he was a boy. It has now been proved that Absorbine Jr. is an actual specific for varicose veins, leg ulcers, boils, pyorrhoea and a number of other ailments and injuries besides that for which it was first prepared. Nothing serves so many every day purposes and nothing is better entitled to its place in every home. When it is needed, it will be needed in a hurry. Don't wait for someone to be hurt. WILL ELECTRIFY CALAMITY POINT

Submarine Cable Will Be Laid and Light and Bell Run By Electricity

Calamity Point signal at Vancouver will be greatly improved according to Col. A. W. R. Wilby, agent of Marine here. He was at Vancouver this week to arrange for the electrification of the Calamity Point signals.

A submarine cable will be laid, and the light and bell will be operated by electricity. This will mean an infallible fog bell and a much more powerful light.

Col. Wilby states that he expects the work will be completed by early in September. It all depends on the delivery of the cable. Whether the connection will be made from the north or south shore of Burrard Inlet is as yet undecided.

A line from Brockton Point would enable the light and bell to be operated by the force at that station. One from the north shore would be much less expensive than from the south shore. Ottawa is now deciding which would be the most economical in the long run.

SAN FRANCISCO SHIPPING

San Francisco, July 7.—Charles H. Spear, president of the Harbor Board, in a conference with a Chamber of Commerce committee to-day, declared that additional docks were necessary here to handle the rapidly increasing traffic through this port. He said the Harbor Commissioners were considering a building programme.

The Key Route ferry San Leandro, built in San Pedro, arrived here yesterday under convoy of the Red Stack tug Sea Ranger. The tug Storm King will sail to-day for Portland with the Peter Kerr in tow. From Portland the tug will proceed to Seattle for operation on Puget Sound.

FALL GRAIN RATES

Ottawa, July 7.—No complaints have been received by the Department of Trade and Commerce to the effect that lake shipping companies have declined to quote rates for the Fall grain business.

G. S. Wrong, chief of the transportation division of the bureau of statistics, left Ottawa last night for Fort William, where he will confere with the grain commissioners to the end of instituting a working system by which shippers may file tariffs in accordance with the new Act. It was stated at the Department last night that the Government wishes to facilitate relations between the transportation companies and shippers rather than to read the law too strictly.

The freight rates, which, by the new legislation, must be filed with the Board of Grain Commissioners, will be posted at the Winnipeg grain exchange as well as Fort William.

LOCH GOIL ON SUNDAY

The Royal Mail motorship Loch Goil will reach port early on Sunday morning from Tacoma to discharge a small amount of European freight and load 2,000 cases of whalemeat for the homeward voyage.

New York, July 7.—A wreath was cast on the ocean yesterday from the steamship Leviathan, bound from New York to Europe, in memory of the soldiers, sailors and marines who lost their lives in the world war, a radio message to the United States Shipping Board said.

Secretary of Labor Davis spoke at the ceremony, which was attended by the 1,792 passengers and the ship's officers. Mrs. Charles Augustin Robinson, of this city, a member of Antilles Post Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, cast the wreath on the sea and read a prayer.

Soundings

Not a few were surprised when the President Jackson docked here from the Orient to find aboard J. Newey, who for many years was chief steward on the Grand Trunk steamer Prince George in the B. C. coast service. Mr. Newey has just completed his first round voyage to the Orient as chief steward of the Admiral-Oriental liner.

The Jackson Morning Anvil is the name of the mimeographed news sheet that is produced most mornings aboard the trans-Pacific steamship President Jackson while at sea. It follows in the wake of The McKinley Morning Kick.

From Capt. John Griffith down all the officers of the President Jackson were in "whites" when the ship reached port yesterday from the Far East. It was warm yesterday.

"Cup of Rum" was the designation given by oingshoremen to a lumber-laden freighter which to-day passed out to sea.

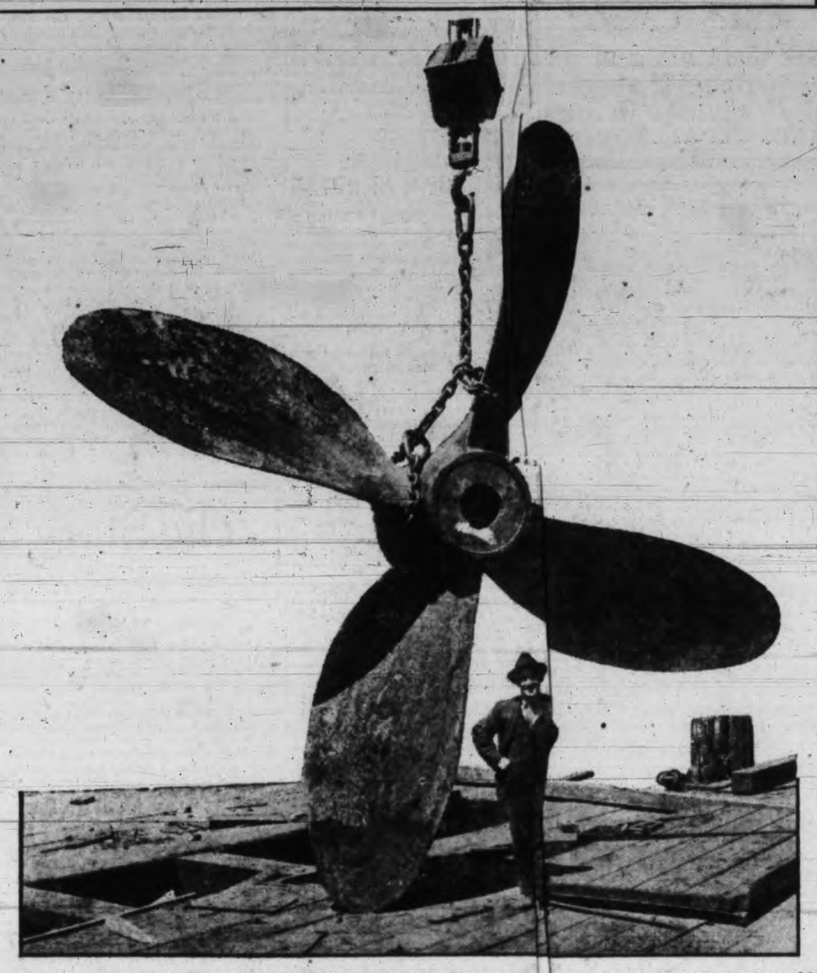

The vessel was the SS. Cuprum, operated by the Admiral-Oriental Line, which passed out from Vancouver early to-day bound for the Orient.

RECORD FOR BERENGARIA.

The Cunard liner Berengaria recently created a new "day's run" record for herself, her huge hull of 52,226 tons having been driven through the water for a day's run of 582 miles at an average speed of 24.96 knots.

The record for a day's run is held by the Mauretania, which has reached an average speed of 27.04 knots, while the second place is held by the Majestic with an average of 25.43 knots.

MASSIVE PRODUCT OF VICTRIA INDUSTRY

Cast iron propeller turned out by the plant of Yarrows, Ltd., at Esquimalt, for the Norwegian steamship Golden Gate, which last week was drydocked here for the installation of the huge new wheel.

The propeller weighed nine and a half tons and measured eighteen feet in diameter. It was moulded, cast, machined and installed on the vessel within nine days of the order being placed.

"Close-up" of Empress of Russia's Commander; Capt. A. J. Hosken, R.N.R.

"The One Eight O Meridian"

By CAPT. A. J. HOSKEN, R. N. R.
Commander R. M. S. Empress of Russia

In sailing West to the Orient lands,
The fickle clock turns back its hands.
Thus as you cross the mighty main,
Each day a little time you gain.

The time you gain you must repay,
As otherwise you'll gain a day;
But this I am sure will never do;
So one whole day they take from you.

They take this day from you and me,
On reaching One Eight O degree;
Although this seems a funny notion
It's done on this Pacific Ocean.

But when you have fulfilled your quest,
And changed your course from East to West;
And navigate the deep blue sea,
Your watch goes forward, they decree.

Now time is lost to you each day,
The time you lose they must repay;
So on the "Meridian" being crossed,
They give back to you the day you've lost.

It may seem rather odd to you,
But that's exactly what they do;
They give it where you mind it least,
Where East is West, and West is East.

From Greenwich West, is One Eight O,
But just the same if East you go;
Thus this Meridian's just half-way,
And the day is called "Meridian Day."

The time used is Pacific standard, for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

MAY PICK CARMANAH FOR NEW DIRECTION FINDING STATION

Pachena Point Tests It Is Reported, Have Proven Unsatisfactory

The direction finding tests carried on recently at Pachena Point, it is reported, have not proved satisfactory and it is probable that Pachena will be abandoned as a location for the proposed Government wireless direction finding station because of difficulty in securing proper sound returns.

The tests, it is said, are now being made at points further south, toward the entrance to the Straits of Juan de Fuca, and it is believed that Carmanah Point may finally be selected. E. J. Haughton, superintendent of wireless telegraphs here, is out of the city to-day.

YACHT DANCE

The Cowichan Yacht Club flannel dance, given in the Agricultural Hall on Friday, was not so well attended as in former years, about 200 being present. There were quite a number of visitors, a great many who came over for the International Pacific Regatta coming over to the dance. The hall looked very gay with the yacht club flags and red, white and blue streamers, and Heaton's orchestra, of Victoria, supplied the music.

TIDEWATER CO. DEVELOPS MINE

Steady Output of Ore at Sidney Inlet

The Tidewater Copper Company's mine at Sidney Inlet, on the West Coast of the Island, is keeping up a steady output of ore through the Summer months. Owing to the fact that a large section of new work is being undertaken, S. P. Moody, local agent of the company, says there is room for twelve or fifteen more men to go to the scene of operations immediately.

During the Summer months of last year there was a considerable dearth of water at the mine. This year, however, arrangements have been made to make the water supply dependable, resulting in considerable improvement.

S. P. Silverman, New York representative of the Tidewater Copper Company, is at present in Seattle on business, but will be in this city July 10 or 11.

Victorians Successful.

Alexander Nairn Robertson, one of the three Victorians to be included in the list of those called and admitted, is the son of the late Arthur Robertson and Mrs. Robertson, of 930 Pemberton Road. Mr. Robertson served with the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery during the war and at the close of hostilities was a lieutenant in the unit overseas. He studied with the legal firm of Robertson, Heisterman and Tait, and passed high in the list of local students. Mr. Robertson told The Times to-day that his plans for the future were not yet formulated.

James Lyle Lawrence, receiving call and admission to-day, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lawrence, 882 Island Road. Mr. Lawrence saw extensive war service overseas with the 54th Battalion and received the D.C.M. on the field of action for gallantry in a machine gun post. He studied with the firm of Robertson, Heisterman and Tait and will enter his profession under the wing of J. S. Yates.

Robert Oliver Dunsmuir Harvey, receiving his call to-day, is the son of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. J. S. Harvey, 235 Foul Bay Road. Mr. Harvey joined the 50th Gordon Highlanders here and served with the C. E. F. during the war. He entered Dalhousie University, Halifax, for a year, and completed his studies with the firm of Hall and O'Halloran here. His plans for the future are indefinite.

Of the Mainland students several are well known here. Gordon Wood Scott is the son of Dr. Scott, of The Vancouver Province. Arthur Edward Lord is the son of W. R. Lord, a well know owner of extensive canneries at Nootka Sound. Mr. Lord is credited with being the finest rugby player that the University of British Columbia has yet turned out, and with that distinction had earned a large circle of friends in this city.

INSTITUTES FORGE AHEAD IN B. C. WITH 4,000 MEMBERS

Victoria Sixth On List With Organization Permanently Established Here

Women's Institutes in British Columbia have now grown to 111 with a membership of 4,000, it was announced to-day at the Parliament Buildings by Mrs. Violet MacLachlan, secretary of the Women's Institutes of B. C.

During their last year's operations, 95 of these institutes had incomes totalling $41,891.69, and they spent $33,228.77. The Government contributed $2,516.50 in membership allowances to them and $606 in flower-show grants, a total of $3,172.50. In addition the Government paid the expenses of one delegate from each institute to the annual district institute conferences, amounting to $1,663.75.

Salmon Arm leads with the institute showing greatest cash receipts, which were $2,717.76. Expenditures were $2,360.91. This institute has been bending all its energies towards building a hall.

Vernon is second with receipts of $2,538.12, expenditure, $2,305.37. This institute has been responsible for the establishment and maintenance of the Public Health Nurse in the district, which service has now been extended to the outside.

Point Grey is third with receipts of $1,790.42, expenditure of $1,625.84. This institute has built a hall.

Nelson is fourth with receipts of $1,436.20 and expenditures of $1,189.96.

"Although Nelson ranks fourth in respect to cash, the premier place is theirs by virtue of unselfishness," Mr. McLachlan says. "This institute made a grant of $250 towards the support of a Public Health Nurse in this district along the lakes, receiving no direct benefit other than 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'"

Rutland is fifth with receipts of $1,167.01, expenditures, $572.42. This institute, though small and suffering from bad market conditions has hopes of building a hall.

Victoria comes sixth with cash receipts of $1,152.11 and expenditures of $1,090.93.

"Victoria has established the organization beyond peradventure of a doubt," Mrs. McLachlan says. "They have comfortable rooms, a good piano and are at home to the country districts every afternoon.

"The institute movement has never been so prosperous as at the present; the vision is widening, new fields are opening up and lines of work undreamed of at their inception are being undertaken. They are increasing in wisdom and stature and finding favor with God and man!"

SENATOR CROWE SPEAKS OF SENATE VOTE ON LIQUOR

Vancouver, July 7.—The Senate's action in postponing the application of several bills passed by the Commons last session was defended by Senator S. J. Crowe, who returned to Vancouver yesterday from Ottawa. He stated that Attorney-General Manson's letter suggesting that sinister influences were at work among the Senators was the direct cause of the defeat of the anti-import liquor bill.

"Up to the time the now famous letter of the Attorney-General of British Columbia was read, there was every likelihood that the bill he requested would pass the Senate," Senator Crowe said. "His reflections on the integrity of the Senate and the general tenor of the letter were such as to cause a hesitation on the part of the members of the senior house. They were surprised at the succeeding letters of Mr. Manson, who apologized like the small boy, still affirming his original position.

"The Senators wanted to know how it was that Mr. Manson himself recommended the liquor warehouses for Dominion licenses, while at the same time asking that they be closed. It caused a doubt as to his sincerity in the matter.

"The citizens of the Province had already been called upon to express themselves by plebiscite on one phase of the liquor question, and it was only natural that in view of the peculiarity of the actions of Hon. Mr. Manson in the whole matter, that the Senate should refer this important question proposing a curtailment of trade to the people of British Columbia. In this manner the Senate considered that a final and definite verdict would be obtained in the most democratic way possible."

Speaking of the rejection of the C. N. R. branch lines bill, he said he believed that the people did not want $28,000,000 expended on railway extensions at this time.

Miss Crease, of "Pentrelew," Fort Street, returned to Victoria on Saturday after an extended visit to the East.

FLOWERING PLANTS NEED CONSTANT ATTENTION
Inexperienced gardeners often neglect their flowering plants just at the time when special vigilance and attention is necessary. When the plants show signs of bloom the buds are attacked by innumerable insect parasites which, if left alone, will either destroy them entirely or at least destroy their beauty. The best way to quickly and permanently kill off these pests is to spray the plants regularly. A spraying solution that has found great favor for several years is the following:—Black Leaf Forty, Arsenate of Lead, Kerosene, Whale Oil Soap and emulsifying ingredients. Mixed in proper proportions in a concentrated solution it is sold under the name "Kero-Spray" by the Vancouver Drug Company. It means certain death to all insects, but will not injure the plant or bloom. Kero-Spray is reckoned by many gardeners, both amateur and professional, to be the finest spray there is. It is not expensive, either —50 gallons of solution can be made from one gallon of Kero-Spray, costing only $2.00. Half gallon tins are sold for $1.25 and a 40c bottle will make 5 gallons of solution. Large users should get 5-gallon tins at $1.75 a gallon, or barrels at $1.50 per gallon. The latter prices are F.O.B. Vancouver, with no charge for containers.
Kero-Spray is obtainable in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria at all stores of the Vancouver Drug Co. Country users should write for supplies direct to head office, 456 Broadway West, Vancouver, B.C.
The Vancouver Drug Company are the largest dealers in spraying materials—Arsenate of Lead, Lime Sulphur, Blue Stone, etc. Write for quantity prices, giving your quantity requirements. (Adv.)

Fournier Tops Sluggers in National League

Made Five Home Runs During Week; Zack Wheat Drops Ten to Second Place

Chicago, July 7. — An ambition cherished in the mind of Jacques Fournier of Brooklyn for a number of years has been realized. The big Frenchman, who, since he broke into the majors, has lived in hope of some day being at the head of the column, is the new leader among the batters of the National League, according to averages released to-day and which include games of last Wednesday. By making nineteen hits the happy son of France boosted his mark from .342 to .384, which tops the players who have participated in forty-five of more games. In his collection of hits Fournier made five home runs during the week in addition to collecting four doubles.

Sensational Spurt

Zack Wheat dropped ten points and is now second with an average of .382. The wonderful spurt of Fournier has been one of the most sensational in some time. During his march he made a record of six sits in six times up. Jimmy Johnston, also of Brooklyn, has been keeping step with his teammate and had shot forward into fourth place with Young, of New York, tied with .366. Ed Rousch, of Cincinnati, is third with .374.

George Grantham, of the Cubs, has lost none of his cunning on the base lines. He is showing the way to the base-stealers with twenty-three. Cy Williams, of the Phillies, has recovered sufficiently to take his regular position and is back in his batting stride. In the last week Williams cracked out two home runs and now leads the major league players with twenty-two.

Batters

Other leading players are: Frisch, New York, .363; O'Farrell, Chicago, .360; Grimm, Pittsburgh, .357; Bottomley, St. Louis, .347; Mokan, Philadelphia, .344; Southworth, Boston, .343; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .343; Hornsby, St. Louis, .343; Carrick, Pittsburgh, .337, and Bigbee, Pittsburgh, .330.

Heilman, of Detroit, who stepped out in front shortly after the gong sounded, has remained on the top of the hitters in the American League. During the last week his average dropped from .425 to .419. His closest rival is Charley Jamieson, of Cleveland, who is the runner-up with .375. Babe Ruth has batted himself into a tie for third place with Eddie Collins, of the White Sox. Each has a mark of .363. Ruth baged two more homers and ran his string to sixteen.

Collins is blazing the trail for the base-stealers with twenty-seven. Ken Williams, of the St. Louis Browns, smashed out two homers and is trailing Ruth for the honors with twelve. Ruth has added a dozen runs to his scoring record, having tallied sixty-eight times.

Other leading batters are: Haney, Detroit, .358; Witt, New York, .352; Flagstead, Boston, .338; J. Sewell, Cleveland, .333; J. Harris, Boston, .333; Ruel, Washington, .330; Cobb, Detroit, .327; Williams, St. Louis, .323; Myatt, Cleveland, .323, and Hauser, Philadelphia, .317.

Miss Smith and J. V. Barnes beat Miss H. Tyrrell and Wilkinson, 6-2, 6-2.

Ladies' Consolation Singles.

Miss Flucke beat Miss Chattell, 10-8, 6-2.

Draw for To-day.

At 7 p. m.—Mrs. Nixon plays Miss Humphreys; Miss Mercer and Wescott play Miss Grant and H. Barnes; Miss Smith plays Miss H. Tyrrell (third set).

At 7.30 p. m.—List plays J. V. Barnes (semi-final, best of 5 sets).

At 8 p. m.—Miss Flint and Tallack play Miss B. Campbell and Knapman; Miss Smith and Miss Eve play Miss Pritchett and Miss Flucke.

The feature game of the day was the ladies' singles in which Miss B. Campbell defeated Miss Flint. Miss Campbell stood out as a remarkable tennis player with wonderful vitality. The longer the play the better her game became, and she was probably playing her best tennis in the last two sets. She had already played in a strenuous mixed doubles before she took part in the singles with Miss Flint. She has a strong overhand service and a telling forearm return drive. Miss Flint made a worthy contender, and there were many very pretty rallies during their match.

*Amateurs.

Al Espinosa, Inglewood professional, and H. Chandler Egan, of Waverley, former national open champion and former Northwest amateur champion, tied for third, with 149. Bon Stein of the Seattle Golf Club, state amateur champion, was fifth, with 150.

Dave Black, Shaughnessy Heights pro and defending champion, came in a tie for seventh. His medal score was 152.

The final thirty-six holes to decide the 1923 title will be decided at the North End to-day.

Makes Best Round.

Speirs, with a wonderful second round of 71, two strokes under par, tied Taylor, who had two par 73 rounds. Speirs's performance was all the more brilliant as he drove a ball out of bounds on the eighteenth with the consequent loss of distance. The course record is 69.

Other high lights of yesterday's play were the bi-annual "comeback" of H. Chandler Egan, generally regarded as the grand old man of golf in the Northwest, and the spectacular game exhibited by Francis Brown, Hawaiian amateur champion. And, as the luck of the draw put these two players together, unlike in every respect, they drew the largest gallery.

Egan was as consistent and reliable as grandfather's clock, while Brown was erratic, but as sparkling as the fireworks in the Stadium Wednesday night. So the gallery was well rewarded for its choice, most of the followers going home with chapped hands; that's how often they were called on to applaud the shots this pair made.

Brown Is Sensation.

Brown is the sensation of the tournament. Most of the players are willing to award him the honors of being the longest driver present. As with all his play, this bronzed boy from Honolulu is erratic off the tee, but when he hits one—to use the vernacular—that ball is kissed. He possesses a wonderful pair of shoulders and as he sweeps the ball off the tee he throws those shoulders into the follow-through—sort of a lunge—and the ball takes a joy ride. His best piece of work yesterday was an eagle three on the long fourteenth. He carried the green in two and sunk an eight-footer for two strokes under par.

HARD FIGHT FOR JUNIOR NET TITLE

A. M. Hodgins, of Victoria, won the final of the British Columbia junior championship on the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club courts in an exciting contest with O. Ryall, of Nanaimo. Every set provided a battle royal and play throughout was clever and fast. Yesterday's play on the courts was as follows:

Men's singles—Gordon (-40 3-6), defeated Flett (scratch), 6-2, 6-1; Collison (scratch), defeated Musgrave (-3-6), 6-2, 4-6, 6-1; Ley (+36), defeated Collison (scratch), 6-2, 6-1.

Ladies' singles — Miss Wolfenden (+15), defeated Mrs. Musgrave (+3-6), 6-3, 6-2; Mrs. H. Mogg (-30), defeated Mrs. Knox (-30), 6-1, 6-3.

Men's doubles—Proctor and McCallum (-30), defeated Knox and Stillwell, by default; Walton and Loveland (scratch), defeated Robertson and Hutchison (-30), 3-6, 6-3 and 7-5; Walton and Loveland (scratch), defeated Gordon and McCallum (-50), by default.

Junior boy's singles, under 18—A. M. Hodgins defeated Oswald Ryall, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

VERLEY AND GORDON LEAVE FOR PACIFIC NORTHWEST TENNIS

Leaving at 5.30 to-night, Verley and Gordon, of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club, will represent Victoria at Portland in the Pacific Northwest Championship Tournaments. Mr. Verley has a splendid record, while all Victorians are acquainted with Gordon's playing. Mr. Verley is a new man in the Victoria Club, and is expected to bring home a few laurels with him following this trip. Gordon has a consistent manner in his game, and there is no reason why Victoria should not be well represented.

AN EASY NIGHT FOR THE RAILROAD MEN

Sixteen to One Was the Way the Score Read After Game With Eagles

The C.P.R. ball nine sure struck their stride last night, when they trimmed the lowly Eagles to the tune of 16-1, at the Stadium last evening. The C.P.R. did all the playing, while the feathered tribe just stood around and watched the runners romp over the plate. As a result of their win the railroaders have advanced farther into the race for the league laurels, having a game and a half lead on the lodgemen.

Noble started in the box for the feathered folk, but all he had on the pill was the cover. He had an off-night, and the railwaymen were knocking his slats to every corner of the lot. He also allowed four stolen bases. He was chased to the showers in the fifth in favor of Kerr. However, the damage was done, and it waas of no use, as the runs still trickled across the rubber.

Norm Forbes did the twirling for the C.P.R., and he pitched his best game this season, allowing only two hits and putting eight batters out via the strike-out route. He was given excellent support by his teammates, both in the field and with the club.

Harry Copas led the heavy sluggers last night with four hits out of six trips to the plate. Following close behind was "Crabby" Jackson, who slashed-ou three out of five. "Red" McDonald and Porter divided the Eagles' hits between them.

McGinnis, the peppery little Eagle catcher, went in to do the stopping last night, but he was forced to retire in the sixth, and his place was taken by the old veteran, Alex. Potts.

MACKENZIE LEADS ON MORNING GOLF ROUND

Kanawakie, July 7.—Redvers Mackenzie, Montreal Country Club, was three up on W. J. Thompson, of Mississauga, on the morning round of the final of the Canadian Amateur Golf championship here to-day.

Coldwood to Stage Ladies Title Play for Governor's Cup

A handsome silver cup for the ladies' championship of Colwood Golf and Country Club has been presented by Lieutenant-Governor Walter C. Nichol, and comes as a very acceptable gift to the club. For some time past the Colwood Club has been anxious to stage a ladies' title series, and the Lieutenant-Governor's generous act paves the way for the competition. The date when the competition will be held has not yet been announced, but it is expected that it will be held during September.

MEDIUM PRICES PREVAILED AT BRIGHOUSE PARK

Only Two Favorites in Front, Three Second and One Third Yesterday

Vancouver, July 7.—Medium prices ruled at Brighouse Park yesterday. Only two favorites finished in front, but three won second money and one was third. The longest price of the day was paid in the sixth, when Nebraska came across at $19.50 for a two-dollar ticket.

Black Prince furnished a mild surprise in the opener when he ran away from the favorite, Icon, in the last quarter.

Gargan rushed Nick Klein to the rail early in the second race, made every post a winner and came home easily, three lengths ahead of Tillotson, who just withstood Medford Boy's strong challenge under a hard drive. Tillotson was the public choice, with Klein second favorite.

Mountaineer copped by half a length from Sandy, the favorite, who again proved disappointing in the final stages.

The McGinn entry was favorite in the fourth race and Maud Harvey justified the odds by winning under the whip from Similkameen Boy, returning the close price of $2.50 for a $2 nose bet. Lady Dunbar just nosed out Orblike at the finish for the show.

The McGinn stable put another favorite across in the fifth when H. Jones brought Sam Reh up from fourth position on the far turn to walk past the field and win going away.

The sixth was Nebraska's race all the way and easily withstood Chippendale's challenge in the stretch. Kimberly was an easy third. Nebraska paid $19.50 to win.

A typical Molter finish brought Plurality home in the last event, one mile and seventy yards. Plurality copped by a head with Full Again taking the place and Mae Seth the show.

Laird was on the mound for the Oaklands team, and he pitched a fine brand of ball, while Pollard on the mound for the Bays pitched airtight ball and was given stellar support by his teammates.

Boxing Tourney Wednesday on Elaborate Lines

Except That Tuxedos Are Not Called for It's a Regular Sporting Club Event

The United Services boxing tourney, which is scheduled for next Wednesday evening at the Drill Hall, promises to be one of the most outstanding athletic events that has ever been staged in this city. For the first time in the history of the boxing game Victoria will witness a boxing tourney which will be conducted under the same rules as those governing the big army and navy championships which are staged every year at either Olympia or Aldershot, England.

Lieut. Ronald C. Watson, R.C.N., who is in charge of the general arrangements for the bouts, has had considerable experience in staging big service championship shows in England and he states that the Wednesday evening contests will be staged on the same lines as the last united services championships at which he officiated as referee.

The ring at the Drill Hall has already been constructed and it is claimed that it is the finest ring that has ever been used in this city. Special seats have also been erected for judges, referee, timekeepers and press men. The ringside seats to the number of 288 have been divided into four sections, two sections of which have already been reserved for the officers of the army and navy. Another section has been reserved for the members of the Union Club, while the seats in the remaining section have been placed on sale at the office of the Empire Realty Co., where the general public can secure same.

As far as the programme is concerned, the committee in charge is confident that there will be a record number of bouts in each class, quite a large number of the local sailor boys have entered and ten entries have been received from civilians, and it is expected that the list will be largely increased when the entries are received to-morrow from H.M.S. Curlew.

DISTANCE SWIMMERS PRACTISE SUNDAY

Long distance swimmers, whether members of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club or not, are invited to take part in a trial splash from the C. N. R. bridge to the V. A. S. C. clubhouse on Sunday. Warming up for the Long Distance Swim next month the Victoria swimmers plan to stage a series of water marathons. The first one of the season, a couple of weeks ago, drew a big turn out, although none of the lady swimmers who count one hundred per cent. in the hard grind of a distance race, were on hand. Several are expected to try the course Sunday and steady practices are planned between now and the date of the race. In no other long distance race were so many surprises predicted as there have been this season.

At the weekly handicaps of the club Tommy Wellburn again won the 50 Yards from scratch in 29 3-5 secs. Jock McNeill registered his first points of the season by coming in second from the 4-second mark. Peter Johnson was again in the running with 12 seconds start.

In the 50 Yards Over-45 seconds-Class Leslie Russell won from scratch, Jessie Stott was second with 6 seconds start and Dorris Graves third with 4 seconds start.

Willis Barrett had little difficulty in winning the breast stroke race, George Silburn was second and Tom Wellburn third.

At a general meeting of the club Leslie Russell was appointed assistant secretary to G. Wellburn. A committee was also appointed to make new turning boards and do other necessary work in preparation for the club's gala.

Sarazen Advises on . . . . . the Correct Iron Shot

The Firmer the Stroke and the Finish the Better Will Be the Result, Says Youthful Star

IN THIS PHOTOGRAPH GENE SARAZEN ILLUSTRATES THE FINISH OF THE MASHIE-IRON SWING. THE TITLEHOLDER SAYS THAT ALL GOOD IRON SHOTS ARE HIT ON THE DOWNWARD STROKE.

BY GENE SARAZEN.

I think a golfer will always find it a help in playing the mashie-iron, or any other iron, if he remembers that an iron shot is a direct hit at the ball and that all good shots are hit on the downward stroke.

Here is shown the finish of the mashie-iron and I want to again impress the fact that the firmer the stroke and the finish the better will be the result.

First of all, when hitting the ball the player should think of hitting through the shot. That will help to avoid stopping the club abruptly, a common mistake many golfers make in playing this shot, and it will also help rid one of the habit of stabbing the shot.

Also when one hits the ball he should think of carrying the club right through in the direction of the flight of the ball. Doing this will help to keep the right shoulder down, which in turn will prevent from raising the shoulders too soon and topping the shot. Stay down to the iron shot, and keep the eye always on the ball.

Don't get into the habit of pulling the hands into the body on the finish of the mashie-iron but keep them well out in front as if pointing the shot.

One must keep in mind also the fact that the club-head will do the work of lifting the ball and getting it away. The player shouldn't try to lift the ball with his arms or shoulders. It is best to take a little turf on all these shots—a little is sufficient to keep the shot firm.

Finally it should be remembered that the weight of the body at the finish of the stroke is transferred to the left leg, which receives the shock of the blow. Constant practice will enable to shift the weight in an easy, rythmical manner during the swing.

Rain Holds Up All But Three in Big Leagues

Yankees Open Western Invasion by Trimming the Browns Five to Two

New York, July 7.—It seemed to rain all over the country yesterday and only three battles were staged in the big leagues. Of these, the heaviest in the way of action took place in St. Louis where the Yankees opened their western invasion by trimming the Browns 5-2.

Cleveland, aided by Jamieson's home run, defeated Boston, 5-3.

Philadelphia saved themselves from defeat by a triple play in the fifth. Cooper, Pittsburgh moundsman, beat out an infield hit and took second on a wild throw. Maranville singled to right and Cooper went to third. Then Cary flied to Mokan, whose throw to Henline caught Cooper at the plate and Maranville was nipped. Henline to Sand, when he tried to make second on the throw-in. The Phillies won 5-2.

JUNIOR BASEBALL

The Pirates junior baseball team added another win to their credit when they swamped the Gorge nine 12-5, at the Royal Athletic Park last night. Ken Bates on the mound for the piratical crew twirled airtight ball, and was given steller support in the field.

O'Hara in the box for the Gorge Club pitched a good brand of ball, but was let down by his teammates in the field.

The Pirates will play their last gae of the season when they meet the Oaklands nine next Wednesday night at the Royal Athletic Park.

REFUGEES FLEE FROM DOOMED VILLAGE.—As the torrents of the molten lava from the belching Mt. Etna, "Mountain of Fire," swept down on the town of Castiglione, its population rushed frantically to the little railroad station to get out of the zone of danger. Less than twenty-four hours after they left, the entire town was destroyed. Thirty thousand were made homeless and millions were lost in the disaster which continued several days after the first eruption of June 17.

TERRIFIC STORMS IN ONTARIO.—Violent windstorms, amounting almost to cyclones, have struck various sections of southern Ontario during the last few days, following on a prolonged and intense heat spell. Above is shown a fine old tree in front of the Legislative Buildings, Toronto, which was uprooted on Monday night before the gale.

PLASTER 'EM ON, GIRLS.—In London you can buy the entire outfit of beauty plasters shown here for sixty cents and if you put them all on at the same time you'll achieve pristine beauty in a very few hours—so they say.

TO HONOR ARCTIC DEAD.—Donald McMillan, famous explorer, will place this tablet at Cape Sabin in the Arctic Regions, where in 1884, eighteen men died of starvation. They were with the Greely Expedition. McMillan has departed from Wiscasset, Me., for the cold regions.

SEE HIM SMILING JUST NOW.—New photograph of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, leader of the Ontario Conservative party who will succeed Hon. E. C. Drury as Prime Minister.

TYPE OF BEACON WHICH WILL GUIDE MAIL FLYERS AT NIGHT.—Beacons, stretched across the country, will guide air-mail aviators at night. These land-lighthouses will be placed three miles apart, and will cheer the night-flying pilot as the sea mariner is cheered by the light-houses along the coast. The beacons are about four and a half feet high. Mounted on the top of the pedestal is a glass reflector, lighted by acetyline gas, and shooting vertical rays.

CINCINNATUS, 2,400 YEARS LATER.—Called unexpectedly from the plow to take over the reigns of government, Premier Drury of Ontario, like the famous old Roman of 500 B. C., lays them down again, glad to escape the worries of office, and return to his farm at Crown Hill. Here he is shown photographed in the centre of one of his wheat fields of which he speaks with pride.

HON. H. C. NIXON, provincial secretary of Ontario in the Drury government, was one of many cabinet ministers to meet defeat in the recent election. He was beaten in South Brant by three votes.

HON. WALTER ROLLO, who, in the late Ontario government, was minister of labor, but who in the last election polled the least number of votes of the three candidates in West Hamilton.

HON. DOUGALL CARMICHAEL, who was the minister without portfolio, in the Ontario U. F. O. government, and who with the leader of that government and other cabinet ministers was defeated in the recent election.

778,000 Miles Flown In Year In England Without Death

FRISKY "YOUNG OXFORD" GALLED BY SHARP CURB

Old Bullingdon Club Under Vice-Chancellor's Ban as Well as "Rag Regatta"

Repressive Policy Adopted by Official is Declared to Go Beyond His Powers

Students Vote Protest, But He Says Students' Industry is Not What it Should be

Oxford, July 7. — The "Young Oxford" movement, which flourished in the enthusiasm of after-the-war democracy, has come to grips with the forces of old and reactionary Oxford as personified by the vice-chancellor.

The tendency of the students to increase their activities outside the lecture hall, to organize their own affairs, to become less provincial and more liberal in their thinking, has been nipped in the bud on many occasions by the presiding authority. Oxford is the heart of English conservatism and change comes slowly, but even here the students have been roused to protest by the high-handed policy of Dr. Farnell.

Repressive Policy Bared

His recent action in forbidding further meetings of the Bullingdon Club is but one example of what has now come to be known as his repressive policy. The Bullingdon Club is one of the old and established clubs, but the vice-chancellor decided that its exclusively plutocratic nature made it an "unhealthful influence" in undisturber of campus serenity was the adopted the same policy toward the Labor Club, which he held to be too radical. Two of its members were sent down from the university because of articles published in the Labor organ. It is obvious that political issues are not governing the vice-chancellor's motives, when his blows fall alike on the Labor and Bullingdon clubs. His ideal appears to be a happy mean conservatism, to the attainment of which he uses without restraint the most arbitrary powers of his office.

The vice-chancellor feels that the industry of the student body is not what it should be, and that the tendencies of the day are toward even greater laxity and indifference toward scholarship. He, therefore, proposes to discipline the student body in studying harder, whether it wishes to or not.

The first of his acts directed toward this end was the elimination of the "Rag Regatta" which undergraduates have organized yearly for the benefit of Radcliff Infirmary. The regatta was a series of comic boat races and competitions staged on the river, attended by throngs of people who contributed generously to the collection boxes in payment for their fun. Sometimes £2,000 a year has been raised.

The loss of this sum, of course, works a hardship on the hospital which could scarcely be recompensed, unless Oxford scholarship took an enormous stride as a result of the elimination of the regatta.

The second institution which Dr. Farnell classed as a distraction and disturber of campus serenity was the New Theatre. This was a small playhouse opened and sponsored by Robert Bridges, John Masefield and others of the English literary colony at Boars Hill. On the ground that Oxford had already too many theatres for the good of the undergraduate body, the vice-chancellor declared the theatre "out of bounds." (One of the powers of the vice-chancellor is that of declaring any public place "out of bounds," which means that it is a punishable offence for undergraduates to frequent it.) Protests against this insult to a worthy artistic endeavor came even from other university officials, with the result that the ban on the New Theatre was withdrawn — the only instance in which Dr. Farnell has yielded to the feeling of "Young Oxford."

Chancellor's Power Assailed.

The measures employed by Dr. Farnell have been so extreme as to bring into question the powers of office as conveyed by the present constitution of the university. At present the vice-chancellor has almost unlimited powers, the presumption being that he will not employ them for extreme purposes and that his own discretion will be sufficient limitation. The question, however, was debated recently in the Union: "Resolved, that the present powers of the vice-chancellor are injurious to the welfare of the university"—and the verdict of the undergraduates was in favor of the resolution.

The term of Dr. Farnell has almost expired, and the office then goes to Dr. Wells, of Wadham. "Young Oxford" is much concerned over the future trend of university life, and hopes that under the new official the oldest of British universities will take its place in line with twentieth century liberalism and democracy.

War Hero's Titled Widow Is Forced By Poverty to Sell His Many Medals

It's the tragedy of a nation's ingratitude; and its victim is the general's widow, Lady Cowans, who has been forced through dire poverty to take the medals and awards which her husband won and put them up for sale!

Forty years ago John Cowans first joined the British army and when the World War broke out he was made quartermaster general of all the British forces.

When the war was over the general became ill. He had to go into debt to pay his doctor's bills, for the war had played havoc with his $40,000 estate.

A ray of hope came when awards for heroism were being handed out. Cowans was in line for something. But while others were made nobles and given huge money grants, Cowans was knighted.

He died a few months ago. There was a large military funeral, kind words and then complete forgetfulness.

The widow struggled along for a while. But her circumstances became worse. She had little left other than the medals which her husband had won. So she put them up for sale for the money they might bring.

The premier offered Lady Cowans an extra pension from the civil lists, amounting to $500 a year, to be paid quarterly. She immediately refused.

A number of influential men, deeming the nation ungrateful, are trying to make amends. But Lady Cowans says it is too late.

TURTLE SOUP OFF FOR SEA LORDS

London, July 7.—It cannot be attributed to the Washington naval agreement, but nevertheless something ought to be done about it.

The sad fact was revealed in the House of Commons this week that the Admiralty no longer enjoys its customary rations of turtle soup and that there is no prospect of this dish being replaced on the menu of the sea Lords.

The trouble is that Ascention Island, a lonely spot in the middle of the Atlantic, which for many years the Admiralty governed in the same manner as it would a ship, has now been put under the care of St. Helena authorities. Consequently, British warships seldom call there, so that green turtles, which are abundant on the island and which have been sent to the Admiralty regularly since 1771, are now allowed to go unmolested.

NON-STOP RECORD SET BY CATHEDRAL CHIMES

London July 7. — London holds the non-stop bell-ringing title. Twelve men, each operating one of the 200-year-old bells of St. Saviour's Cathedral, Southwark, kept at it for nine hours.

They rang 12,675 changes of bells, as against the previous record of 11,111 changes rung in Birmingham in December, 1901. The bells weigh 11½ tons. The tenor bell alone weighs 2½ tons, but the man who rang it said he was ready to start all over again. The ringers were locked in so no one would distract them and had nothing to eat or drink while at their task.

BALDWIN PUFFS PIPE AT OXFORD DINNER

London, July 7 (Associated Press) —Stanley Baldwin, the British Prime Minister, has an idiosyncrasy — he smokes a big briar pipe not only in the privacy of his Downing Street home, but at public dinners as well.

Hitherto reporters and cartoonists have been able to paint word pictures and make drawing of the new Premier only as an honest man, who on the day of his selection for the most important post in the government, asked the newspaper men for the prayers rather than their congratulations and also as a politician who loves country life better than London and would rather scratch a pig's back with a stick than harangue Commons.

All this is interesting and makes a wide appeal to Mr. Baldwin's countrymen, but it cannot be used in the papers every day. Last Saturday night another touch of the Premier's humanness developed at the annual Rhodes scholars' dinner at Oxford, which was largely attended by the Rhodes scholars there.

After the usual toast: "Gentlemen, the King," there was the customary flashing of gold and silver cigarette cases and reaching for the long, dry cigars which are the abominations of Americans. The Premier, however, dived into the pocket of his evening clothes and brought out a big, well-worn briar pipe, which he kept glowing the rest of the evening.

London, July 7. — The King and Queen sent congratulations to Mrs. Eliza West, of Shanklin, who recently celebrated her 100th birthday.

KING AND HIS SONS FIND THEY HAVE TOO MUCH TO DO

So Many War Memorials That Duke of York Says He Can't Unveil All

King and Queen Always Busy Mingling With High and Low

London, July 7.—Even royalty retains the right to go on strike.

When the Prince of Wales was invited this week to officiate at the opening of a home for mothers and infants, he replied that as he did not know much about either just yet he was declining the honor. At the same time some one offered the Prince a dog for a present, but he declared he did not have room for him at St. James's Palace.

The Duke of York has now had to state his inability to officiate at war memorials on the ground that in view of other strenuous duties it is impossible for him to travel in the nethermost parts of the country at short notice and unveil such memorials. The fact is that neither the Prince nor the Duke is able to fill half the engagements planned for them by the enthusiastic subjects of King George, who himself is one of the hardest working persons in the country.

In the course of a week the King and Queen mingled with their lowliest subjects in the tenement district of London and were the centre of interest at the brilliant Ascot gathering. No British sovereigns within memory have more conscientiously applied themselves to daily tasks than the present King and Queen, who long since have had the sympathy of their loyal subjects for the manner in which they tackle their ardous daily tasks.

The King despite the onerous duties which often keep him up late at night is an early riser. One night recently after a brilliant court and following a perusal of state documents which required his attention until after midnight, he was out riding in Rotten Row by 8 o'clock the next morning. Riding is one of his favorite forms of outdoor recreation. When at Windsor Castle he is always out for an early morning ride in the Great Park.

His close application to many duties undoubtedly have told on the British sovereign since the war, for he has aged perceptibly in the last few years. It is outdoor sport which makes it possible for the Prince of Wales to keep up the pace of three engagements in one evening, not to speak of several more in the daytime.

LONDON REBUILDS WEST END FAST

London, July 7.—What has struck the vanguard of the invading tourist army of 1923 is the rapid transformation of large areas of business London. In the West End particularly many of the famous retail stores patronized by tourists are now torn down and in their places new structures have been erected savoring of Fifth Avenue, if not in height at least in sumptuousness.

The reason is that many old leases have expired and the big establishments have been able to add to their buildings as the profits they made during and since the war are sufficient to warrant big expansion.

As a result Oxford, Regent, Bond and other famous streets are now filled with an army of builders and in the Strand the Bush Terminal Building is rapidly nearing completion. It will be a building with modern American facilities and only the restrictions on the height prevented Londoners from having a real skyscraper at last.

But while much of the old is making way for the new there is a great campaign of rehabilitation going on in residential quarters. For a long time after the war taxation was so heavy that landlords or house owners made only the most urgent repairs, but now painters and masons have been let loose on a large number of badly rundown houses, and the effect has been to stamp the old neighborhoods with their one time opulent looks.

The campaign of rehabilitation has taken in such famous structures as St. James's Palace, where the plaster surface, which for half a century hid much of the old brick work, has been scraped off, thus giving the building an appearance of great antiquity. The work of preservation also is progressing at St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey.

London, July 7. — The Prince of Wales has consented to become an honorary associate of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons.

London, July 7.—The Home Secretary has appointed Col. A. Lambert Ward, D.S.O., M.P., to be his Parliamentary private secretary.

Chorus Girl Becomes Politician

On the Stage Since 15, Dainty Actress With Big Brown Eyes Now M. P.

London, July 7. — Third woman member and first actress member in the long history of the House of Commons is enough to make any woman prominent in the public eye.

Mrs. Hilton Philipson, already known as Mabel Russell, M.P., is the proud possessor of that distinction.

Mabel Russell started in a Clapham Junction box office and afterwards went into a chorus. Then she graduated into a principal part. She earned her own living on the stage since she was fifteen and helped her brother and sister as well. She first married a Mr. Stanley Rhodes, a wealthy cotton broker, who was killed in 1911 in a motor accident at Brooklands. She married her present husband, Captain Philipson, in 1917 when she was starring in "London Pride."

She is little and round and dainty, and wins affection with a charming smile. Her voice is musical and her enunciation clear as crystal, the result of stage training. One can hardly imagine her making a strident speech or attempting to force home her points against an adverse audience. But on the other hand it is also hard to imagine an adverse audience with her. A pleading Portia, perhaps, but never a blue stocking. So much womanhood, in fact, that one wonders how she carried the seat of Berwick-on-Tweed, unless by her womanhood. She is the mother of three children, including twin boys, one of whom died later.

Mrs. Philipson has large brown eyes in a smiling round face and fair hair. One can never ask in such interviews such interesting statistics as year of birth. Mabel Russell used to sing in "Havana" at the Gaiety Theatre and played as a Cockney girl with great success at the Haymarket in "Within the Law." In musical comedy and revue she appeared and became famous in "A Country Girl," "Samples" and "Half-past Eight."

"What put the idea into your head of running for Parliament?" she was asked.

"Because I thought it such a pity that my husband should be unseated on a technicality, because his agent, unknown to him, spent more money on the elections than he should, and because he could not run again," was the answer. "I thought a lot of them in casting a vote for me would think they were voting for him again, a sort of family seat, and in entering on the Conservative ticket instead of National Liberal, as he did, my judgment was sound, for I polled more votes. The Conservative chiefs have been very pleased at the evidence of confidence my majority proves. It is the first by-election since the new Premier came in and the first time Berwick has returned a Conservative."

Nervous Taking Oath

"What did you think on your first appearance in the House?" she was asked.

"I was a bit nervous I must confess," she answered. "It is not quite the same thing as appearing behind the footlights. It is a new role. One cannot grasp the spirit of the audience so readily and one cannot say the same things in

FOUR AIR ROUTES NOW LINK BRITAIN WITH ALL EUROPE

Fare to Paris in Giant Passenger Planes Or Cologne Only $30; Brussels, $20

Manchester is Brought Only Nine and Quarter Hours Away From Berlin

Rate at Which French Are Building Machines, Gives British Much Concern

Big Budget Looms if Britain Decides to Undertake a One-to-One Policy

London, July 7.—England within the last year has awakened to an appreciation of the vast importance of aviation. The Air Ministry is planning broad measures to develop the air service in Great Britain both along military and civil lines.

There are now in England these three air lines maintaining regular services:

(1) The Handley Page Company, which conducts a line between Croydon and Paris.

(2) The Instone Air Line, which operates between London, Brussels and Cologne.

(3) The Daimler Company, which sends planes between Croydon, Amsterdam and Berlin.

In addition there is the Supermarine Corporation of Southampton, which is now running a service to the Channel Islands and soon after to Cherbourg and Havre. The distinctive feature of this company is that its planes will all be float planes.

Then the De Haviland Company maintains a taxi airplane service. Besides these principal companies there are minor airway firms, none of which, however, operate regular services.

Four Planes in Paris Service.

The Handley Page Company has four airplanes in its service. Three of these run daily, while the fourth is being overhauled. There are two services daily between London and Paris. From Croydon the starting times are 12.30 and 4 o'clock. The company has found by experience that it takes on the average 2.42 hours to make the run, although the record is exactly one hour less.

The Handly Page planes have a capacity for carrying at one time fourteen passengers in addition to the pilot and mechanic. Like the other British services it carries both freight and mail. The freight capacity of its planes is 500 pounds when the passenger limit is filled and 2,500 pounds when no passengers.

In 1922 12,712 passengers were carried by the five companies which operate from Croydon — the Handley Page, the Instone, the Daimler, the K. L. M. (Dutch) and the C. M. A. (French). Of these 4,008 were carried by the Handley Page Company. For the first four months of this year — that is up to May 1 — the five companies have transported 3,583 passengers, compared with 1,830 in the first quarter of 1922. The fare to Paris from Croydon is about $30.

The Instone company maintains two services daily each way between Croydon and Cologne. One plane leaving Croydon stops at Brussels; the other goes directly on to Cologne. This company has four planes in its service, each capable of carrying nine passengers or a ton of freight. The fare to Brussels is £3 19s. 6d.; that to Cologne £5 19s. 6d. The average time of flight to Brussels from London is three and a half hours; to Cologne four and a quarter hours. This company has carried approximately 7,000 passengers in the last two years.

From Manchester to Berlin.

The Daimler Airways Company, which has risen from the ashes of the old Aircraft Transport and Travel Company, also maintains four planes constantly in its service. Its machines are capable of carrying ten passengers or 1,600 pounds of freight. The fare from London to Birmingham is 30 shillings; from London to Amsterdam £4. The time of flight from Manchester to Berlin is nine and a quarter hours. In the nine months from April 1 of last year to January 1 of this year the company carried 2,103 passengers. In the first four months of 1923 it has transported 387 passengers.

The Supermarine Corporation hopes to start its Channel Islands service from Southampton in the next four or six weeks. Daily service will be maintained. Three flying boats will make trips every twenty-four hours, one to Cherbourg, one to Havre and the third to the islands of Jersey and Guernsey. The time, it is expected, will be from three-quarters of an hour to the islands to one and a quarter hours, depending upon weather conditions. The three planes will have a carrying capacity of seven passengers and a freight capacity of half a ton. A fourth plane, larger than any of these, is being built for later use.

The Channel service will meet the ships from New York and will also tap the fruit and vegatble trades of these islands.

The De Haviland Service has maintained a taxi service, flying in 1922 126,000 miles in 1,400 hours the length and breadth of Europe without a single accident to pilot or passenger. Thirty-seven per cent. of this has been for newspaper and cinema work, carrying newspaper men to important assignments; 33 per cent. taxi work, 18 per cent. aerial photography work and 12 per cent. teaching. The charge for a 250 horse power machine carrying three passengers is to be reduced to 50 cents an hour in the near future.

All of these companies except the De Haviland are subsidized by the

PRESBYTERIANS OPPOSED TO UNION ORGANIZE STAND

Local Committee Will Aid Effort of Central Body

It is now assured that whatever may be the result of the action of the General Assembly at Port Arthur, on the question of organic union, the Presbyterian Church in Canada will continue as a distinct entity in the religious life of the nation. At a meeting of the Presbyterian Church Association, held immediately after the Assembly's vote on union was announced, former decision as to the continuance of the church were reaffirmed and the details of carrying out that policy were delegated to a large and representative executive committee. That committee has since met, and finding such numerical and financial backing assured, decided upon a vigorous and aggressive policy and agreed to appoint a general agent for the Dominion and several provincial agents. It was also resolved to begin the publication of a monthly magazine as early as possible. The headquarters of this magazine will be in Montreal. The committee was especially encouraged by the determination and devotion of the women, who have formed among themselves a league to defend and maintain the church in which are already enrolled thousands of active Christian workers, says Rev. Dr. Clay, in a statement to The Times.

The local committee is working in harmony with the general plans of the central organization, he said today.

All members of the church are endeavoring to wipe out the deficits which during the past two years have been crippling the missionary enterprises at home and abroad. "As the recent Assembly established a separate fund to meet future expenses of the Union Committee, conscientious opponents of organic union may be assured that hereafter no payments for union propaganda will be made out of funds contributed for missionary purposes, nor out of any other except those specially marked for the Union Committee," said Dr. Clay.

CHURCH PARTY PLANS ALASKA MISSION STUDY

Presbyterian Group to Investigate Need of Northland

To study the needs of Presbyterian missions in Alaska, a party of 118 Presbyterian ministers, laymen and representatievs of Presbyterian women's organizations sailed for the North from Seattle Wednesday.

They have taken over practically all of the Alaska Steamship Company's steamer Jefferson for the trip, which will be under the auspices of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions.

California Party.

A party of eighty-seven of the church people arrived in Seattle this week from Los Angeles and other California points, and was joined here later by a delegation of thirty-one coming from Eastern States.

The tour is in charge of Rev. Paul G. Stevens, of Los Angeles, representative of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions in the Southwest. Rev. S. Hall Young, who has been in charge of Presbyterian missions in Alaska for the past thirty years, will accompany the party on the rest of the tour.

Purpose of Tour.

"The purpose of the tour," says Rev. Mr. Stevens, "is to interest the church in our Alaska missions and the necessity for increasing the scope of the work.

"It is the first time that such an extensive tour has been undertaken by this or any other church board. The members of the party will make a survey of the evangelical, educational and medical work being done by our missions, and make reports back to their local church congregations."

The party includes many prominent and influential laymen, as well as ministers.

The church delegation will visit missions at Ketchikan, Metlakatla, Taku, Juneau, Skagway, Hoonah and Sitka, and will be away about two weeks.

Five Protestant Churches Join in One Building in Small Town of Illinois

Metamora, Ill., July 7.—There used to be five Protestant churches here. Now there is only one.

Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalists and Christians all had small houses of worship with straggling congregations.

To-day they all meet under one roof in a building large enough to house them all comfortably. One pastor, Rev. J. D. Calhoun, now attends to their combined spiritual needs. The church building is shown above with the pastor.

STUDENTS OF BIBLE SHOULD USE BOOKS AT CITY LIBRARY

Students of the Bible will be interested to know that Miss Helen Stewart, chief librarian at the Public Library, has some excellent material concerning religious matters. Owing to the fact that Sunday School teachers are planning a campaign for advancement along religious lines for their students during the Summer, the books at present available should prove of great value. They concern problems of a religious nature. One of the most notable of these is G. Papini's "Life of Christ." This is doubly interesting since the author was for some time an atheist and greatly prejudiced against religion and all matters pertaining thereto.

WAS DIFFERENCE.

An office boy was asked by a waiting visitor in the reception room of a certain firm how much he earned a week. "Fifty dollars," he replied. The visitor later told the employer what the boy had said and the youngster was called on the carpet.

"Did you tell Mr. Smith that you got fifty dollars a week?" he was sternly asked.

"No, sir," he replied. "I said I earned fifty dollars; I get five."—New York Mail.

JOINT SERVICES TO BE HELD HERE

Ministers Arrange to Preach to Both Congregations Each for One Month

Joint services of the First Congregational and First Baptist churches will be held for the next eight weeks, the morning services to be held every Sunday in the latter church, the evening services in the former. Rev. W. P. Freeman, pastor of the Baptist Church, will preach during the first month and Rev. A. K. McMinn, pastor of the Congregational Church, will officiate during August.

The first service will be conducted in the Baptist Church at 11 a.m. Sunday, and Rev. W. P. Freeman will preach the sermon, taking for his topic "The Scope of the Victorious Life." This is the first of a series of four sermons on the subject. At 7.30 in the Congregational Church the subject will be "Our Common Ground."

Services have been arranged in this way that both ministers may be enabled to take a short holiday. It is hoped by the two pastors that large congregations will attend the services in the churches during the next two months.

To Hold Communion Services.—Divine service will be held to-morrow at St. Aidan's Church, Mount Tolmie, at 11 a. m. and 8.15 p. m. and at Gordon Head Hall at 7 p. m. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be dispensed at 11 p. m. at St. Aidan's and 7 p. m. at Gordon Head. Rev. M. D. McKie is the minister, and any member of any evangelical church will be welcomed to participate in the communion services.

Rev. W. C. Frank will conduct services to-morrow at the T. B. branch of the Royal Jubilee Hospital at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

GARDENS AND WILD FLOWERS

A shady corner of the Jones' garden shows against its dark green background the pale pink and white blossoms of an exquisite Saxifrage. Boykinia is a dweller by streamsides and in shady, moist glens. The delicate flowers in flattish clusters at the summits of the reddish stems have a perfume of their own, quite indescribable, but the beauty of form of the whole plant including the leaves with the softness that comes from innumerable silk hairs is sufficient in itself to make Boykinia a garden favorite. Indeed there are many of the Saxifrages which might well be introduced into gardens from their native haunts. I do not refer to that conspicuous member of the family, The Flowering Currant, whose crimson blossoms give such a splash of vivid color to the springtime woodland, or to the Syringa or Mock Orange with its sweet scented, pure white blossoms. I am thinking rather of the smaller plants.

The Fringe Cups.

The Fringe Cups derive their name from the delicate edging of the petals. The Spring species, Tellima parviflora, is of a beautiful shade of pink, and is a very graceful plant. The later flowering Tellima grandiflora has its petals almost like lace, and varying in color from a whitish yellow to red. It is a strong vigorous grower and blossoms freely. Henchera micrantha or Alum Root I am glad to say Jones has in his garden along a sunny border. It blossoms there all Summer long with its springlike panicles of creamy white flowers. It, too, is a strong vigorous grower.

The True Saxifrages.

The native Tufted Saxifrage, caespitosa, is a not unworthy rival of the florist's variety. Its flowers are white and its leaves form the same close rounded tufts. The hills of Metchosin district abound with it. Of course, it is a rock plant, as is also Saxifraga rufidula, which loves summits of our western hills. Its thick leaves have round-toothed margins and white of a glossy green above are tinged with crimson below. The heads of white flowers are very pretty with the red stamens of the individual blossoms.

A Rare Rock Plant.

Extremely like a Saxifraga is a beautiful plant with large white flowers and roundish somewhat indented leaves in clusters. Jones has one or two precious specimens, but where he got them he will not divulge even to me. However, I know it's name it not its haunt. Romanzoffia Unalaschensis is a northern plant, which has somehow found its way from Alaska to Ucluelet and to some point or points in the Victoria district. It is of the same family as the well-known Nemophila, an old-fashioned garden favorite, and it has a sister species which is found in the mountains of British Columbia. As Nemophila is, as its name implies, a lover of woods, so the Romanzoffia is a lover of cliffs in both species. I may say I feel rather hurt at the secretiveness of Jones in the matter of this plant's whereabouts. But I suppose he has seen something of the ruthless destruction of plants here or elsewhere, and he wont even risk tempting me. R. C.

From a true conversation not many miles from Boston. A girl of eight years returns from church, where the minister had gesticulated freely. "Mother, I liked the sermon; but will you tell me why the minister did not do his setting-up exercises before he went into the pulpit?"—Christian Register.

The Sunday school lesson was on Job. The superintendent was endeavoring to picture the painful existence of Job to his youthful audience. To this end he was dwelling at length upon poor Job's sufferings, and the futility of medical treatment.

A small boy who had been absorbed in the tale held up his hand.

"What is it, Willie?" asked the superintendent.

Moulding Character — Mothers' important privilege

CHILDREN need the guidance and sympathy of mother. It is mother who moulds their characters — mother so quickly understands their childish needs. A child that is brought up in the right home atmosphere will grow up to be a useful man or woman. Wise mothers are eliminating baking and other needless tasks and are spending more hours with the kiddies — perhaps taking them to the sunny beach or shady park. Unitarian Layman's League Prepares Plans for Summer School

Henry C. Hall, president of the Victoria chapter of the Unitarian Laymen's League, has been notified that the chapter is entitled to select two delegates to the third annual institute for religious education arranged by the League at the Isles of Shoals, ten miles off the coast of Portsmouth, N.H.

Beginning on July 28 and continuing until August 11, this institute will endeavor to train and inspire a new group of Unitarian laymen to take an active part in the direction of the schools of religion in their churches. That the Laymen's League, though only four years old, has arranged three of these annual institutes, is proof of the importance which the laymen place upon the instruction of their boys and girls in religious principles and practice. The capacity of the present equipment at the Shoals has been taxed both years, and in 1922 applications for reservations received after July 1 were placed on the waiting list.

A notable faculty has been obtained, led for the second year in succession by Dr. Theodore G. Soares, of the University of Chicago, dean of the department of practical theology. He will give ten lectures, evenly divided in their treatment of the Old and New Testaments.

Prof. A. Eustace Hayden, also of the University of Chicago, will give five lectures on the nature of religion and the converging tendencies in the great religions of the modern world. A series of equal length is announced by Dr. Henry F. Cope, general secretary of the Religious Education Association. Dr. William I. Lawrance, president of the Unitarian Sunday School Society and secretary of the department of religious education of the American Unitarian Association, continues as dean.

Enrolment to date, reported by the Unitarian Laymen's League, shows a widespread distribution. Deelgates already have been certified from the Pacific Coast, Middle West and South, and Canada. Of the other Unitarian organizations which meet annually at the Isle of Shoals the Young People's Religious Union has a long waiting list for the third week in July, and has nearly exhausted the assignments for the students' week which immediately precedes the Laymen's League institute.

Lord Riddell, Martyr to Facts and Figures

Suave and Courteous Peer Sees Everything as Good Copy—Conversation Is Encyclopedic.

If one of the first proofs of greatness in a man is the genuine pleasure with which he will welcome criticism, then Lord Riddell, the English newspaper owner, is probably a great man.

When Lord Riddell recently went to America, the United States press got thoroughly busy with his personality. All sorts of nice things were said about him, and all sorts of nasty things as well. Instead of ignoring the latter and trying hard to forget them, as nearly every leading politician and newspaper magnate in the country would have done, his lordship calmly collected all the notices—good, bad, and indifferent—and published them in a book for the private behoof of his many friends.

Lord Riddell

That immediately stamps the man. He is a realist. He prefers facts to fictions. And if it were not known that he is an extremely enthusiastic golfer, it might be thought the collection of facts and figures is the only serious hobby of his life. He is almost a martyr to data. His conversation is encyclopaedic. While another man's mental recreation may be a constant indulgence in day-dreams, his will be the careful pigeon-holing of information for future reference.

His great friend Lloyd George's wartime perorations were the spontaneous expressions of an emotional temperament. To Lord Riddell they were simply "good copy." In other words he is an eminently practical man, who has lived in the world to very useful purpose. He understands to a nicety what the average person wants, and he caters to it. He regards the effort to give the man in the street something that the man in the street has never asked for as supremely futile. He sees no use for an art that has no commercial value. And in the last analysis he is possibly right.

To a young author of high-brow tendencies who once applied for his help, he imparted an admirable piece of advice: "The public want another 'Tarzan,' he said; "I've never read 'Tarzan' myself, and I don't know what it's all about, but you can take my word for it that that's the stuff to give 'em!" Yet there is nothing hard about his utilitarianism. He's very human and even sentimental, and he would go a great distance out of his way to spare people's feelings or do some deserving person a good turn.

The most extraordinary thing about him is his friendship for Lloyd George. When the latter was Prime Minister, during the most stormy days of the war and subsequent peace-patching, Lord Riddell was his most constant companion. No two people could be less alike. But each is the complement of the other. And when the final chronical of this epoch is written, it will be found that the ex-Premier's guardian-angel was a suave and courteous peer who doled out sensation and doted on statistics.

Society Leader Wishes Lock of Paderewski's Hair

A musician tells an amusing story of Paderewski's tour of the southern states. "I encountered the pianist and his party when they were passing through Georgia," he says, "and had the pleasure of riding for some distance with them in their private car.

"At one of the stops, Paderewski was handed a letter from a certain grande dame and noted society leader of a large western city. It was a gushing epistle, and, after several pages of what was evidently intended as a tribute to his art, the writer wound up by requesting "a lock of hair," and enclosed a stamp for return postage.

When the laughter had subsided, Paderewski's secretary proceeded to indite a reply which ran as follows:

Dear Madam,—M. Paderewski directs me to say that it affords him much pleasure to comply with your request. You fail to specify whose hair you desire, and to avoid error, he has secured a sample from each of the staff on voyage—to wit, his manager, his secretary, his valet, his two cooks, and his waiter, together with a small portion form a cat and a mattress belonging to the owner of the coach de luxe which we occupy.—I have the honor to be your obedient servant.

There was some uproarious sport in collecting the souvenirs.

Archbishop Vamped by Demure Young Maiden

The Archbishop of Canterbury is known among his friends as especially partial to two things, children and jokes, and is rather fond of telling the following story against himself:

As Bishop of London, he was one day walking in the suburbs of the British capital when he chanced upon a little girl who was standing looking up somewhat wistfully at a four-barred gate. "Oh, please sir," she asked, "will you open this gate for me?"

Smiling upon the demure maiden, the bishop lifted the latch, and pushed back the gate, but, in spite of its size, it swung so easily that he said, "You're such a big little girl that I should think you could yourself have opened so nice a gate as this."

"Oh, I could, sir," she replied, "but then I should have got my hands all over fresh paint." And then the bishop saw that that was just what had happened to him.

"Gee, Some Hat!"

The actor, Edward Robins, well known to Torontonians as the head of the Robins Players, who is now making his audience laugh in "So This is London" at the Prince of Wales Theatre in London, decided to buy a hat a few days ago, so he went to a famous Piccadilly hatter's.

The actor intimated that he would like a hat that, when he returned to New York, would make his friends exclaim: "Gee, some hat."

He tried on a hat, liked it, and inquired of the assistant what he thought of it.

Reporter Won Interview From Lord Northcliffe

The diary of the late Lord Northcliffe, the great newspaper publisher, of his trip around the world, 1921-1922, has very recently been published. Toronto people will remember that he visited their city and will be interested in the following note on his day in Toronto.

Lord Northcliffe

"At the golf course yesterday, Sunday, despite the fact that most of the Toronto people are away in their forests and lakes, they gave me no peace. Men and women alike watched my performance, which was quite a good one. I beat a much better player than myself." The "better player" was a Toronto man of prominence who played with Lord Northcliffe at the Lambton course.

Lord Northcliffe was unwell when he was here. But his entry in his diary that "I hate crowds, demonstrations, ceremonials, and curiously enough, although I am one myself, newspaper reporters," recalls the story of a Toronto newspaper man who was sent to interview him when he was here. Lord Northcliffe didn't want to talk, but the newspaper man put it up to him in this way: "Lord Northcliffe, if you sent a man to interview a prominent visitor you would expect him to get the interview and write a story."

Lord Northcliffe thought a minute and then replied, "That is a hard obstacle to overcome." The reporter got a good story.

Chinese Minister Preaches in Berlin

Rapids Could Not Beat Chapleau Prospector

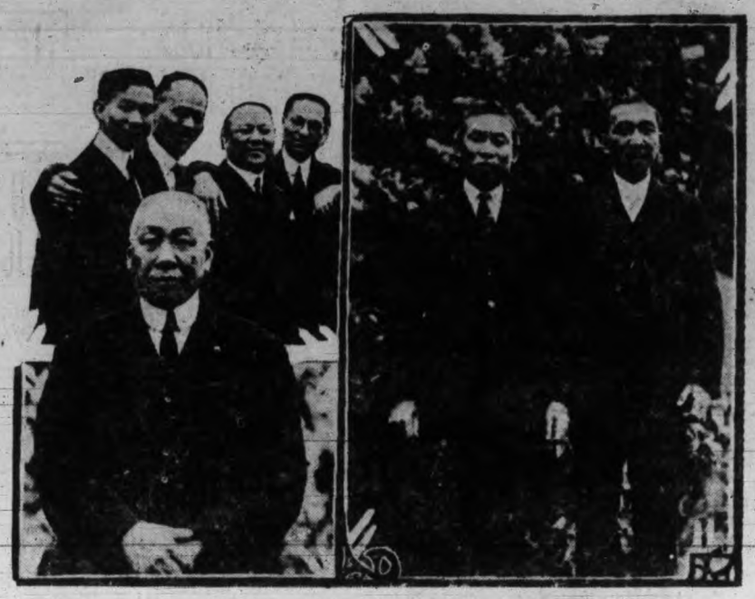

Robert Holding's Policy Is "Try Again" —Found It Successful for Gold and Rivers.

In a recent account of the search for gold made by Robert Holding of Chapleau culminating in his success in the Shining Tree district and the sale of his claim for $35,000, there is a story of prospecting days which illustrates the determination of the man.

A party from Chapleau consisting of Mr. H. West, Indian agent at that time, Rev. R. J. Renison, missionary, but now of Hamilton, Mr. Robert Holding, prospector, and others were making a trip together down the Ground Hog river. There are some bad rapids on the river, and while going down one of the rapids Mr. Holding's canoe was upset and he and his supplies were thrown into the water. Others were quite near at hand, both man and supplies were salvaged and reached the foot of the rapids in safety. Rev. Dr. Renison who was an expert canoeist was following down the rapids when his canoe was caught in a cross current and turned completely around. The good doctor held his canoe steady and made the rest of the descent backwards. When Mr. Holding saw the missionary coming down the rapids in reverse order he cried out, "Well, by George, if Renison can come down those rapids backwards I can come down them, too," and he picked up his canoe, carried it back over the portage to the head of the rapids and successfully made the descent.

He would not allow the rapids to beat him.

It is not known whether the Poet Laureate will not be able to spare time from his official duties to take a holiday this Summer.—Punch.

Historic Scene in Methodist Church, Entry to Ministry of Chinese Clergy

By Justin Wilson

One has, of course, heard of Chinese missions and converts in Canada, but very few people have been privileged to see the reception into the ministry of Chinese clergy. Such a scene was recently witnessed in Queen's Avenue Methodist Church, New Westminster, during the annual conference of Methodist churches in British Columbia. The clergy were the Rev. Fong Dickman, who had worked in British Columbia as a lay evangelist for twenty-five years—this Chinaman has two daughters who are graduates of the Normal School and one of them is in the second year at the University of British Columbia—and Rev. Chan Yu Tan, who has been twenty-six years in Canada and shares with his brother, Chan Sing Kai, the honor of being the pioneer missionary in Methodist missionary work in British Columbia. They were the founders of the first Wesleyan Methodist school in Hongkong.

Another Chinese clergyman present at the conference was Rev. Y. N. Wwan, pastor of the Beatty Street Chinese Methodist Church, Vancouver. He was ordained five years ago by the British Columbia Conference. C. H. Lum, who is a pastor at Victoria, is a graduate of the Union Theological College, Canton. He has recently arrived from China and will be ordained next year.

In their third and fourth years respectively at Toronto University, Edward B. Gung, Victoria, and Philip Y. Y. Chu, Vancouver, are receiving education to fit them for work in the Chinese medical mission fields of Canada, and at 299 Queen Street West, Toronto, will be found Dr. F. C. Stephenson, secretary of the Young People's Forward Movement for Missions, who has the welfare of the Chinese very much at heart. He was an outstanding figure at Conference and took the pictures of the Chinese clergy shown in the article to add to his already large store of Chinese photographs and lantern slides.

According to Dr. S. S. Osterhout, who has been in charge of the Chinese Methodist Mission since 1911, there are two Chinese missionaries in Saskatchewan, one in Winnipeg, two in Toronto and one in Montreal, in addition to those in British Columbia. The last four mentioned work in co-operation with the Presbyterian Church. The total church membership is from 3,000 to 4,000. Young missionaries are coming on, and Chow E. Ching, Vancouver, returns from the Union Theological College after Christmas to take up Canadian work. Chow Ling, the lay evangelist for the Kootenay district, however, goes to college in Canton next Spring. F. J. Cheong was a missionary attending the conference from the Kamloops and Okanagan districts. He was formerly a missionary in Alberta and was a student of Mount Royal College, Calgary.

Rev. Osterhout thinks very highly of the Chinese. They are invariably consistent, have a high sense of honor and are always men of strong convictions. They are a fine race, he says, and their sterling attributes are discernible in relation to the Christian faith. Of very progressive tendencies of late years, they are almost impatient to take their rightful place among the nations of the world.

Eccentric Painter Defied British Army In Defence of His Picturesque Beard

"He hates rules, regulations, customs and laws with all the fury of the man for whom they are especially made."

That is how one unkind critic describes Augustus John, acclaimed by some as the greatest living British artist, and who recently came to America to be one of the jury of selection at the international exhibition at the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh.

Augustus John

No one has ever accepted more readily the role of eccentric genius. With his clear-cut, youthful face, surrounded by a flutter of hair and beard, topped by a slouch hat, set somewhat askew, he looks the beau ideal of a Murger bohemian. Rumor says that he lives up to his appearance.

It was this beard that caused him to achieve the impossible by defying army regulations. He was, during the war, made a major, that he might visit and portray Canadian soldiers in action. Regulations demanded a sacrifice; but regulations of any kind have no meaning to Augustus. He clung to his picturesque fringe desperately, and triumphed. The brush was mightier than the sword, the beard than the razor.

He was less fortunate in another contest with authority. He had been escorted to a front line trench near Lens, where Fritzie was still holding out venomously, that he might find a suitable background for a picture. Finding the parapet rather in his way, he calmly demanded its removal. Precisely what the officer in charge said to him has not been reported. It would not, we gather, be of much use to a respectable periodical if it had been.

In his most famous dispute, that with Lord Leverhulme, of Sunlight Soap, he certainly had the moral right on his side, though the law was with his opponent. This personage commissioned John to pait his portrait. Receiving the completed work, he quietly cut the head from the canvas. The mutilated remains of his artistic offspring were returned to their parent.

John holds strongly to Whistler's opinion that the purchaser of a work of art is a mere custodian for posterity. He spoke strongly on the subject. In fact, he kept on speaking until Leverhulme, who is notorious for a quarrel with another great portrait painter, Sir William Orpen, R.A., must have thought longingly of the comforts of the ancient pillory. The art students of London added to his joys by burning him in effigy.

There is about John's work just this quality of the rather naively unconventional. It is said that he likes his sitters better if they are odd-looking. Through their oddity he depicts character with uncanny power.

If he is the spoilt child of the art world he certainly has the child gift of wondering insight.

First Colors Presented to an Irish Free State Unit

General Mulcahy, the chief commissioner of the Irish Free State Civic Guard, is here seen presenting the first set of "unit" colors ever made to a Free State unit. The honor was accorded to the Railway Protection and Maintenance Corps at Wellington Barracks, Dublin. The colors are about to march off in this snap. General Mulcahy is seen on the right.

No Distinction Made by Salvation Army

All That Didn't Belong to Anything or Anybody Followed the Young Girl in Blue.

Commander Evangeline Booth, on being congratulated at a banquet recently on the good work of the Salvation Army, explained their success as follows:

"You see," she said, "we are like this in the Army: Once there was an unemployment crisis, and a great crowd of hungry men and women gathered in a certain town hall, and the ministers of the town gathered there also to do what they could.

Evangeline Booth

"All the Episcopalians here present," said the Episcopalian minister, "follow me to the parish house."

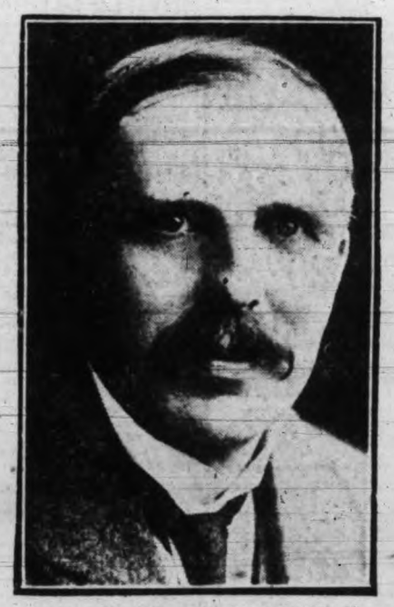

"All the Presbyterians here present," said the Presbyterian minister, "follow me to the manse."

So it went on. Each of the town's ministers departed with a little crowd of hungry followers that he would care for as best he could.

"Then the Salvation Army captain, a young girl in a blue uniform, rose and shouted to the great ragged crowd that was left:

"All of you that don't belong to anything or anybody, follow me."

According to Professor Unwin, the natives of the cannibal island of Pagua never kiss each other. Having seen them on the pictures we don't blame them.—Punch.

Man Who May Explode the World

But he hasn't done it yet. That's the big point. He is Sir Ernest Rutherford, one of the leading scientists of England, former winner of the Nobel prize for chemistry and the world's leading authority on atomic structure. His experiments, brought down to the understanding of the lay mind, means that by firing an atom, which like the rest of the universe is filled with hydrogen, the entire world may explode in a puff of smoke. It is believed that Sir Ernest's experiments are so fundamental that they promise the solution of many problems of chemistry and physics which a few years ago seemed incapable of solution, among them the actual transmutation of the elements—the age-old search of the alchemists.

Prominent Men Sleep More Than Forty Winks

English Celebrities Confess That They Need as Many as Ten Hours' Slumber.

How many hours do you think some well-known English people sleep? Answers to this question received by John O'London's Magazine seem to prove that the mythical three or four hours' sleep for supermen is not much in vogue by ordinary geniuses.

Lord Haldane is only one of the moderate sleepers, and yet he says:

"I go to bed when my work is done. That is usually late. Last night it was 1.45 a.m. I sleep between six and seven hours, and I do not sleep in the daytime."

Lord Leverhulme, of Sunlight Soap fame, interesting to Canadians at the present time from the fact of his ownership of Lewis Island of the Hebrides, is one of the light sleepers. "My average time for sleep at night," he says, "is five hours, with a maximum of six and a minimum of four. I take what are called forty winks after lunch, and the forty winks are anything from half an hour to an hour, occasionally even longer, but the average would not be an hour.

Lord Burnham, owner of The London Daily Telegraph and outstanding newspaper proprietor, who travelled across the dominion at the time of the Imperial Press Conference, writes: "I am never quite happy or healthy if I do not get, as a rule, eight hours or at least seven hours of sleep each night; but then, on the other hand, I do not sleep in the daytime if I can help it, not even in the House of Lords. The time of my going to bed is determined by the printing press. As a rule, I like to be in bed before midnight."

Lord Leverhulme

John Galsworthy, widely known as author and playwright, is not quite sure how long he sleeps: "I should think about seven and a half hours on an average. No habits, except the practise of not going to sleep in the daytime when I can help it."

Reginald McKenna, who is to be Chancellor of the Exchequer in the new British Government, needs all the sleep he can get and never gets all the sleep he needs.

Reginald McKenna

"I atone for going to bed habitually late by rising habitually early. I would thankfully sleep for a long time during each day if I could do so, but I have to be content with some six hours at night, when I am lucky, and with less when I am not. I hope fervently that none of your readers will suggest any cure for insomnia. I have tried them all, and none of them is a cure."

Sir Eric Geddes' secretary writes: "Personally, Sir Eric finds a minimum of eight hours' sleep necessary on the average, but he does not sleep as a practise for a short time during the day, but whenever he gets an opportunity, such as a sea voyage or a wet Sunday, when his arrangements are upset by the weather, he takes the opportunity of storing up ten or twelve hours' sleep.

General Booth of the Salvation Army also believes in plenty of sleep:

"I need seven hours' sleep. I am fortunate in this, that when—as often happens—owing to late meetings or night work, I am deprived, I can (as opportunity serves) make up by taking more than seven hours on some nights.

"I do not usually sleep in the day, but I have lately made a practise of taking half an hour's absolute quiet after my light and hasty lunch.

General Booth

"When for any reason I cannot sleep at night, whether at home or abroad, I have found it better to read than to lie awake. I prefer a philosophical work, e.g., Mr. Balfour's "Foundations of Belief," as a bed book, but on occasion I take something of another type. Just now I am reading again 'The Life and Letters of Erasmus,' by Froude."

Gilbert Chesterton likes as much as he can get. "and as I go to bed very late," he says, "I invariably get up very late. I never sleep in the middle of the day."

Neither does Sir William Orpen, the great painter, sleep in the daytime, but he holds the record, in comparison to all the others, in length of slumber, taking ten hours and going to bed early; and, characteristically, he does not apologize to anybody for it.

Professor Saunders asserts that the bagpipes have been played since 8,000 B.C. Quite long enough.—Punch.

THE COCKROACH CURE.

An amusing story is told by Mr. Harry L. Foster in "The Adventures of a Tropical Tramp":—

"'At La Merced to-night you must look out for the cockroaches,' a Peruvian warned me. 'It would be well, senor, to ask the hotel proprietor for a frog to keep in your room.'

"'A frog?' I demanded.

"'Yes, senor; a frog to kill the cockroaches. Make the proprietor give you a good frog—one with good, springy muscles—one that can jump for them. And when the frog has killed all the cockroaches, senor, ask the proprietor for a snake.'

"'A snake?'

"'Yes, senor, a snake, to eat the frog. Then, senor, you climb out of bed and kill the snake, and there are no more cockroaches left to disturb you.'"

THREE HUNDRED TOURISTS REGISTER

Bureau at Dominion Hotel Is Appreciated

During the past week over three hundred tourists have registered at the Information Bureau of the B. C. Automobile Association at the Dominion Hotel, and have obtained data regarding the roads and places of interest on the Island.

Among those who registered are Mr. L. James, of Cashmere, Wash.; Mr. T. Lloyd, of Mt. Vernon; H. E. Hescher, of Sacramento, Cal.; Mr. C. McKinnon, of Butte, Montana; Miss Myra Simond, of Passadena, Cal.; Mr. C. D. Hillman, of Berkley; Major and Mrs. E. H. Pawn, Palo Alto, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hamilton, Los Angeles; Miss Norma Egg, of Texas; F. A. Ross, of Seattle. All the above and many others are touring the Island, some for a few days and others on a camping and fishing tour for several weeks.

The Association has established an Information Bureau at Blaine, Wash., in charge of a uniformed attendant, for the convenience of incoming tourists from the States, and there is also a uniformed official meeting all boats arriving at Victoria, Nanaimo and Vancouver, to give road and other information, and if necessary, take off or replace windshields, and lower or raise tops. This association is the first organization in Canada to adopt the strip map service, each map covering a distance from fifty to one hundred miles, and this service is in general use through the United States.

CHANGED PLUGS WHEN CAR GOING 55 MILES AN HOUR

Feat Performed in a Non-Stop Endurance Test at Indianapolis

Under supervision of technical representatives of the American Automobile Association, which sanctioned the trial, a stock straight eight five-passenger car, equipped with top, windshield and other standard fitments, completed a non-engine stop test in which the car ran 3,165 miles on the Indianapolis Speedway at the rate of 62.63 m.p.h. This included three stops for tires.

The elapsed time was 50 hr., 21 min. Supplies were taken on and drivers changed while the car was running at 50 m.p.h. by means of a supply car, that ran alongside when occasion demanded.

The test started Friday noon and was concluded at 2.21.01 p.m. Sunday. At the end of the test the engine was kept running until 2.45 and the car kept under speed while the representatives of the A.A.A. made observations on the car's condition.

At 6 p.m. the first day it started raining, and the downpour lasted throughout the night, holding the speed down. During the night one spark plug began to miss and later it was found to be cracked, so the relief driver climbed out on the running board and with the car running at 55 m.p.h. changed the plug, cutting through the louvres at the rear of the hood to reach it.

The first tire change was made at the end of 1,300 miles, all four casings being changed because two of the treads were worn to the cords. The second change was made Saturday night and the third Sunday morning, the latter being caused by a puncture, a nail being picked up.

Intermediate times were: 100 miles, 1.34.25; 500, 7.55.23; 1,000, 16.31.65; 1,500, 24.23.14; 2,000, 32.09.03; 2,500, 39.58.12; 3,000, 49.28.52; 3,155, 50.31.01.

The Government of Brazil has recommended the production of alcohol for motor-driven vehicles. It is estimated that nearly 14,000,000 gallons of this motor fuel could be produced annually from sugar finals.

The last link in the 6,500-mile scenic motor highway through Western Canada and the United States is to be thrown open to traffic June 30. The road, 93 miles long, passes through the Rockies and virgin mountain and forest country.

INVITES DESIGN FOR EMBLEM

The Automobile Club of British Columbia, which is the name under which the amalgamated Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster clubs have been incorporated, is desirous of having the very best design possible for its emblem. It has, therefore, offered a prize of $25 for the best design. The emblem will be executed in three colors, and will be approximately four inches in width. The design should bear the name of the Automobile Club of British Columbia together with the name of the branch, such as Victoria, and the letters R. A. C. to denote affiliation with the Royal Automobile Club. In addition a space one and three sixteenths in diameter is to be provided for the insertion of a smaller plate bearing the year date. Designs other than those in the shape of a circle or wheel will be favored. Persons wishing to enter designs may get additional information from the secretary, R. R. Webb, 402 Pemberton Building.

Judges for the competition will be chosen at the first meeting of the board of directors, which will be held shortly.

MOTOR NOTES

Members of the Victoria Automobile Club who have not yet taken delivery of their emblems are asked to call for the mat the office, 402 Pemberton Building, or notify the secretary, when they will be sent.

Many members of the Victoria Automobile Club have gone on tour already this year. These members have all obtained definite last minute reports on roads as well as maps of their proposed tours before going. There has been such a demand for maps that a fresh supply has had to be ordered. The club maintains the closest relations with all the clubs to the South and East and the members find it a great asset, as they are extended the privilege of membership wherever they tour.

There have been a large number of callers at the office of the Victoria Automobile Club this week. The number of tourists on the Island is now large and members of other clubs as well as many tourists who are not members are availing themselves of the touring information and maps furnished by the club.

Mrs. Mary Palmer Storey, of Albany, New York, called at the office of the Victoria Automobile Club on Friday. Mrs. Storey is now touring the Island after which she is proceeding home by way of Banff-Windermere Highway, visiting Banff and Lake Louise, thence to Calgary, to Glacier National Park and Yellowstone Park, and east via Chicago. All information required, as well as maps for this trip, were furnished to Mrs. Storey by the club.

While some pieces of road on the Island are getting rather hard and to some extent rugh due to the dry weather, generally speaking, they are in first-class condition for touring. Word has been received that the bridge from Courtenay to Comox is to be closed on certain days during the Summer. This does not, however, cause any inconvenience, as there is a good detour which is a delightful drive and only involves an extra mile or two.

The detour at Sidney is getting rather rough owing to the amount of traffic. The Victoria Automobile Club has received word that the first mile of the new paving will be opened in a few days, after which it will only be necessary to make a short detour on the south side of Beacon Avenue, thereby cutting out the long one around by Centre Road.

The Victoria Automobile Club is using every effort to induce the Government to repair and surface the short bit of road from Beacon Avenue to the ferry slip at Sidney. This piece was not included in the contract for paving, but it is hoped that the department will be able also to put this road in good condition.

New York state registered 1,325,000 automobiles during 1922, the largest registration in the history of the Automotive Bureau. Revenue from the motor vehicles and fees totalled $12,705,064.

The "Parsonage of the Blue Church," built in 1748, and believed to be the oldest building in New Haven, Conn., is to be torn down and a garage is to be erected in its place.

A laboratory connected with one of the largest manufacturing plants in the United States represents an investment of $100,000, and employs 125 skilled men. Approximately 500,000 laboratory tests are made annually.

One of the longest motor bus lines in the United States is in California, operating on a regular daily schedule from San Francisco to San Diego. Buses operating over this route of 550 miles, usually take two days to complete the trip.

Government officials of New York state are planning to create a state automobile department. It is held that this new department could study a plan for the regulation of motor traffic and establish rules to lessen deaths and accidents.

How B. C. Man Captured Idol From Devil-House

In "Summer Isles of Eden" Mr. Frank Burnett of Vancouver Describes His Travels and Adventures In the Isles of the South Pacific; a New Way to Catch Fish and the Origin of Cannibalism.

By Professor W. T. Allison

During the last five years the South Pacific has been a happy hunting ground for the purveyors of languorous romances and descriptive sketches studded with coral reefs and atolls. Fifty years ago the only kind of literature that was inspired by that part of the world was to be found in the plain, little, red-backed volumes written by missionaries and by a stray volume of travels. One of these travelers, probably the first Canadian to venture in those latitudes, was Mr. Frank Burnett, now a well-known citizen of Vancouver. Twenty-eight years ago he and his wife made their first trip to the islands of the South Pacific, and so great was their charm that he has returned there again and again. He has already recorded his observations of earlier travels in "Through Tropic Seas" and "Through Polynesia and Papua," but four years ago he gathered much fresh material in an extensive voyage which included the Fiji Islands, the Tongan Islands, the Samoan group, Java Sumatra, and Borneo. He has registered his impressions and given us a mass of interesting information about the natives of those countries in a large new volume, profusely illustrated by page photographs taken by himself. It is entitled, "Summer Isles of Eden," and is published by Sifton, Praed and Company, London.

HAS MADE TRAVEL A HOBBY.

In a biographical introduction to this volume, Mr. Francis Dickie, the well-known British Columbia novelist and short story writer, furnishes retired farmers and business men of the prairie country with a suggestion as to how they can spend the last quarter of their lives following the bright eyes of danger in "breadths of tropic shade beneath the heavy-fruited tree in dark-purple spheres of sea." If Mr. Burnett has sought the palms and bread-trees of the sunny south and found them so entrancing that he has come back to Vancouver only to subsist impatiently even in that beautiful city until he yielded once more to the lure of the coral country, why should not other wealthy, retired Canadians, who spend their days on the golf links of Vancouver and Victoria, also slip down the latitudes to those Summer Isles of Eden for a change of air and diet, and the spice of adventure. For there are still perils in plenty in that earthly paradise—perils of climate, perils of the sea, especially when you try to round a coral reef in a typhoon, and perils from the savages, if you penetrate remote districts and have a fancy for collecting Polynesian idols. Mr. Dickie tells us that four years ago Mr. Burnett traveled alone in the Solomon Islands, where the inhabitants live in almost the same state of savagery as they did when these islands were first discovered by Mendano, the Spaniard, in the sixteenth century. "He lived with a trader on Roviana Lagoon, in the Island of New Georgia," says Mr. Dickie, "and they never ventured out on trading expeditions without being fully armed. Frank Burnett's weakness for collecting, however, led him to take many chances. He particularly wanted to get a certain idol from one of the devil houses of the natives. Now, these devil houses, despite the name, are sacred places, taboo to the white man. Even the Solomon Island women are not allowed to look upon them." The author of this book, however, desired one of those idols with a great desire. He entered the place of its abode, took it down from its pedestal, then made hurriedly for his boat, a quarter of a mile away. Just when he thought he was getting away with his prize, he was sighted by a dozen warriors, who set after him in full cry. The Vancouver collector never traveled faster in his life, but he was handicapped by the weight of the idol under his arm. Nevertheless, he clung to it, even though the spears were whistling past his head. Thanks to his good start on the savages, he reached his boat safely, jumped into it in a trice, and was soon out of reach of his angry pursuers. Had Mr. Burnett lingered in that devil-house five minutes longer or had he tripped over a root on the way to the boat, I should not be reviewing his book at this moment. How strange it seems to think that this idol-collector was at one time running a grain elevator in south-western Manitoba, two hundred miles from Winnipeg!

ANOTHER CANADIAN WHO WENT SOUTH.

Mr. Burnett has spent many years wandering through the southern Pacific exploring its countless islands, but sooner or later he always comes back to add another pile of curios to those he has alrady given to the museum of the University of British Columbia. He tells in this volume, however, of a fellow-Canadian, a former resident of Ontario, whom he found settled down for life on a plantation of his own on a Fijian island. This Mr. Tavua Johnson has certainly had a variegated career. Born on the shores of Lake Erie, Johnson found in his teens that Canada was too slow a country for a person of his temperament. So he crossed the border and joined the American army. When he had enough of that, he became a saloon keeper in Chicago. Still thirsting for a more adventurous life, he became a typographer. Perhaps he set up some missionary literature concerning the Fiji Islands, for he decided to make for that happy land. Arriving there, an Englishman with the necessary capital engaged him as an expert to build and operate a cigar factory. The Englishman lost the capital in that venture. It was transferred to Johnson in the shape of wages. With the money thus earned Johnson bought some goods and began to keep a general store in Tavua. He was so successful that the natives called him Tavua, for he was evidently the soul of the village. Later on he was able to purchase the fine copra plantation when he entertained Mr. Burnett in handsome style and spent a whole evening unrolling the picture film of his colorful life. Mr. Burnett intimates, however, that our fellow-countryman of Tavua does not convey the impression that he scorns to embroider sober truth with the silk floss of imagination.

WHERE FISH ARE DOPED.

Every son of Isaak Walton ought to read Mr. Burnett's book. Even Salmon Arm would lose its charm and the trout streams of northern Ontario would seem inhospitable waters to the fisherman who once dragged colored rags on his troll in Fiji, lassoed sharks in the Friendly Isles, caught immense fish by putting a hunk of dry bread on a line in Javan lakes, or followed the ancient piscatorial custom in Borneo. Of the many intensely interesting fishing yarns in this volume, I cast my vote in favor of the following account, which describes how the Dyaks of Borneo take the finny prey. "When the point was reached where operations were to commence," says Mr. Burnett, "we found the creek thronged with canoes of all sizes crowded with natives, men, women and children, armed with fishing spears, awaiting our arrival. Two large dug-outs, three-quarters full of tuba poison, were also in readiness. This mixture is prepared by pounding the root into shreds and then adding water in a certain proportion known to the fishermen. Our appearance on the scene was the signal for the emptying into the creek of the mixture, when results soon followed and the fun began. It was certainly an exciting scene, accompanied with many laughable incidents, when the stupefied fish commenced to appear on the surface of the water gasping for breath. Natives standing up in their frail canoes, yelling at the top of their voices, speared for all they were worth. Occasionally two boats, going after a particularly desirable fish, would collide, throwing their occupants into the water, enabling those in a third canoe to secure the coveted prize, amidst the shrieks of laughter of the spectators. How potent is the poison was shown by the fact that, by the time we left, stupefied fish were being caught as far down as the barrier, quite a mile below where the mixture had been thrown into the creek. It does not, however, kill the fish, only affecting them temporarily."

WHY THE FIJIANS ATE THEIR FOES OR VISITORS.

According to Mr. Burnett, a visitor from far away, even a plump, white man or maiden, falls to-day to excite the carnivorous desire usually associated with a king of the cannibal islands. There are no cannibals nowadays, except, perhaps, in very remote hill districts, because the Fijians have long been accustomed to a meat diet. This author thinks that the scarcity of animal food was what brought cannibalism into fashion ages ago. He says that, before the arrival of the European, animal food, other than that of human flesh, was practically unobtainable. Though well supplied with fish, vegetables and fruit, the Fijian was continually tormented by a flesh hunger, "he like all men being so constituted that a certain quantity of animal food was absolutely necessary to his well-being and happiness. All travelers have noted this intense craving, when deprived for any length of time of food containing a fair percentage of fatty ingredients; in fact, man is a carnivorous animal, and if he cannot obtain otherwise the flesh for which he craves, he will certainly indulge in cannibalism." This is rather a sweeping statement. I am sure that my vegetarian readers will not enjoy being branded as cannibals in posse, nor will they be inclined to admit that they are going around all the time tormented by a flesh hunger. In fact, there are people who become nauseated by the very thought of eating meat. But not so the Fiji Islanders. They confine themselves nowadays to pork and fowl, but there was a time when tribal wars were undertaken for the purpose of replenishing the larder. Mr. Burnett gives the name of one Fijian chief, Udrendre, of Rakerki, who is credited with having asisted in the consumption of 872 human bodies, a gastronomic record that has probably never been excelled.

WHEN KRAKATOA WENT UP WITH A BANG.

This big volume of travel is packed with curious information about races and islands, which are mere names to most of us. What a choice assortment of facts exist here for teachers of geography in our public schools! Fortified with this book, a teacher could make the eyes of her children fairly snap with interest. Take, for example, a sample paragraph on Sumatra—"Sumatra, the largest island in the world, being about 165,000 square miles in extent, is crossed by the Equator. The Straits of Malacca separate it from the Malayan Peninsula, to which, according to native traditions, it was attached, until within a comparatively recent time, by a narrow neck of land jutting out a few miles north of the city of Malacca. Between it and Java are the narrow Straits of Sunda, in which is situated the small island of Krakatoa, which was responsible for the worst volcanic catastrophe of modern times. Without the slightest warning, in the year 1883, the greater portion of the island blew up, destroying its whole population, and creating a tidal wave which swept the adjoining mainland, drowning thousands of natives and doing incalculable damage. Batavia, one hundred miles distant, was shrouded in inky darkness for four days, while sounds as of bombardment were heard in Calcutta, several thousand miles away, and the volcanic dust emitted revolved round the earth for three years, giving to the sun's rays a peculiar yellow tinge.

Mr. Burnett will no doubt be very much dissatisfied with this review, for I have said little or nothing about his personal experiences as he ate, traveled and slept here, there and everywhere in the Summer Isles of Eden. Nor have I reproduced any of his humorous passages, nor yet his gleanings of folk lore and Polynesian myths. But how am I to cover a southern encyclopedia in half a dozen paragraphs? The thing is impossible. All I can say in conclusion is that if any Canadian, east or west, sighs for real romance, let him buy this book, charter a yacht, and follow in the wake of the British Columbia adventurer and collector.

Sooke Harbor

VANCOUVER ISLAND

A Brief Sketch of Its History and Possibilities

By W. MILLER HIGGS, F. S. G., London

Pre-emption Act of 1862.

The Second Survey.

It was in 1864 that Captain Daniel Pender, R. N. of the H. M. Survey Vessel, "Beaver" sailed up the inlet, taking soundings of the harbors. This was the year of the great gold rush to Leech River and we find that Dr. Ash then owned Section XI upon the North shore of the inner basin, now known as Saseenos. Here it was that Captain Pender found that the centre of Section XI was "much better for a steamboat landing than off Section VII" adjoining, and an interesting sketch made by him at this time shows a landing called "Dr. Ash's Landing" with a road forty feet wide, continued as a trail to Leech River. There was also shown a block of land some 200 feet wide on the water front bounded on the West by the trail and running back as far as the present Sooke Road which was then proposed for a Government Reserve, probably as a town site. It is very doubtful if Ash's Trail to the Leech River was ever made much use of, for it appears that the landing on the outer basin, now known as Murray's Landing (after John Aitken Murray, who arriving from Greenock, Scotland, with his brother Thomas, purchased the land adjoining in 1886 from Burnett) was the most used by the miners and gold seekers.

First Sooke Hotel.

It was at this spot that the first hotel building was erected on piles along the shore and in the days of the gold rush was indeed a house which carried on a busy business. Long disused when the Murrays arrived yet it afforded them a home for the first year while building their own home. The old building was later removed by them and to-day may be seen used as a cow barn behind their home.

The Sooke Roar.

The year 1864 was an eventful one in the development of the district for the gold rush brought in its trail not only the men but local industry to supply their requirements and emphasized the need for better communication with Victoria. Up to 1863 the only access to Sooke from Victoria was by water, save for a pack-horse' trail via Metchosin to the end of the inlet which was then constructed. It was ten years later that the present road was commenced with a sum no greater than $500. This was started from the old Woodside Farm of John Muir and continued as far as Naylor's Hill (a little nearer to Victoria than Cooper's Cove on the Inner Basin). However the following year 1864 the Surveyor General for the Island, J. D. Pemberton, recommended that the sum of $2000 should be expended on improving this trail through "the impenetrable bush" (as Rear Admiral Fairfax Moresby, R. N. had termed it in 1851) and extending it towards Victoria. This was carried out under the supervision of the Muirs, and eventually completed about the year 1874 when the first bridge across the Sooke River was constructed. From that time down to the present many thousands of dollars have been spent upon this road and, in the not too far distant future, the paved road which now reaches out from the Capital City as far as Colwood, 10 miles, will no doubt be extended until it reaches this wonderful resort of scenic beauty. The work which has been accomplished in sixty years over a pass in the Sooke Hills, rugged and wild in the extreme, is indeed a credit to those pioneers who put this road through. It is but the short space of ten years ago since the first automobile made the trip to Sooke Inlet. To-day hundreds of cars travel this road the year round while five automobile stages daily, run between Sooke and Victoria.

The Stages.

This brings us to consider the somewhat interesting development of the stage service between Sooke and Victoria. As soon as the road was opened in 1874 Michael, son of John Muir, started to run the first mail stage and the first postoffice was opened at the Woodside Farm House. This was one journey per week to and from Victoria and he continued in this for eight years. Muir was succeeded as mail carrier in turn by George Bridges, Thomas Tugwell Ted Gordon, and the Victoria Transfer Company. In 1898 two services per week commenced when Harry Clark and Edward Milne made the trip, Clark starting from Otter Point along the West Coast, beyond Sooke Bay (named Otter Point in 1846 by Capt. Henry Kellett, after Com: Henry Charles Otter, R. N., Rear Admiral, 1870) each Monday and Friday, returning the following day and Edward Milne running from Milne's Landing P. O. Sooke River (which office was opened in 1895) on Wednesday returning from Victoria on Thursday. Henry Fisher also held the mail contract for a term of four years soon after the two mails a week were commenced. It was in 1885 that Edward Milne started the first regular stage for passengers to and from Victoria. This stage left Sooke in the morning and returned the following day. Soon after George Tugwell ran another stage on Thursday and Friday each week. These stages made the journey in about five hours allowing for changing of horses on route. The horse stages began to be replaced by the automobile passenger cars about 1912, though they were not entirely off the road until 1914-15. The automobile cars now make the trip in little over an hour and the district has had a daily mail service since 1920. Such has been the progress in transportation comfort and convenience since the road was opened in 1874. While touching upon transportation facilities the recently opened gas car service upon the Canadian National Railway as far as Saseenos and Milne's Landing, making the journey by way of Metchosin through some lovely scenery in an hour, is a change in mode of travel which will do much to develop this portion of Southern Vancouver Island.

Industries.

The only industries at present being carried on in the district are logging, fishing and agriculture. The logging industry has been a steady one since 1850, and will be for many years to come. The fishing industry is mostly in connection with the salmon traps operated by Messrs. J. H. Todd & Sons and the Sooke Harbor Fishing and Packing Company, and to see these traps lifted during the season is a sight never to be forgotten. As touching the agricultural industry nearly all the old large farms have been cut up and subdivided into smaller holdings. Dairying is carried on successfully by many, who ship sweet cream daily to Victoria. Poultry do exceptionally well, and for fruit growing the district seems ideal. Peaches ripen in the open along the banks of the Sooke River of exceptional quality, and more settlers than ever before are now turning their attention to raspberry and loganberry culture, with a recently organized local Fruit Growers' Association.

Industrial Possibilities—A Sea-Plane Base.

Whilst the inner basin of Sooke Harbor is by nature destined to become a much sought after resort, yet as a commercial seaplane base this sheltered and almost landlocked tidal water of some four square miles has great possibilities.

Lumber.

Then the outer basin as a booming ground for vast quantities of timber on the West Coast will yet present as busy a scene as it did in the early days when Sooke supplied the piles for the wharves at San Francisco, and the Inlet was alive with schooners and brigs loading up finished lumber from the Muir Mill for export. It is to be hoped that the day is not far off when, near the site of the old mill a modern successor will give employment to many in this district, and that high class, seasoned and finished lumber will again be exported in place of the many thousands of feet in logs which annually leave our shores for manufacture elsewhere.

Gold.

Whether there will ever be another gold rush such as this district experienced in 1864-66 is quite speculative. Dawson in his "Mineral Wealth of British Columbia," states that during the excitement of that time a sum between $100,000 and $200,000 was taken from the Leech River diggings. The same authority also says that "gold, often coarse and nuggety, and earnings as high as $34 a day to the rocker were reported in 1864." Colors are obtained in most of the creeks, and prospectors year by year find small gleanings in the crevasses of the rocky banks of the river. Is there a "Mother Lode" somewhere yet to be found? The general opinion is to the contrary, but who can tell?

Copper.

There is ample evidence of a large body of low grade copper ore disseminated through well defined wide zones of sheared rock, geographically termed Sooke Gabbro, on the slopes of Mt. Maguire, East Sooke. The ore is what is known as Chalcopyrite, which could be easily concentrated by ore dressing machinery. These deposits are stated to be of great prospective value, and like all similar deposits on Southern Vancouver Island are more or less closely connected with the igneous rocks which were erupted during the geological period known as the Upper Jurassic of batholithic and dyke intrusion. (The period when the limestone rocks were formed). Much may yet be done in working the copper claims of East Sooke, which as yet have been scarcely touched. Thus far the workings have been little more than of a surface nature, though several shipments of ore from one small shaft were made a short time ago to the smelter at Tacoma, Washington.

Iron.

In the Sooke Gabbro a certain amount of what is known as replacement or segregation deposits of iron ore are found, but these are apparently of no value.

Ochre.

The district, however, is rich in a large deposit of Ochre, and this pigment could be readily purified, and is of value for paint manufacture. It may be of interest to state that the old Post Office at Esquimalt was painted with color made from the Sooke Ochre deposits, and a sound industry might be opened up in this district with the large quantity of this material, which is at hand. No workings on any big scale have been carried out, but borings have been made at different times with excellent results, and as the beds are within easy reach of Sooke Wharf there is no reason why a thriving industry should not develop.

Clays.

Then in continuation of the ochre deposits and in fact over a very large area there are some beds of the finest clays which may be of sufficient depth in certain parts to be of commercial value, and here, too, another industry in pottery, brick making, may arise.

Coal.

Up to the present time no borings have been made in the Sooke district for coal, and it is doubtful if any seams of a paying thickness exist. There are certainly surface indications in several places, and settlers have used these indications for fuel. It must not be forgotten that the original John Muir felt convinced that there was good coal to be found in Sooke, but capital was then lacking for development work. It was he who as an employee of the Hudson's Bay Co., and an expert coal miner, strongly advocated the sinking of the first shaft at Nanaimo. What would it not mean to Sooke and to Victoria if coal should be found in this locality in the future?

Pebbles.

An industry which has been developed by Fred White, of Victoria, during the last two years, and which promises to grow considerably, is that of collecting a particular pebble of a certain size from the beach at Sooke Bay. These pebbles are of so hard a nature that they cannot be broken by a sledge hammer, and are now being used for grinding shale in the manufacture of cement in competition with Belgian manufacturers, who use hardened steel balls. These pebbles are equally effectual, and will outlast any ball for grinding purposes made of steel. These pebbles could be used through all the B. C. mines for grinding ore, and whilst they may be found on other parts of the West Coast shore line yet Sooke Bay for transportation purposes is the most accessible. Last year (1922) four hundred tons of this certain kind of pebble were taken, and some four thousand sacks have already been removed this year.

Local Organizations.

Much has been done towards the development of the Sooke Harbor District by such organizations as the Farmers' and Women's Institutes and Sooke Harbor Development Association, not overlooking the useful work of such movements as the Sooke Harbor Athletic Association, the local branches of the Girl Guides and Boys' Naval Brigade.

Up to the year 1907 the Sooke farmers had allied themselves with the Metchosin Farmers' Institute, but in November of that year they resolved to start an Institute of their own. For many years it did a very valuable work in assisting the agricultural interests of the district. John Aitken Murray was unanimously elected its first president, and Edward Milne, its first secretary-treasurer. Both these men have done much towards the development of the district and curiously enough both came from Greenock, Scotland, the former in 1886, the latter three years earlier. It was Mr. Murray who gave the site for the first church building in Sooke in connection with the Presbyterian Church of Scotland, and Edward Milne has been closely associated with Knox Church ever since its erection. Mr. Murray was made a Justice of the Peace in 1901, and from that time down to April 30, 1923, faithfully carried out the duties of his office. Still active, he rarely misses a meeting of the Sooke Harbor Development Association (founded January 18, 1909), of which he was the first president. He always takes the keenest interest in anything for the welfare of the district and its community. Another whose name will go down in Sooke history as one who for years has unselfishly worked for its development and progress, is that of Capt. John A. I. French, a son of General Sir George French, so well known in the history of the Canadian militia. These men and others have sacrificed themselves to bring this lovely portion of Vancouver Island more prominently before the public notice, and to them and the Sooke Harbor Development Association the district owes much. It was through the work of this association that Sooke Harbor obtained its daily mail service and sufficient pressure, with the assistance of other public bodies, was brought to get a daily service upon the Canadian National Railway in November, 1922. This association is now putting trails through to the summit of Mt. Shepherd, and also to the Sooke River Falls and Devil's Pot Holes above, with painted signs to direct the visitor. The view of the whole Southern end of Vancouver Island from the summit of Mt. Shepherd is truly wonderful and impossible justly to describe whilst the trip to the falls has been described by many as fine as that of the falls near Banff. The scenery is exceptionally beautiful, while the wild flowers in Spring clothe the rocks with a scheme of color and beauty which nature alone can give.

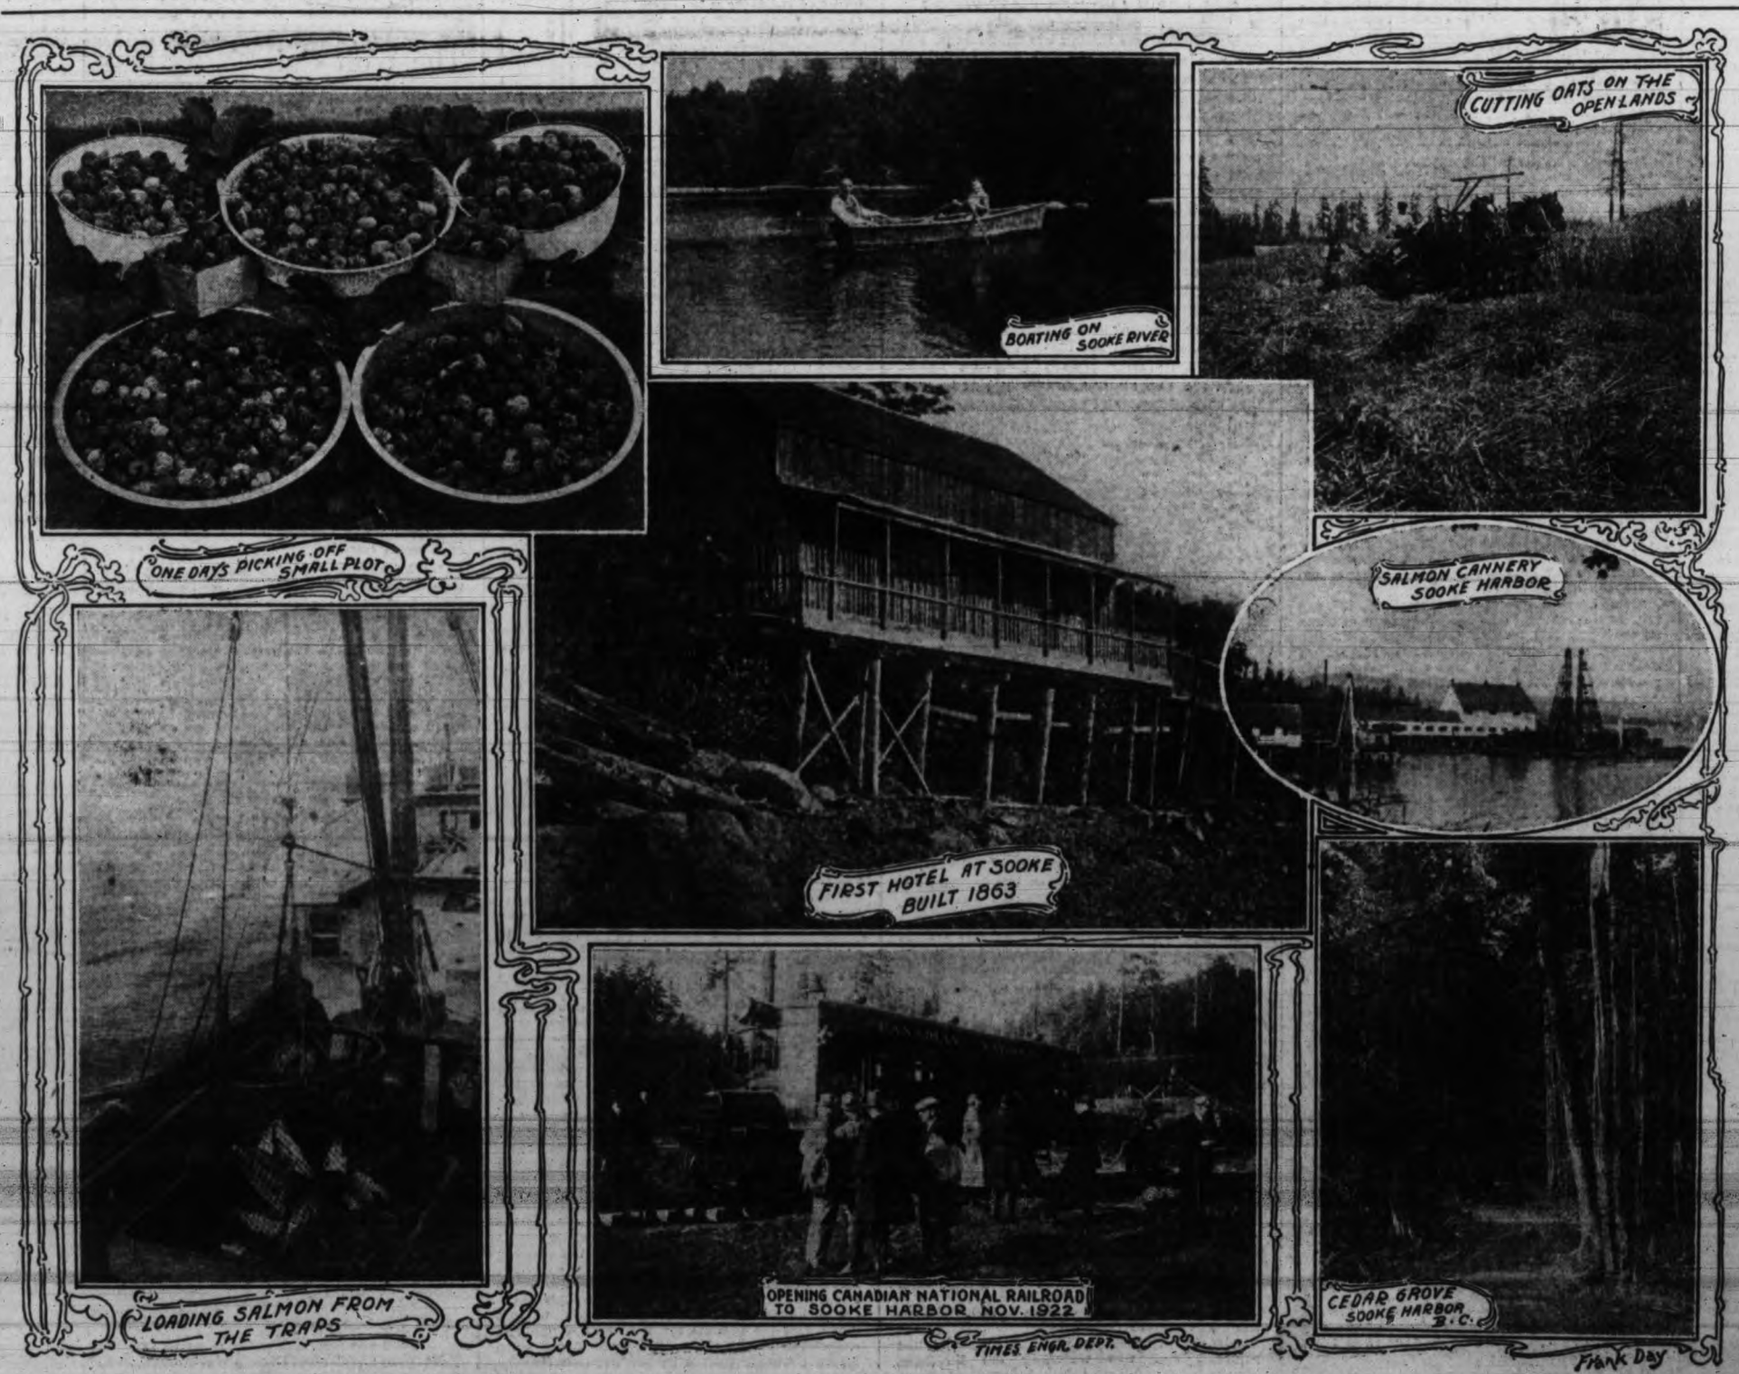

Preservation of Wild Flowers.

Last year Major George S. W. Nicholson, of the Sooke Harbor Hotel, sought the services of Mrs. C. A. E. Higgs, F. R. H. S., in his scheme for the preservation of the many lovely wild flowers found in the Sooke woods and hills, and together they transplanted some hundreds of roots and bulbs to the wooded knoll behind the hotel and, while this work is still being carried on, the effort made last year surprised all expectations in the blaze of natural beauty among the trees and on the slopes of the hotel grounds this Spring.

Climatic Conditions and Local Assets

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO CHILDREN

CHILDREN BURNED BY BEACH FIRES

STOICS, in the days of old, were made to walk across beds of red-hot coals to prove their courage and fortitude; martyrs were branded with red-hot irons if not burned entirely; Even in those days fire was held as a terrific ordeal to face—yet in this day and age the same ordeal is taking place any tiny little children are the victims!

During the celebrations at the beaches on July 2, two children were so seriously burned that they had to be taken home at once to receive medical attention, and have their burns dressed. In both cases the little victims were tots under ten years of age—whose sole crime was that they walked barefoot on the sand. The first, a little girl, walked right on top of a picnic fire that had been left covered, only partly out, with dry sand. The other, a boy, trod on a smoldering log which lay half concealed under a mass of sea weed.

The agonized screams of the children was the first sign of anything wrong, and then it was too late to save little feet from being painfully burnt. In the case of the little girl it will be many days before she can walk again; and the little boy fared only slightly better. The pathetic part of it is that in neither case did the parties responsible for the fires know what damage they had done.

There is no objection to a fire on the beach, provided it is sanely made and well put out when the party is over. Do not trust to luck to put your fire out. Sand alone is not sufficient. It will take many pails of water to quench the fires that some people light.

Long after the fire has been abandoned the wind may come along and whip the embers into life again. The wind may even detach a spark and carry it alive to the underbrush that lines the shore and then a real fire will be in progress, endangering homes—maybe life itself.

Above all do not cover a fire half over with sand. Nothing is more dangerous. Even if the fire does not spring again into life after you have left the beach its embers will heat the sand to such a pitch that the grains will be enough to burn and blister incautious little feet. Little ones at the beach are not looking for concealed, half-dead, fires. They are watching the water traveling heedlessly over the sands in search of merriment.

Since the earliest days fire has been a blessing and a comfort to the peoples of the earth. In these days it serves no less a function, but it can be a menace that outweighs even its usefulness. Since the advent of the hot weather the grass has been drying up and it is no uncommon sight to see three or more grass fires burning at once in separate portions of the city. While firemen fight these blazes a serious building fire may take place in town, a hospital for instance may take fire, and many crippled lives be endangered.

In former days fires were held sacred. Only the very highest authority in the land was permitted to have fire at all, and these were guarded jealously. Nowadays fire is to be had by all at the striking of a match. Because it is free and open to all it has come to be taken as a commonplace matter, instead of a privilege that is even now denied to some peoples of the world.

In lighting a fire at the beach use only the smaller type of wood, which will consume itself before you are due to leave. Great logs that might take a day or more to smolder and burn through, are not necessary for a fire on which to boil one tiny kettle. The same applies to the woods. A very few twigs will suffice to heat the kettle to boil water for tea.

The Indians say of the white man that he uses a big fire and sits a long way off, while the Redskin uses a tiny fire and squats almost right on top of it. The Indian learnt from sad experience that large fires were dangerous, and hard to extinguish.

The danger from fire is seldom seen by those who light the fires. In the woods it is the little birds and other creatures of nature's realm that suffer. They watch your fires with eyes wide in alarm. At the beach it is little children who suffer—little tiny children whose only fault is that they trust too highly in the common sense of those who use fires. Fires, in the eyes of law, are of two main classes. "Tame and friendly" fires, and "wild malicious fires." It is the wild malicious fire that starts when there are none there to put it out.

What return do you make for the bounty of nature? The sea carries in beach wood. The sun warms it ready to your hand. The ability to light a fire is made for you in the convenient, inexpensive, form of a match. Do you use that privilege wisely or to destroy? None would willingly destroy; so it is carelessness that must be guarded against. Not only the chance of self-carelessness, but also the carelessness of others. Remember the incident of the little bare-foot toddlers. Carelessness will be impossible for you after that.

BUDDY AND HIS FRIENDS

By Robt. L. Dickey

TOMMY HAS EXCITING TIME IN DREAMLAND

IT had been a day of excitement and laughter for Tom, a little crippled boy who lived with his parents in a cottage, "somewhere around the corner." First of all it was his birthday and what a wonderful collection of presents he had received! It seemed almost as if everyone was trying to do something for him. The happy day drew to a close with a motor ride in a luxurious limousine in which Tommy, in the seventh heaven of delight, was permitted to sit beside the driver and see how this wonder on wheels was operated.

It was a very happy little boy then that was carried from the limousine to his cot in the tiny home. Here, after a satisfying meal in which a birthday cake played an all-important part, Tommy called for his books. He had that morning received a wonderful collection of story books, tales of adventure, of stirring excitement dear to the heart of a boy.

Best of all in this host of wonders Tommy treasured one book which told of the naval engagements in British battles from Trafalgar to the late war. Tommy's eyes almost started from his head as he read how great ships of the line met and thundered volleys at one another when only a biscuit-toss apart.

It was in this pleasurable state of joyousness that his mother found the little boy when bath and bed time came. While in his bath Tommy called for his toy boats, and enacted a stirring naval battle right there in the bathtub. True, there was no gun fire, but Tommy said "bang" explosively every time he wished his ships to fire. It was a very sleepy little boy that was lifted from his hot bath and put to bed. Long before his head touched the pillow he was asleep. What happened later must, of course, have been a dream, but to Tommy it seemed very real indeed.

It seemed, at first, as if he was in his bath, playing with the toy boats. Then without noting how the change came about, Tommy discovered that he was on board a ship of the line, such as served in Nelson's day. Brass cannon were lashed on the wooden deck, their fat muzzles projecting through square embrasures. Long-haired seamen stood by to serve the guns. The ship was one of many sailing one after the other in line.

Tommy seemed to be in a lookout's post in the cross trees. Ahead and astern other men-o-war ploughed their way under all sail through a choppy sea. As he looked Tommy made out the enemy in line on the beam of his fleet. Scarcely had he taken all this in when every ship belched fire. "Bang," said Tommy, instinctively. There were many "bangs." Cannon shot screamed their way through the air to fall with a crash on the enemy's yielding timbers.

Tommy rubbed his eyes to look again—when everything vanished. Not quite everything—for Tommy now seemed to be in the waist of another man-o-war, a modern battle cruiser this time. Ahead and astern rode other cruisers, belching smoke from their short squat funnels. In between three lines of ships darted string after string of torpedo boats. Small lean racers these, almost hidden in their trail of sooty smoke. As he gleaned this much Tommy saw the gun turrets on his ship swing rapidly to one quarter. Then the ship shook from end to end with the crash of the discharge, and a dozen shells raced roaring on their way to an unseen target.

Stay, right down on the horizon what seemed to be a cloud of smoke was rent in many places with darts of flame. It was the fire of the enemy. The shells whined their way over Tommy's head and burst beyond the line of ships, throwing columns of water high in the air. As he looked the scene changed.

Now it seemed he was in the machine gun nest of a large armored aeroplane. The sky around was dotted with sister ships of the air. Far below, looking like black match sticks on a silver mirror warships crawled along in tedious patience. He was flying over two opposing fleets, and a battle was on.

A line of destroyers detached themselves sluggishly from between the lines of one fleet and crawled over towards the other. A sudden rain of shells whipped the water at their bows into a foam. From their sides sped silver needles which darted towards the enemy fleet leaving a wake of bubbles trailing in their rear. As he looked to see the result of the torpedo boat attack, the scene changed again.

Now Tommy seemed to be at a keyboard in a sound-proof room. Around him was a mass of electrical instruments, gauges and wireless apparatus. On the table in front was spread a map, with here and there cities marked in red circles. On this map, moved by a clockwork device, crawled tiny paper aeroplanes. Slower, but headed in the same direction, were little paper dirigibles.

The air fleet moved over the paper slowly, corresponding with the actual positions of the squadrons in the air. On his head were wireless telephone receivers. Tommy pressed a key and the fleet of paper dots swung around to the right and drew in on a large city. He pressed another key and the aeroplanes waited for the dirigibles to catch up, then all went on together.

Watch in hand, Tommy waited. Suddenly in the phones on his ears came the signal "Fire." Tommy jammed down a red lettered key. Instinctively he said "Bang," for had he not loosed thousands of tons of bombs from the man-less fleet steered by wireless over the enemy's country?

Tommy had just time to catch hold of the table when the floor under him swayed and rocked crazily. Voices were the next thing he heard—the voice of his mother saying, "It's all right Tommy, you are not hurt." You see in turning he had fallen out of bed. The "Bang" was a real one, but made by his head striking the floor.

July Month For Outdoor Hobbies

Sun-warmed sands, sweet sea breezes, and holidays—what a prospect for fun and frolic there lies in the word "July." School books tucked away for two months, chores and "must-be-done's" safely over, it needs now only the will to play to complete all the essentials of a real holiday.

Already the beaches are beginning to call. Daily the little knot of swimmers is growing larger and the sound of merry voices rises with a louder ring. Little tots, much too young to swim, are kicking off shoes and stockings to paddle ankle deep in search of excitement.

Farther out in the water are the beginners—the merry-faced youngsters who with much splashing gain a few feet with great effort. "I did six, Alf," you can hear one say, and do not need to be told that the speaker has achieved another milestone in the act of swimming—taking six strokes before his merry head went under in a splutter of splashes and laughs.

Out amid the surf fleeting heads of swimmers may be seen for a moment to disappear as soon into the crest of the next wave. On the strand watchful parents, fashion plate bathers and others lend their share of color to the scene. Capping it all is the sound of the wave crest breaking on the shore to recede chased by a myriad of little pebbles. Here and there somebody's faithful Fido swims might and main after a stick that spends half its time in being flung to sea and the remainder in being carried back again by the eager-eyed doggie.

There are few sports more healthy than swimming, and few that give greater benefits to its devotees. Yet perhaps not half of those to be seen at the beaches can swim. Boys grown nearly to manhood paddle about on the backs of logs, enjoying the pleasure of the sea without having learnt its lesson.

Every hobby that is worthy of the name should teach something. Make your stay at the beach this year teach you how to swim—not alone for your own sake but also for others. The time may come when somebody falls in and is about to drown. You may be the only one at hand to bring them out. Would you be able to fulfil that duty if the call came now?

To swim is not enough, for it needs a strong swimmer and one that is versed in the art of rescue work to save people from drowning. A drowning person will often fight like a maniac in the terror of the moment. Do you know what to do in that case? If you do not already practice the serious side of swimming, make that your aim this year. Close the long Summer season with that feather in your cap.

The chance to use what you learn might not come for many a year—but come it does to most—and be ready then. Perhaps the life in danger is the one you care most about in all the world. Practice swimming until you are strong and adept at it in the roughest of waters. Learn the right way to tackle a drowning person, how to bring him ashore and to treat him for collapse.

There will be nothing slow or tedious about this study—you will enjoy every minute of it. The pleasure of having a beach is denied to many who live in this wide, wide world—earn that pleasure this year and you will never regret it.

A BUMPER CROP.

Teacher—"Now, Bobbie, tell us when is the harvest season?"

Bobbie—"From November to March."

Teacher—"Why, Bobbie, I am surprised that you should name such barren months. Who told you they were the harvest season?"

Bobbie—"Pa. He's a plumber."

THE EVIDENCE.

"Bridget, has Johnnie come home from school yet?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you seen him?"

"No, sir."

"Then how do you know he's home?"

THE CLUE.

Mollie, who had been the family cook for many years, was sometimes torn between her devotion to her mistress and her loyalty to the small son of the house.

"Mollie," said her mistress one day, after a tour of inspection, "whatever happened to those fine red apples I bought yesterday?"

"Well, now, ma'am," answered Mollie, "I couldn't say, but if you can find where my gingercake is, them apples would be lyin' right on top of it."

COMFORTABLY STUPID.

Teacher: "You notice that boy who stands at the foot of the class? Well, last Summer he was the smartest boy in the school."

Three o'Clock in the Morning

This is the bow-wow chorus. At the moment they are just waking up to the dawn of the new day. They are pure-bred Airedale puppies born in London, England, and now making their home in this land.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Sandman Story For To-night

MRS. ROBIN AND HER FIRST BROOD

Mrs. Robin was raising her first family, and she was so worried for fear they would not all be plump and well that she worked her poor little self all but to death.

"Better take it easy," warned Grandma Robin from a twig above. "You will have plenty more to care for, you know, so why work so hard over this family when there is no need for it?"

"But don't you see how dependent they are?" asked Mrs. Robin, with a worried look, as she fluttered and bobbed about the nest full of wide open mouths. "They have never eaten anything but the nicest worms and if I do not hunt and get the very best they won't eat them. These children are different from most birdlings, you must see that."

"No, I do not," replied Grandma Robin. "They are like all others. They will let you take care of them and demand the very best of everything as long as you are silly enough to do it. It is time they were leaving the nest and hunting worms for themselves. Take my advice and push them out," and off flew Grandma Robin over the road to the woods.

"Oh, how can she be so heartless," chirped poor, tired Mrs. Robin. "Push my darlings out of the nest! Indeed, I shall do no such thing. These children are so different from most birds! They must be given especial care, but I must admit I am so tired I cannot look for another worm."

Mrs. Robin tucked her sleepy little head under her wing and went to sleep, and her wide-mouthed children looked at her in astonishment.

"We are hungry," they piped. "We want more fat worms." But their mother was too soundly sleeping to hear them.

One bold birdling stretched his neck and squirmed himself to the top of the nest. Then he stood on the side of it and lifted his wings a little.

"Oh, look at Brother Robin!" chirped one. "He is going to fly."

All the little ones began to stretch and squirm now, and the next thing Robin knew he was sitting on a lower limb of the tree, feeling a bit shaky. He had been pushed off the nest.

Pretty soon the others tried their wings, and when Mrs. Robin opened her eyes a little later there was not a birdling in the nest.

"Oh, my babies!" she began to cry. "Something has carried them off."

"Hush!" chirped Grandma Robin, who had returned and was watching the birdlings. "Don't you see them down on the ground? They have just been fooling you, my dear."

"Oh, you clever little things," chirped Mrs. Robin, flying down to her children. "You are the smartest birdlings in the world. How did you learn to fly?"

"We were hungry," piped the children. "Besides, we want to see the world." And up they flew and into the woods.

Mrs. Robin began to cry, and down flew Grandma to console her. "Go back to your nest and lay some more eggs," she said. "Didn't you fly away from your mother and her nest and build one for yourself and Mr. Robin?"

"Yes, of course," replied Mrs. Robin through her tears. "But my children were so different from other birdlings, I didn't think they would leave me."

"No mother does," said Grandma Robin. "This was your first family. After you have raised a few more you will get used to it and find out, too, that all children are just as you were. You let your mother feed you and the first chance you had to try your wings away you flew."

"I never thought of that before," said Mrs. Robin.

"No one ever does until their first brood leaves the nest," answered wise Grandma. "That is the way we understand some things. Experience is a hard teacher but a clever one."

Miraculous Escape From Cyclonic Gale

The remarkable escape of a little girl in a cyclone which lifted her high off the ground and bounced her up and down time after time is recorded by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rudd, of Uren, Sask. In the cyclone which swept Saskatoon and the nearby country on June 16 the little girl was carried a distance of two miles by the force of the wind before being dropped unhurt.

Here is the account of the miraculous escape:

"Will Rudd and family were caught in the big storm of Saturday night, June 16, on the highest grade between Chaplin and Uren. His team became unmanageable and he jumped for their heads. Then the buggy went upside down in the waist-deep water on the north side of the grade. Mr. Rudd went to the rescue of his family, and somehow the horses got into the ditch with their tails to the storm and waited.

"Mr. Rudd found his girl, nine years old, and laid her on the bank, telling her to stay right there until he came for her. He rescued his wife and other child, but when he went to get his girl she was nowhere to be found and did not answer to his call. During the lightning flashes, he noticed a car in the ditch some rods west, and found this to be one belonging to the provincial police who had passed Rudd a moment before the storm struck them. The car was hauled back on the road, and the police went to Chaplin for help.

"Every car in Chaplin whose owner was aroused responded to the call. The entire country and fields were searched and the ponds waded and rewaded. The girl was found by J. O. Helgerson and E. W. Klecker, unhurt and unexcited over the affair in bed asleep in Mr. Axford's house, about two miles from the scene of the accident, Mr. Axford not being home.

"On being questioned by her father why she did not obey him, she said she did not move, but that she was carried up in the air, heard her father calling and could not answer because her mouth was full of sand. She hung for a short time on a guy wire of a telephone pole, her feet flew up and she loosened; she flew by a telephone pole and hurt her thumb grabbing for it, came down on her feet on the ground, being hurt more or less and tore her shoes. She was again taken up into the sky and came down on her back a short ways from Mr. Ashford's house. The girl's sticks right to this story, and the parents are sure this is the true experience of the child. Her neck shows some injury probably caused by the guy-wire."

The Wolf Cub Does His Best

The ways of a Wolf Cub as seen through the eyes of a scouter follows as contributed by the local executive of organization.

"What is a Wolf Cub?" people often ask. Well, of course, one might just answer, "A Wolf Cub is a certain kind of small boy; a small boy with a very clean cheery face, unusually clean hands, a jersey, a cap, colored neckerchief, and bare knees, a boy who has promised to be loyal to God and the King, to keep law which imposes obedience and self-control, and do a good turn to someone every day; a boy who lives up to the motto of the Wolf Cubs—DO YOUR BEST." But such an answer would only give a surface impression; really, to understand what a Wolf Cub is, it is necessary to grasp the principle underlying the Movement; to look at life for a moment with the eyes of a cubmaster, viewing the golden horizons that are his aims, his hopes; and to feel the joy and romance of life with the heart of a small boy.

"God made the small boy according to certain laws. Discover these; work in accord with them instead of in opposition, to them, and you will succeed; for you will have nature on your side, and the hearty co-operation of the boy. If God made the boy a creature of extreme and restless energy, with an inquisitive and eager mind, a sensitive little heart, and a romantic imagination, it's up to you to make full use of these instead of crushing them. If God implanted in the boy a horror of all that is dull and slow and conventional, you have no right to impose such on him. You can't improve on what God made; what you can do is to develop it, and to protect it from "running to seed" and turning into something it was never intended to be. How to do this is the question. The chief Scout has solved that by devising the Wolf Cub Scheme. But unless you understand the principle, you will never be able to make head or tail of all the quaint things we do, and the way we do them—I mean our particular kind of discipline, and method of instruction. The principle then is, don't "reform," don't "reconstruct"—just discover, develop, guide.—Contributed.

Boy Scout Saves Baby Squirrels

Frightened out of their nest by a blue jay in the absence of their mother, three baby squirrels fell from the limb of a beech tree some forty feet to the ground. Stunned and scared immovable the tiny brown jacketted creatures stayed there until they were found by a Boy Scout who was passing.

The scout examined the baby squirrels and found that one was so severely hurt that it died shortly with two legs broken. The scout remained on guard with the other two until the mother squirrel returned. Then he held up the baby squirrels until the mother saw them. Placing them on the ground the scout retired a short distance and watched.

The mother squirrel ran down the tree and retrieved first one and then the other tiny mite, carrying them to the nest again. His trust over, the scout left having performed an act which ranks high in the list of good turns. If the squirrels had been left defenceless on the ground they would almost certainly have fallen a prey to the first passing dog to go that way.

SHORTS COVERED TO-DAY IN C. P. R.

(By Burdick Bros., Ltd.)

New York, July 7. — The market maintained a rather steady tone from the outset and as the session progressed and it became apparent that there was no particular pressure in evidence against quotations, short covering made its appearance with the result that several of the active issues scored substantial gains, closing around top figures for the day.

The decline in the stock market has continued with but little interruption for a period of several months and most instances declines have been drastic. It is doubtless true that values have been depressed to levels which more than discount the uncertainities in the great business situation. We adhere to the belief that for the time being the general list is entitled to a further rally of good sized proportions.

TO-DAY'S TRADING IN WINNIPEG MARKETS

Winnipeg, July 7.—Limited trade featured the wheat market here to-day with values slightly lower at the close. The offerings were not large, but the undertone was firm, and on all declines stocks passed into strong hands. There was a fair trade reported in oats and barley, with the demand sufficient to absorb offerings.

Practically no business was worked in the cash market. Offerings were light, buyers indifferent and spreads suggested.

PRICES HIGHER AT CHICAGO TO-DAY

(By Burdick Bros., Ltd.)

Chicago, July 7.—Wheat prices were a little higher to-day, but the demand has been modified by increased country sales on the advances and the rather bearish reports from the southwest and other portions of the Winter wheat belt, which have encountered the indications of rust development in the northwest. As the export demand has been slow also the buying on the advances has not been at all aggressive. The trend of the market will be determined largely by the developments in the Spring wheat country the next two or three weeks, and prices are still at a comparatively low level, which makes the position of break buyers the more tenable.

Corn was strong, with July leading a moderate advance in price. Cash prices for corn firm; offerings light. The country offerings in fact have not been large for some time. However, local stocks will probably increase again this week as there has not been much of an out movement this week. Weather conditions are favorable for the growth of corn, and the crop has come along in splendid shape the last week.

Oats was irregular, with an early upturn in the July due to oversold pit conditions. Cash demand of moderate proportions put prices were firm. Deliveries were the largest so far at 30,000 bushels. Crop reports are favorable. The harvest is well under way in Southern territory.

TRADING BRISK AT PUBLIC MARKET

Stalls Are Well Stocked With Produce

Trade was brisk at the week-end session of the Victoria Public Market this morning. The stallholders are now in a position to satisfy the busy buyers as their produce is at the height of its abundance at the present time.

The main produce on display now is soft fruit. Raspberries are now plentiful. Cherries are also well stocked.

Tomatoes are on sale, and by the large amount on display there will be enough to provide for a large consumption.

The stalls are prettily decorated with sweet peas of many colors. It is expected that the market will be exceedingly busy during the coming weeks, as the farmers are well stocked with produce.

The fruit crop is exceedingly good this season, and loganberries will be on the market in a few weeks.

CANADIAN CATTLE SHIPPED TO BRITAIN

Ottawa, July 7.—According to a cable received by the Livestock Branch of the Department of Agriculture, no Canadian cattle were sold in Glasgow this week. A shipment is due, however, on Sunday. Best Scotch cattle sold at 13 to 14 cents, a decided drop in prices. Nine hundred Irish cattle ranged from 10½ to 11½; extreme top, 12½ liveweight.

Shipments to Great Brittain during the last week were 760 to Liverpool and 466 to Glasgow, both having left Montreal on June 30.

INCREASED BANK RATE FEATURE OF BRITISH MARKET

London, July 7.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The main feature, an an unwelcome one, in the stock market this week has been the rise in the bank rate from three to four per cent. It is not the mere addition of one per cent to the old rate which is giving rise to the hurried realizations, but the fear that it may be necessary to impose a further increasefl bringing the rate to five per cent.

London still remains the cheapest market for money, however, and some critics maintain that it is doubtful if trade will suffer from this advance in the rate.

Barclay's is the first of the big banking corporations to declare its dividend, making the same interim distribution as for the last corresponding half of the year.

APRICOTS ARRIVE ON LOCAL MARKET

Preserving Fruit Came in Yesterday; Prices Are Generally Steady

The first carload of preserving apricots arrived here yesterday and are now on the wholesale market at $1.55 and $1.60. This fruit is from across the line and was originally shipped to Vancouver. It was thought better on the Mainland to roll the car on to Victoria that the Vancouver markets might have a chance to be cleaned up, and the local fruit got out of the way. Local cherries are on the market at the present time, but the prices are not dependable. Apples, beets and green peas are all quoted at market price. Cheese has taken several changes, and meats show signs of drops in two or three instances. There are, however, no startling changes anywhere on the wholesale market, and although local fruit will probably rise and fall alternately for a few days, there is no likelihood of there being anythink like a bad break either way.

VETERAN BUSINESS MAN TO LEAVE CITY

Godfrey W. Smith, Late of Smith and Champion, Retires

Godfrey W. Smith, for many years a prominent business man of this city, has severed his connections with the old firm of Smith & Champion, Limited, Home Furnishers and Upholsters, and has retired. William Champion has taken over Mr. Smith's interests, and the firm will carry on business in future as it has done in the past, catering to a large portion of the public of the city.

Mr. Smith, however, does not intend to leave Victoria permanently, although he may do so for a short time. He came to this city thirty-five years ago, and in 1899 entered into partnership with Mr. Champion. The two men have remained in their original line of business since. The firm of Smith & Champion started in a small way, but its increasing business justified its growth and branching out into a big concern, until to-day, it is one of the leading houses of its sort in the city.

Mr. Smith's plans are somewhat uncertain. Although he intends to take a business trip to Stewart, B. C., within the next few weeks, he knows nothing definite as to his future movements. Probably he will locate here again in the course of time.

FIRE LOSSES

Toronto, July 7.—Fire losses in Canada during the week ended July 4 are estimated by The Monetary Times at $400,000, compared with $781,700 for the same week last year.

ONTARIO CABINET LIST PREDICTED

Toronto, July 7.—Although the personnel of the Ferguson Cabinet for the province of Ontario will not be officially announced for a day or two owing to the absence of the Lieutenant-Governor from the city, The Mail and Empire, which is presumed to have inside information on the subject, this morning gave the following "sure selections":

Premier—G. Howard Ferguson.

Attorney - General—W. F. Nickle, Kingston.

Mines—Charles McCrea, Sudbury.

Labor and Health—Dr. Forbes Godfrey, West York.

Agriculture — J. S. Martin, South Norfolk.

Minister without portfolio—Thomas Crawford, Northwest Toronto.

Most of the above have been announced as probabilities. One newcomer in the list is James Lyons.

The Mail and Empire did not place anyone for the portfolios of Provincial Secretary and Minister of Education.

It is stated that John R. Cooke, of North Hastings, as well as Sir Adam Beck, will be Government representatives on the Hydro-electric Commission.

To Be Combined.

Toronto, July 7.—The portfolios of lands and mines in the new Ferguson Government will be combined as in former Conservative Governments, with Charles McCree, of Sudbury, in charge, according to The Toronto Telegram. This eliminates F. H. Keefer, K.C., Port Arthur, who had been mentioned for the Lands Department.

The Telegram also predicts that W. F. Nickle, K.C., of Kingston, will, after all, be Attorney-General, with W. H. Price, K.C., Toronto, as Provincial Treasurer.

While strong approbation was expressed at Thursday's meeting of successful and unsuccessful candidates of the United Farmers of Ontario in regard to Premier Drury's leadership, the question of who should lead the Farmers' Party was not discussed, according to The Star.

The matter, it is stated, was not put up to Mr. Drury, nor was there any mention of a seat being given up for him as the meeting had not been called for such a purpose. A conference will be held here on July 26, The Star says, when the future of the Farmers' Party will be gone into.

FIND "STRAD" SECRET

Frenchman Discovers Composition of Amber-Olive Oil Varnish Used for Famous Violins

Berlin, July 7.—The secret of Stradivarius has been discovered by a Frenchman, after years of research in ancient Italian archives. This cry of "Eureka!" has been heard intermittently during the last two centuries; but French violin manufacturers now declare they are using a varnish which will preserve the vibrant qualities of the wood for centuries, and that the instruments turned out by the little shops not far from the Bastile will be just as famous 500 years hence as is any "Strad" to-day.

The whole charm of the Cremona violins—without giving other details as to proportions or method of application—it seems, consisted in the use of a certain mixture of resinous amber and olive oil. Modern fiddles have been treated only with ordinary resin and alcohol varnishes.

REALLY SHOCKING.

The demoralizing influence of the opening of the bathing season is apparent in the theatre notice which the linotyper insists upon setting "Down to the Sea in Shapes."—Buffalo Express.

GOLDFIELD SCENE OF DESOLATION

Nevada Town Where Fortunes Were Made Swept By Fire

Man Perished; Woman Missing; $1,500,000 Property Loss

Goldfield, Nev., July 7.—Goldfield, ence a synonym for fabulous wealth, quick fortunes, gambling and all the raw hurry and bustle of a western boom town, is but another name for desolation to-day. The desert blew a windy blast yesterday, fanned a fire which officials said had been set as an episode in a bootlegger's feud, and swept the flames from end to end of the community. As a result, one man is dead, a woman is reported missing, and damage estimated at possibly $1,500,000 was done.

Few Buildings Remain.

Of all the streets of houses known to the miners, the prospectors and the sportsmen who flocked thither to see the Gans-Nelson lightweight championship fight in 1905, only half a dozen buildings remain to-day. Of these, the Goldfield Hotel, where miners in sun-cracked boots used to watch dress suited promoters dancing with women in fashionable dinner gowns, stands alone. Though the fire started across the street from it, this structure escaped unscathed. Other buildings standing are the railroad station, the post office, the old John S. Cook and Company bank building, where many a man who had sold a claim or "struck it rich" purchased drafts to defray the expenses of a trip outside; the Elks' Club and the hospital, whence Dr. Charles R. Blake and his wife yesterday carried ten patients—all there were—when the flames threatened to take it yesterday.

Refugees on Hillsides.

The rest is waste, charred walls, smouldering ashes and smoking ruins. Last night hundreds of refugees huddled on the hillsides, amid what possessions they had been able to save, or slept as best they could in rehabilitated miners' shacks on the outskirts of the city. Others went by train or automobile to Tonopah.

A little girl in the Zoological Gardens tossed bits of buns to the stork, which gobbled them greedily, and bobbed its head towards her for more. "What kind of a bird is it, mamma?" the child asked.

The mother informed her that it was a stork.

"O-o-o-h!" cried the little girl, as her eyes rounded. "Of course it recognized me!"

MANY QUESTIONS AT SAAR INQUIRY

Members of Commission Give Facts at League Council Meeting

Geneva, July 7.—The members of the Governing Commission of the Saar region, including ex-Mayor R. D. Waugh of Winnipeg, underwent a severe grilling yesterday by the Council of the League of Nations with the object of establishing the truth concerning various charges touching the administration of a country the political status of which a plebiscite eventually will decide.

The chief object of criticism was the commission's decree curtailing the right of free speech and forbidding criticism of the League of Nations, the Versailles Treaty and the commission.

Both Lord Robert Cecil of Great Britain and Gabriel Hanotaux of France conducted the examination, which centred about such points as the presence and attitude of the French troops in the Saar.

Throughout the investigation a friendly attitude was maintained. Even Lord Robert Cecil, a stalwart adversary of any form of secrecy concerning debates, recognized that the discussions must be conducted without the presence of the public, as it might take a distinctly personal character on certain points.

Mr. Waugh replied to questions on the financial side of the Saar administration, as he is especially charged with those duties. He also dealt with the introduction of the franc as the sole legal tender in the Saar region and the presence and attitude of the French troops.

MOVIE MEN AT FIGHT DISGUISED AS PEANUT VENDORS

New York, July 6.—First pictures of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight to reach New York arrived at the Mineola flying field to-day in two aeroplanes. W. L. Smith, who arrived first, completed the trip from Shelby, Mont., in about 43 hours. Smith left Chicago at 7.26 a.m. to-day, where he relieved Dallas M. Speer.

Another machine piloted by James Ray arrived at the flying field with films for a news reel company which a Broadway roof garden prepared to show at midnight.

Ray's time from Chicago was given at 8 hours and 45 minutes. The pictures he brought were said by a representative of the news film company to have been taken by camera men disguised as peanut vendors. Small cameras were concealed in their baskets of peanuts and 100 feet of film were run off at a time, he said.

Federal agents inspected the pictures on arrival at the flying field and passed them after they were found to conform to requirements of the law. The motion picture films did not show actual fighting.

START—AND DON'T STOP.

The makers of Kodaks, Ivory Soap—all placed their trust in the printed word—and succeeded. They believed in advertising—and they kept on believing. Through thick and thin, through panic and prosperity, their advertising went on. It's still going on. The word "Kodak" is now in dictionaries, although when Eastman coined it, it meant nothing. Ivory soap is known and used wherever man washes his face. But the big, important thing is to have faith in this advertising. Start—and don't stop. Start now!

STATES PROFIT WAS BUT $1.35 AN ACRE

Cardston, Alberta, Farmer Tells Inquiry Commission About Wheat

Cardston, Alta., July 7.—(Canadian Press)—Excluding haulage costs, the return to wheat producers of this district for the last three years has averaged $1.35 an acre, with a crop averaging twenty bushels an acre. This statement was made at yesterday afternoon's session of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission here.

Need for increased transportation facilities for Canadian farmers was stressed by the farmers and business men appearing before the commission.

By legal processes it was urged that the system of selling of futures should be discontinued, as it was not good business for the farmers and depreciated the price of wheat.

Cost Figures.

A. Workman, testifying on behalf of the producers' committee, gave detailed figures concerning the actual cost of growing grain. "To plough an acre it cost $2.50 with a harrow following the plough," he said. "For three cultivations during the Summer it costs $2.25. It costs 75 cents for drilling. Other costs for an acre are: Binding, $1; stooking, 35 cents; two and one-half pounds of twine, 35 cents; seed recleaned and properly treated, $1.50; Summer fallowing, $3.60; taxes, 35 cents; hail insurance, $1, and threshing, $3, making the total cost of producing an acre of wheat $16.65. For the last three years the whole district has averaged twenty bushels an acre and the average selling price at the elevator has been 90 cents a bushel, or $18 an acre without deducting transportation and other selling costs."

"This gave $1.35 an acre for the farmer," continued Mr. Workman.

Elevator.

J. Y. Card, president of the Cardston Board of Trade, speaking on behalf of the Interior Elevator Company, strongly advocated a new terminal elevator at Lethbridge.

Not Beyond Ten Miles.

W. H. Caldwell, Mayor of Cardston, discussing hauling problems said it did not pay the farmer living more than ten miles from a railroad to haul his grain.

"Outside of Cardston and other points adjacent to the railway, the average hauling distance is 17 3-5 miles at a cost of 14 cents a bushel or $2.80 an acre," Mr. Caldwell said.

The people of the south country wanted a railroad through Coutts, which would be a great boon to the country.

Country elevator buyers sometimes are not informed of increased prices until two or three hours after the rise takes place, it was disclosed when Wyndman Scott, Cardston grain buyer, was heard.

M. C. Taylor, a Woolford farmer, farming 1,100 acres, testified that besides harvesting his crop for the last three years he had been able to make money by trading in futures.

Commended C. P. R.

J. E. Wood spoke strongly in favor of the Canadian Pacific Railway as a transportation medium as compared with United States railways. It had a better system of shipping and had quicker facilities for handling freight, he said.

During the afternoon the commission visited the handsome Mormon Temple.

The commission will sit in Lethbridge next Monday and Tuesday.

NOT QUITE.

Wilks—Well, old man, I suppose you have your vacation plans all laid?

Bilks—No. As a matter of fact, I've only three weeks of the two mapped out.—New York Sun.

PROBABLY HER LAST CHANCE.

And what did she say when you proposed?"

"Well, first she said that I had none of those stable qualities which a woman requires in a husband; then she told me she considered me the most fickle, improvident and unreliable of my sex."

"But she didn't refuse me — she accepted me."

H. G. WELLS FAMOUS OUTLINE OF HISTORY

The Romance of Mother Earth

Nineteenth Century Progress

The Catastrophe of the State of Russia

For thirty-six years after the treaty of San Stefano and the Berlin conference, Europe maintained an uneasy peace within its borders; there was no war between any of the leading states during this period. They jostled, browbeat and threatened one another, but they did not come to actual hostilities.

There was a general realization after 1871 that modern war was a much more serious thing than the professional warfare of the eighteenth century, an effort of people's as a whole that might strain the social fabric very severely, an adventure not to be rashly embarked upon. The mechanical revolution was giving constantly more powerful (and expensive) weapons by land and sea, and more rapid methods of transport; and making it more and more impossible to carry on warfare without a complete dislocation of the economic life of the community. Even the foreign offices felt the fear of war.

Efforts for Peace by Conference

But though war was dreaded as it had never been dreaded in the world before, nothing was done in the way of setting up a federal control to prevent human affairs drifting toward war. In 1898, it is true, the young Czar Nicholas II. (1894-1897) issued a rescript inviting the others great powers to a conference of states "seeking to make the great idea of universal peace triumph over the elements of trouble and discord."

His rescript recalls the declaration of his predecessor, Alexander I., which gave its tone to the Holy Alliance, and it is vitiated by the same assumption that peace can be established between sovereign governments rather than by a broad appeal to the needs and rights of the one people of mankind. The lesson of the United States of America, which showed that there could be neither unity of action nor peace until the thought of the "people of Virginia" and the "people of Massachusetts" had been swept aside by the thought of the "people of the United States," went entirely disregarded in the European attempts at pacification.

Two conferences were held at The Hague in Holland, one in 1899 and another in 1907, and at the second nearly all the sovereign states of the world were represented. They were represented diplomatically, there was no direction of the general intelligence of the world to their deliberations, the ordinary common man did not even know that these conferences were sitting, and for the most part the assembled representatives haggled cunningly over points of international law affecting war, leaving aside the abolition of war as a chimera.

These Hague conferences did nothing to dispel the idea that international life is necessarily competitive. They accepted that idea. They did nothing to develop the consciousness of a world commonweal overriding sovereigns and foreign offices. The international lawyers and statesmen who attended these gatherings were as little disposed to hasten on a world commonweal on such a basis as were the Prussian statesmen of 1848 to welcome an all-German parliament overriding the rights and "policy" of the king of Prussia.

In America a series of three Pan-American conferences in 1889, 1901 and 1906 went some way toward the development of a scheme of international arbitration for the whole American continent.

The character and good faith of Nicholas II., who initiated these Hague gatherings, we will not discuss at any length here. He may have thought that time was on the side of Russia. But of the general unwillingness of the great powers to face the prospect of a merger of sovereign powers, without which permanent peace projects are absurd, there can be no sort of doubt whatever. It was no cessation of international competition with its acute phase of war that they desired, but rather a cheapening of war, which was becoming too costly. Each wanted to economize the wastage of minor disputes and conflicts, and to establish international laws that would embarrass its more formidable opponents in war-time without incommoding itself.

These were the practical ends they sought at The Hague conference. It was a gathering they attended to please Nicholas II., just as the monarchs of Europe had subscribed to the evangelical propositions of the Holy Alliance to please Alexander I.; and as they had attended it, they tried to make what they conceived to be some use of it.

After Peace of Frankfort

The peace of Frankfort had left Germany Prussianized and united, the most formidable of all the great powers of Europe. France was humiliated and crippled. Her lapse into republicanism seemed likely to leave her without friends in any European court. Italy was as yet a mere stripling. Austria sank now rapidly to the position of a confederate in German policy. Russia was vast, but undeveloped; and the British Empire was mighty only on the sea. Beyond Europe the one power to be reckoned with by Germany was the United States of America, growing now into a great industrial nation, but with no army nor navy worth considering by European standards.

The new German which was embodied in the empire that had been created at Versailles was a complex and astonishing mixture of the fresh intellectual and material forces of the world, with the narrowest political traditions of the European system. She was vigorously educational; she was by far the most educational state in the world; she made the educational pace for all her neighbors and rivals.

In this time of reckoning for Germany, it may help the British reader to a balanced attitude to recall the educational stimulation for which his country has to thank first the German prince consort and then German competition. The mean jealousy of the educated common man on the part of the British ruling class which no patriotic pride or generous impulse had ever sufficed to overcome, went down before a growing fear of German efficiency. And Germany took up the organization of scientific research and of the application of scientific method to industrial and social development with such a faith and energy as no other community had ever shown before.

Throughout all this period of the armed peace she was reaping and sowing afresh and reaping again the harvests, the unfailing harvests, of freely disseminated knowledge. She grew swiftly to become a great manufacturing and trading power; her steel output outran the British; in a hundred new fields of production and commerce, where intelligence and system was of more account than mere trader's cunning, in the manufacture of optical glass, of dyes and of a multitude of chemical products and in endless novel processes, she led the world.

Germany Ahead in Science

To the British manufacturer who was accustomed to see inventions come into his works, he knew not whence nor why, begging to be adopted, this new German method of keeping and paying scientific men seemed abominably unfair. It was compelling fortune, he felt. It was packing the cards. It was encouraging a nasty class of intellectuals to interfere in the affairs of sound business men. Science went abroad from its first home like an unloved child. The splendid chemical industry of Germany was built on the work of the Englishman Sir William Perkin, who could find no "practical" English business man to back him.

And Germany also led the way in many forms of social legislation. Germany realized that labor is a national asset, that it deteriorates through unemployment, and that for the common good, it has to be taken care of outside the works. The British employer was still under the delusion that labor had no business to exist outside the works, and that the worse such exterior existence was, the better somehow for him.

Moreover, because of his general illiteracy, he was an intense individualist; his was the insensate rivalry of the vulgar mind; he hated his fellow manufacturers about as much as he hated his labor and his customers. German producers, on the other hand, were persuaded of the great advantages of combination and civility; their enterprises tended to flow together and assume more and more the character of national undertakings.

This clearing, scientific, and organizing Germany was the natural development of the liberal Germany of 1848; it had its roots far back in the recuperative effort that drew its impulse from the shame of the Napoleonic conquest. All that was good, all that was great in this modern Germany, she owed indeed to her schoolmasters. But this scientific organizing spirit was only one of the two factors that made up the new German Empire.

The other factor was the Hohenzollern monarchy which had survived Jena, which had tricked and bested the revolution of 1848, and which, under the guidance of Bismarck, had now clambered to the legal headship of all Germany outside Austria. Except the czardom, no other European state had so preserved the tradition of the Grand Monarchy of the eighteenth century as the Prussian. Through the tradition of Frederick the Great, Machiavelli now reigned in Germany.

In the head of this fine new modern state, therfore, there sat no fine modern brain to guide it to a world predominance in world service, but an old spider lusting for power. Prussianized Germany was at once the newest and the most antiquated thing in western Europe. She was the best and the wickedest state of her time.

EAST MEETS WEST

By B. A. McKelvie

"What you want t'sell?" demanded Suey Ah Poy.

For a moment there was silence, broken only by the ticking of the eight-day clock on the wall above the bracketed oil lamp, and the gurgling of Suey Ah Poy's bubble pipe.

"How much you likee?" queried the Chinaman.

"Twenty-fi' tins."

"What price?"

"Fi'ty dollah one tin."

"Wh'amaila you?" indignantly demanded the merchant. "Him velly good numb' one opium, you say flo'ty-fi' dollah. You clazee?"

"I'd sure be crazy t' give you fifty dollars for the kind of dope that's been on the market lately," retorted Mulgrew, adding in a careless tone, "My price's forty-five. Take it or leave it."

"Wh'amaila you?" enquired Suey Ah Poy. "Me catchem velly good stuff. You no likee fo' buy, allightee. Me no care."

Suey Ah Poy's eyes sparkled with the joy of bargaining. Here was a foeman worthy of his steel, and whom it would be indeed a joy to cheat.

Wise in the ways of the Oriental was Mulgrew, even as Suey Ah Poy was learned in the wiles of the white man. For a full minte they sat, each trying to read the face of the other. That of Mulgrew was as expressionless as the Sphinx, while the image of Buddah was just as intelligible as that of the Chinaman.

It was Mulgrew who finally broke the silence.

"Let's see the stuff," he suggested.

"Wh'amaila you?" again enquired the merchant. "Me say him good stuff, allightee. Me no tellem lie."

"Oh, no! You wouldn't tell a lie! Sure you wouldn't," sneered Mulgrew. "Say, you're so crooked you wouldn't know the truth if you was to find it in your chop suey, you wouldn't. I know you."

"I'm from Missouri," he added after a pause. "I want t'see the stuff."

"Missouli?" repeated the Chinaman in perplexity. "I no sabee Missouli. You no Missouli. You Mulgrew."

"Who the devil told you my name?" asked the white man in astonishment.

"Me know you, allightee," smiled Suey Ah Poy, noting with satisfaction the amazement on the other's face.

"Well, never mind my name," retorted Mulgrew. "Aren't you going t'show me the stuff?"

"Suppose you show me money?" bargained Suey Ah Poy.

"It's a go. I'll show you the long green when you produce the hop," agreed Mulgrew.

"Alightee, me catchem," assented the merchant and rising he passed behind Mulgrew and bolted the door.

Turning, he pressed his hand against a lottery ticket pasted on the wall. At the same instant the big block swung outward from the wall on hinges, disclosing a deep recess packed with small oblong tins. Suey Ah Poy reached in and taking one ran a sharp thumb nail around the upper edge, breaking the label. He pulled off the cover and set the opened can on the table. It was filled with a sticky brown substance that added a heavy sickening odor to the already nauseating atmosphere of the room.

Mulgrew gently stirred the glutinous mess with a tooth-pick and then lifted the can to his nostrils and inhaled deeply. Setting it down, he looked up at the Chinaman, "Number Two opium," he asserted.

"Wh'for you allee time say numb' two?" excitedly exclaimed Suey Ah Poy. "You no sabee opium. Him bes' numb' one."

"I'll give you forty-five dollars a tin," volunteered Mulgrew.

The mention of the sum had a curious effect on the Chinaman. His almond shaped eyes narrowed and his thick lips drew back over his yellow teeth. He glared maliciously at the white man as he reached out and removed the tin from the table to a smal shelf littered with ginger jars, pencil brushes, several broken jade bracelets and a well worn back-scratcher of ivory.

"You show me money," he hissed.

"Allee time you tly foolee me, wh'amaila?"

Mulgrew said not a word, but unbuttoning his waistcoast produced from an inner pocket a huge roll of bank notes. The expression on the Chinaman's face changed in a flash. Cunning and greed replaced anger, and he feasted his sight on the large denominations visible as Mulgrew slowly ran his thumb over the edge of the bills. Noting the rapacious cupidity of the Oriental, the white man replaced the money in his pocket and deliberately buttoned up his vest and coat.

The bargaining recommenced and continued until an hour later an agreement was reached whereby Mulgrew became possessor of twenty-four tins for $1,152. The money was slowly counted out on the table, and was carefully and painstakingly recounted by the Chinaman. The twenty-four tins were removed from the wall recess to a gunnysack.

As the white man passed along the narrow corridor leading to the rear entrance of the building he thought he heard a chuckle from the office of Suey Ah Poy, but he only smiled.

"Geese should not bargain with wise men," said Suey Ah Poy to himself as he hid the roll of bills and the opened tin of opium in still another secret opening in the wall.

Next morning Suey Ah Poy, wearing the black skull cap and red tassel of the merchant, smilingly shuffled into the bank and approached the receiving teller's cage. The teller recognized him with a nod as he reached out and drew the bills and deposit slip toward him. Moistening his fingers on a sponge, he prepared to count, stopped, scrutinized the uppermost bill carefully and then examined each in turn.

"They are no good."

"Wh'fo' no good, wh'amaila?"

"They are Bank of Prince Edward Island bills," explained the teller, adding, "That bank went broke before I was born."

Seizing the notes as they were pushed back through the wicket, Suey Ah Poy broke forth into a torrent of Chinese profanity. All the picturesque oaths of the Orient he used, while he called down the curses of all the devils he could think of on the head of a man by the name of Mulgrew. Deeming some action necessary, he finally sought out the manager of the bank, who received him with a smile reserved for customers with large credit balances, be they white or yellow men. The manager listened to Suey Ah Poy's tale of woe and condoled with him, but resolutely refused to accept the money for deposit. Apparently the bank manager was not quite as stupid as Suey Ah Poy had believed, but the Chinaman had no time for reflection.

From the bank he hurried, with haste unbecoming a merchant prince, to the offices of the lawyer he paid to keep him free from the entanglements of the law, even as he paid a doctor to keep him in good health, and discontinued payment when he was ill.

Suey Ah Poy had not told the banker how he had acquired the bills, but to his lawyer he explained everything in detail.

"Suppose you catchem blue pape' gettem Mulgrew allested," he suggested when he had concluded his story and the lawyer had examined the rejected notes.

"Suppose I have Mulgrew arrested?" answered the man of law, "then you'll be arrested, too, for selling opium."

This was an angle of the situation that Suey Ah Poy had not viewed before, and it was a decidedly unpleasant one to contemplate. He sat still for a space of two minutes gazing blankly at the wall. Then a smile sperad over his fat countenance.

"What is it?" asked the adviser.

"Alightee. Me no care. Me no selem opium. Me sellum twenty-flo' tins molasses. Me loosem one dollar thlity cents," said Suey Ah Poy.

British Government. The Ministry in 1921 allocated the sum of £600,000 to cover financial assistance to air companies for a period of three years. This period ends in March, 1924.

Now, however, the Government is on the verge of taking a step which should place the British air service on a firm and stable basis. A Parliamentary committee appointed to investigate the subject has recommended the formation of a company to embrace all the existing air services. A monopoly will be created having a capital of £2,000,000. Of this half a million is to be provded by the Government. This is repayable in ten years, free of interest charges, by the company. When the amount has been entirely repaid the Government will relinquish all control over the company. This report has been accepted by the Cabinet and proposals in regard to the formation of the company are now being received.

Few Accidents in Planes.

In spite of its shaky financial past, however, the British people are justly proud of the freedom from accidents of their civil aviation. From April, 1919, to March, 1920, the British machines on the air routes made 754 flights with a total mileage of 168,000 and one passenger killed. In the next twelve months 2,641 flights were made with a mileage of 500,000 and two killed; from April, 1921, to March, 1922, 1,156 flights were made covering 778,000 miles and none killed.

But it is not only in civil aviation that the British are beginning to realize their critical position. The nation is alive to its overwhelming inferiority in the air. As an official of the Air Ministry said that Great Britain is no longer an island.

Lord Salisbury announced recently in response to pressure from Lord Birkenhead and others that the budget for the air force would be increased. How much the increase is to be the Cabinet has yet to announce.

What alarms the British people is the fact that they have but 420 planes, while the French have a fleet of 1,260 planes. While Britain has been reducing its air fleet since the war—at that time the greatest in the world—the French have been increasing theirs.

The British figure that in 1925, when the French programme is complete, their neighbours will have 2,180 planes to the 575 that the British possess. In 1922 200 machines, civil and military, were built in Great Britain, compared with the 3,300 in France. While 9,250 men are employed in the French aircraft industry, only 2,500 are employed in the British.

The gross air estimate for the air service this year is £18,605,000. Sir Samuel Hoare, estimates that if Britain undertakes to maintain a one-one air standard without making corresponding reductions in the army and naval estimates, it would mean an immediate increase of the British gross estimates of about £5,000,000 and an eventual increase of about £17,000,000.

Westminster as on the stage to win their affection. But the House was very good. I felt I was welcome even by the Opposition. It made all the difference, the hearty cheers I received. I am not sure whether my husband in the gallery was jealous or proud," she added with a smile which said she knew very well.

"Have you any special ideas which you intend to press beyond the party's general principles?"

"I am very much interested in agricultural matters. I have been put on the Agricultural Committee in the House. I do not approve the re-introduction of the Agricultural Wages Board unless there are also guaranteed prices for the farmer. I also think more attention should be paid the ex-service men many of whom are still out of work since the war: I am naturally as a woman interested in social reform."

"Does that mean that you share the views of your sister members, Lady Astor and Mrs. Wintringham as regards prohibition?"

"The last idea I have in the world," came the reply, "is to deprive the British people of their beer. You may say that my ideas of reform do not lie in that direction."

REMOVAL OF DIRTY FISH WHARVES IS ASKED BY COUNCIL

City Urges Harbor Master to Clear Chinese Fish Base Out of Harbor

Cannot Enforce Laws As Long As Chinese Remain, Price Warns

Removal of Chinese fish wharves from their present place in the Inner Harbor will be urged by the City Council immediately upon the Harbor Master. Decision to ask for the abolition of these wharves was reached by the Council yesterday after City Health Officer A. G. Price had reported that they were accumulating filth and that the Chinese owners repeatedly refused to obey city sanitary laws.

Dr. Price's recommendation that the wharves be removed followed his recent action in breaking up fish crates which were floating near the wharves in filthy water and containing hundreds of fish for sale.

Dr. Price said he feared that nothing could be done to reform present conditions on the fish wharves while Chinese remained in control. These Chinese, he declared, evaded city regulations at every opportunity. When an official attempted to prosecute offenders he was always told that some absent or unknown person committed the offence.

Dr. Price strongly urged that Chinese fish wharves be banished from the Harbor altogether. He said he had conferred on the matter with the harbor master who, he thought would be willing to act if the Council asked him to do so.

The present wharves, Dr. Price asserted, were accumulating filth. The fish business, he felt, should be in the hands of men who would be amenable to city regulations. He suggested that all persons bringing fish into the city should be licensed.

TIME LIMIT CLAUSE IN CHARTER UPHELD

B. C. Electric Railway Company Succeeds in One Damage Action

Judgments handed down in the Court of Appeal here yesterday affected eight of the hearings before that court in the recent sitting at Vancouver. In seven of the judgments the hearings were relative to Mainland matters, the other being Belmont Investment versus Moody appeal cited yesterday.

In the B. C. Electric Railway versus Moldowan, dismissed with Mr. Justice McPhillips dissenting, Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald is upheld in a judgment awarding $1,500 to the respondent, Isaac Moldowan, for injuries sustained when his motor was in collision with a street car at the corner of Main Street and Nineteenth Avenue in September of last year.

The defendants-appellant were successful in the hearing of Viney versus the B. C. Electric Railway, the Court of Appeal allowing the appeal. The appeal was one from a judgment of Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald, who had held that May Viney, a twelve-year-old child who lost a leg in a street accident, on Carroll Street, in March last year, was not statute-barred from seeking redress by virtue of a six months limitation clause in the company's charter of incorporation.

In dismissing the appeal of Waddington versus Bush the Court upholds a judgment of Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald, who dismissed with costs a claim for $30,000 advanced by the appellant Samuel Waddington in connection with the sale of 145-acre tract of land near Nanaimo, styled the Seafield Heights. Oakley E. Bush, mining promoter, succeeded the former owner of the property. Mr. Justice Martin dissented.

In allowing the appeal of McLean versus Johnstone the court reversed a judgment of Mr. Justice Morrison made in connection with a dispute over 4,000 shares of the Pitt River Shingle Company, valued at some $35,000. The action was by John Hartley McLean against William Thomas Johnstone and George Donald McKay. A counter claim for $5,000 was entered at the hearing of the trial in the Supreme Court. Mr. Justice Galliher dissented.

In allowing the appeal of the defendants-appellant in the hearing of the Pioneer Lumber Company versus the Alberta Lumber Company the court reversed a judgment of Mr. Justice Morrison, who found for the plaintiffs in the sum of $1,500 involving a shipment of B. C. lumber to Minnesota. Mr. Justice Martin dissented.

Appeal of Mrs. Christina Shaw against whom the Modern Construction Company, Limited, had been awarded a $4,700 lien for a store block erected in the 1600 block, Granville Street, Vancouver, was dismissed. Judge Ruggle's judgment was affirmed on an equal division of the court. Justices Martin and Galliher would have allowed the appeal. Mrs. Shaw contended the company was not entitled to a lien because it had not constructed the building according to contract.

Appeal of Brown, the provincial collector of taxes, and the cross-appeal of the Columbian Company, Limited, publishers of The Columbian, from judgment of Judge Howay were both dismissed. The appeal involved personal property taxes and the result is substantially a win for the company.

CURFEW PLAN GOES TO POLICE BOARD

First steps to start enforcement of the Curfew By-law here again were taken by the City Council yesterday afternoon. The request of the Friendly Help Society that a curfew bell should be sounded here every night to warn children off the streets was referred to the Police Commission for report. Mayor Hayward explained that the present Curfew By-law was obsolete and that the curfew whistle prescribed in the ordinance had disappeared years ago. A new by-law was necessary, he said.

REFUSE TO LOG OFF WATERSHED FOREST

Council Also Declines to Change Water Rates

The proposal that the Sooke Lake watershed should be logged off and re-stocked with timber over a long period of years was rejected by the City Council yesterday.

The presence of logging camps on the watershed might pollute the water used by Victoria people, City Water Commissioner Preston warned the Council. He opposed the logging plan.

The Council also refused to adjust Victoria and Saanich irrigation water rates about which complaints have been received recently. Reports on these rates were filed. Complaints about the rates have centred around the assertion that Saanich farmers get Victoria water cheaper than city growers.

CADETS WIN MANY HANDSOME PRIZES

Kiwanis Club Gives Entertainment On Closing Night for Sidney Campers

Ninety-seven prizes were presented by Mrs. H. C. Greer, wife of the camp commandant, yesterday, to the successful entrants in the cadet sports at the Sidney camp. The presentation was made after the units in camp had been drawn up in a hollow square. Rev. A. H. Sovereign, of Vancouver, introduced the winners, who were congratulated by Mrs. Greer on their success.

After the presentation the cadets were entertained by the Kiwanis Club at an excellent concert. Assisted by some members of the Shriners' band, L. U. Conyers and T. Scott contributed to the programme, and J. H. Hinton accompanied. Kiwanian Tom Moryson led the assembly in community singing.

perienced in other parts of the Southern section of the Island, which no doubt prevents this district from becoming parched and burned by the heat of the Summer's sun. The Sooke Village, Sooke River (Milne's Landing) and Saseenos sections of the district have the great benefit of a domestic water supply under pressure. Rural and long distance telephone and telegraph services are also assets which this district enjoys. There are three local general stores, three churches (Anglican, Presbyterian and Roman Catholic), two resident doctors, a good public graded school with two teachers, and also a public school known as the Sooke Superior School with special teacher, which provides for the first two years of the High School courses, enabling the older children who have passed their entrance examinations to have the many advantages of rural life for at least two years longer than they otherwise would be able to enjoy. This is the first school of its kind to be established on the Island, and a recent report found the children well up to those attending the first two years in the city.

For the man who is not entirely depending upon the land for his living there is no more lovely district on Southern Vancouver Island than the Sooke Inlet for a rural home. The soil is ideal for small fruits. Hunting, fishing, boating, sailing, swimming and other forms of recreation can here be enjoyed to the heart's content, and though the beautiful waterfrontage is being quickly taken up, yet there are still both large and small tracks of sheltered land to be had either for Summer homes or homes of a more permanent nature. The lovely home of Mrs. Francis Wright at the West end of Sooke, looking out over the Straits of Juan de Fuca is certainly an example of what can be done in a short time in turning the forest into a veritable garden, and at Saseenos on the Inner Basin many picturesque smaller homes are now springing up, indicating what this portion of the inlet is destined to become with all the assets which have been bestowed upon Sooke Harbor by the hand of nature.

DICKIE BLAMES MANSON LETTER

C. H. Dickie, M. P. for Nanaimo, blames Attorney-General Manson for the defeat of British Columbia's amendments to the Canada Temperance Act, which would give the Province exclusive control over liquor imports.

"That Manson letter to the Senate did it," said Mr. Dickie. "If the Attorney-General had not sent it the general impression is that the bill would have passed. Many members of the Senate felt very much hurt at the references in it to lobbying and campaign funds."

Mrs. Dickie is with Mr. Dickie. They went on Duncan this morning.
